Revolution? No. Trouble? Yes.
More Debt Talk.
New Boss for N. Y. C.
One Six-Year Term.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PRESIDENT EDWARD A. O'NEAL, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, startles you with this:

"Unless something is done for the American farmer, we will have revolution in the countryside in less than twelve months."

And John A. Simpson, president of the Farmers' Union, says:

"The biggest and finest crop of revolutions you ever saw are sprouting all over this country right now."

Mr. Simpson says he has seen "revolutions against the courts."

THIS IS the first real talk about revolution, and it is just as well to have it. That which is freely discussed rarely happens.

This country is too big for revolution and too sensible. It would be foolish to shoot when you have the ballot. Ballots should make bullets unnecessary, except among idiots.

But there may be unpleasant rioting, and here and there farmers, dominating a state and controlling its legal machinery, may nullify the claims of those that have mortgages on farms.

ONE MORTGAGEE with a judgment for $2,500, foreclosing his mortgage yesterday, got forty-five dollars for his $2,500 mortgage.

Fifteen hundred farmers stood around near Des Moines, Ia., and bought in cows for ten cents each, the price of a quart of milk in the city, horses for fifteen cents, a tractor for one dollar and a half. That will not help the sale of mortgages on farms hereafter.

THIS COUNTRY will once more talk over Europe's debts to Uncle Sam.

They owed and did not pay. America revised the debts, reducing all, cancelling every dollar lent to France while the war was on. They promised solemnly to pay, according to the revision. Now they default, and we proceed to talk it over again.

Some business friends have a saying:

"He talks himself something in."

Uncle Sam reverses it, and "talks himself something out."

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, able Britisher, intimates that the British will force us to slash the debt by stopping importations from the United States.

Such threats are foolish, in view of the fact that this country COULD be completely self-supporting, whereas the British Islands, as they learned in the war, would starve to death without foreign supplies.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN whose "sacred ox" is the stock ticker and others more seriously interested in management of railroads will be interested in the sudden appearance of Leonor F. Loree, President of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, as the most powerful man in New York Central.

He has bought one-tenth of the road in the open market, and one-tenth in strong hands can usually swing the other nine-tenths.

OLD COMMODORE VANDERBILT was first to get control of the New York Central and put it together. His son, William H., owner of "Maud S.," succeeded him in control. Later Vanderbilts were "owners," but not "rulers."

THE VANDERBILT family showed intelligence in its planning, according to old Wall Street men. You might own N. Y. Central stock, but the Vanderbilts owned the Grand Central Terminal and every car that came in had to pay them so much.

They owned a bridge and every car and passenger carried over the bridge had to pay toll to the Vanderbilt family. Also there was a special freight line running over New York Central lines that paid the Vanderbilts well. If you wanted your freight moved quickly you used that line.

LATER GEORGE F. BAKER, 80 years old, still energetic, controlled. He died, and in the big "sag" N. Y. C. dropped from $360 a share to below $10. Mr. Loree saw his opportunity and took it.

Hereditary owners of big N. Y. C. blocks are interested in this news.

SENATOR PITTMAN wants a constitutional amendment limiting Presidents to one term of six years, no second term.

In favor of the idea it is said that a President, as soon as he is elected, concentrates attention on a second term, instead of concentrating on the business of the hour.

THERE IS another thing to consider.

With only one term, the President would have nothing more to expect from the voters, whereas he might have a great deal to expect from corporations and special interests, treated kindly in his six years.

That would have no influence on some Presidents, but might have influence on others.

FIFTY-SIX to eighteen, the Senate refuses to make silver real money on the William Jennings Bryan 16-to-1 ratio, sixteen ounces of silver to be worth one ounce of gold.

But there was a stormy debate, with six Republicans and twelve Democrats voting for the "Bryan heresy." The silver ghost has been raised and will walk around for some time.

JAPAN, THROUGH her press, warns the world of "great danger ahead." Accused of breaking her word, Japan may leave the League of Nations.

This may mean a real war with China, as a first step in the "Asia for Japan" movement.

AKRON HELD IN SKIES BY GALE

Passes Bellefonte on Way East After Night on Lake

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—The U. S. S. Akron, giant Navy airship, believed en route back to its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., was reported over Clarion, Pa., this afternoon, according to radio reports received by the Department of Commerce radio station here this afternoon.

Aloft since leaving her hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., on Tuesday night, the Akron remained a prisoner of slashing rain and wind of gale force which made landing impossible, although naval officials declared that neither the huge airship nor her crew was in danger.

Seeking safety from the winds, the Akron climbed to a high altitude and cruised over Lake Erie; paid an unscheduled visit to Cleveland and then headed for Bellefonte, Pa.

BATTLES FOG

While fog and rain lay in her path on the way to the Pennsylvania town, the wind was less violent.

Officials at Lakehurst expressed hopes that the ship would be able to enter her hangar by nightfall, but a violent storm, whipping up the Atlantic coast, causing storm warnings to be displayed from Delaware Breakwater to New York City, made it possible that the craft would be obliged to spend another night in the wind-torn skies.

Officers in charge of the Lakehurst station declared the Akron had an ample fuel supply and sufficient rations to continue aloft for a considerable period.

GALE WHIPS COAST

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—A 50-mile-an-hour gale ripped up the Atlantic seaboard today, lashed the ocean into a fury, took a possible toll of three lives, disrupted shipping, wrecked bulkheads and boardwalks and then swept toward the Middle West, where it held the naval dirigible Akron a prisoner in the skies. Traffic also was badly tied up on the New England coast.

Three lives were feared lost when a 14-foot tender from the pilot boat Sandy Hook was capsized off Long Branch, N. J. The Atlantic City Boardwalk was severely damaged. The concrete foundation withstood the hammering of the seas which inundated coastal areas, but wooden planking was ripped and splintered by giant waves.

TREES UPROOTED

Signposts, light standards and trees were blown down all along the New York and New Jersey coasts as the gale, needled with sleet, snow and rain, swept in from the sea. Two injurise were reported in New York City, while harbor shipping was impeded.

No immediate relief was in sight, as the Weather Bureau at Washington warned of a disturbance of marked intensity about 200 miles east-southeast of Atlantic City and moving northeastward.

Clairton Man Falls Dead in City Street

James Nixon, 67, of Holcomb avenue, Clairton, fell dead in Miller street, Clairton, today. The death was reported to the Coroner as due to heart disease.

Ends Her Life

EDITH RANSOME

'WHITE CARGO' STAR SUICIDE

SEATTLE, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Edith Ransome, former stage star, who attained prominence in the play, "White Cargo," died early today at a Seattle hospital from what physicians said was an overdose of sleeping powders. She was 28.

Miss Ransome was found unconscious in an apartment Tuesday night. Physicians worked for more than 24 hours in an effort to save her life, but she failed to regain consciousness.

Police said notes found in her apartment indicated she had planned to take her own life. One of the notes requested that her body be taken to Maryland for burial in the family plot.

Gale Floods Town In North Carolina

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Eastern North Carolina was swept by a strong northwest wind today. Reports reaching here from Manteo said waters from the sound were sweeping through Main street there and had reached a depth of two feet.

Sam Midgett, driver of the Manteo-Elizabeth City bus, which arrived here at mid-morning, said the water started rising at Manteo about 4 a. m. and was still rising when he left.

Chained Convicts Perished by Storm

HANOVER COURTHOUSE, Va., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—One hundred Negro convicts, chained to their bunks in the mess hall at a state convict camp near here, narrowly escaped death or serious injury shortly after 2 o'clock this morning when the building was blown down by strong winds.

Guards extricated the men from the wreckage and there was no attempt to escape.

IRISH VOTE DE VALERA VICTORY

New Free State Move For Independence Seen as Result

International News Service.

DUBLIN, Jan. 26.—Virtually assured of a decisive victory, President Eamonn de Valera gained a tremendous lead over former President William T. Cosgrave as the count of votes in the general election continued today.

At 5 p. m., the candidates of De Valera's Fianne Fail party had won 32 seats in the Dail. Cosgrave followers captured 14. Six independent candidates won seats, while the Center party captured three and labor two.

MAJORITY IN DAIL

Indications were that De Valera, who staked his political fate on a demand for complete Irish independence, would have a clear majority in the Dail Eireann without needing the support of any party beside the Fianne Fail.

The verdict, climaxing a bitter political battle between De Valera and Cosgrave, set the Free State squarely on the road to further attempts to obtaining independence from Great Britain, and made creation of a new Irish republic more likely than ever before.

In the first six constituencies, the popular vote for the Fianna Fail party was 118,679 as compared to the last election in which De Valera's adherents received 92,712 votes.

COSGRAVE LOSES

The Cosgravites received 74,837 votes as compared to 79,665 in the last election, and the Labor party 15,026 as against 16,800.

Typical of the national sentiment expressed in the voting, Cosgrave's personal plurality in Cork was decreased, and even in this district the former president was pressed close by the greatly increased vote for the Fianna Fail party. De Valera's personal vote in Cork increased by 6,000.

In the National University district, Prof. Hayes, former Speaker of the Dail and leader of the Cosgrave faction, was defeated by Mrs. H. Concannan, the first woman Republican to sit in the Dail.

Bombing of British Headquarters Foiled

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A bomb was discovered this morning in the British general headquarters here.

Military policemen found the bomb on a window ledge near the main entrance. This bomb was said to be similar to one which exploded at the British residency early in December.

FIRE FOUGHT IN NEW GULF BUILDING

Water Poured From 29th Floor on Shaft Blaze

Smoke pouring from the top of Pittsburgh's tallest office structure, the Gulf Building, brought downtown fire apparatus out to extinguish a fire in an elevator shaft today.

Smoke filled two lifts in one of the elevator banks, forcing the elevators to make emergency stops at the twenty-ninth and thirty-fifth floors respectively.

STILL ALARM

A still alarm was sent in when the fire was discovered. When it was feared the blaze would get beyond control of the building employes, an alarm was sounded.

Firemen poured water into the shaft from the twenty-ninth floor. Battalion Chief Frank Jones, who estimated the damage at $50, reported the blaze was caused by a short circuit.

Police accompanied the fire apparatus, holding crowds in check and keeping the corridors clear.

SMOKE FILLS CARS

Levina Henderson, relief operator of the car under which the blaze was reported to have started, said:

"I felt my car getting warm and when it began to fill with smoke, I stopped it at the thirty-fifth floor. I didn't have any passengers."

Ann Hopkins, operator of the adjoining car, said:

"There were men working on top of my car. I wasn't carrying any passengers. I was only obeying the commands of the workmen. When the smoke came into my car I telephoned the dispatcher and the car stopped at the twenty-ninth floor."

Her Car Smoke-Filled

MISS ANN HOPKINS . . . . . "I ONLY OBEYED COMMANDS"

Miss Hopkins, one of the two elevator operators today in the Gulf Building shaft in which fire started, pouring smoke from the top of the lofty building. "When the smoke came into my car I telephoned the dispatcher . . . only obeying commands." This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

CONVICTION UPHELD, MAP NEW PLEAS

Counsel Hope to Delay Final Ruling Until Term Expires

Two groups of attorneys prepared today to fight a legal battle which will determine whether Mayor Kline, who once more stands convicted of malfeasance, shall finish his term of office.

Counsel for the Mayor, Charles B. Prichard and Edward G. Coll, were confident that, if worst comes to worst, the Mayor's term will have expired before the case is disposed of finally. He quits office in December.

Despite yesterday's bad news for the defense, there remain several moves which may prolong final judgment in the Mayor's case.

BLOW TO KLINE

The Superior Court's reversal of Judge Thomas D. Finletter undoubtedly was a shock to the Mayor, but in his apartment in Park Mansions, overlooking Schenley Park, he appeared in an amiable mood last night.

The Mayor said:

"I have no statement to make to the press . . . No, no, I have nothing to say."

More discouraging was the outlook for the Mayor's co-defendant, Bertram L. Succop, fired by Kline as the city's Supplies Director.

Fearing a year in jail, Succop was hardly relieved by the news that the higher court had refused to set aside the verdict against him. He said:

"I am not going to say anything about the case . . . My wife has been sick in bed for the past three weeks. I am trying to keep the news from her."

SUCCOP'S LONE HOPE

Succop has one more hope—that the Supreme Court will consent to review his case. This failing, he must surrender to serve the sentence imposed on him in Butler by Judge Finletter.

But the Mayor has several moves.

The first—and the one his attorneys already are preparing to

O'Brien Loses Plea On Bribe Conviction

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The conviction of George O'Brien on a charge of attempted bribery of a state official was affirmed yesterday by the State Superior Court.

O'Brien, last October, was fined $500 and sentenced to six months to one year. He was accused of offering $20,000 to Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, in an alleged attempt to have Beamish favor the Shoup Voting Machine Company in the award of a contract.

Injured Vet Sues U. S. for Insurance

Claiming wounds received in the Argonne while a member of Company H, 319th Infantry, Eightieth Division, have left him permanently disabled, Dan Pacifico, of Sharon, today filed suit against the government to recover the full amount of his $10,000 war risk insurance.

Pacifico declares he received shell wounds in his right leg and left foot during the Argonne offensive on October 5, 1918. He was discharged from the army September 6, 1919.

HITLER YIELDS ON DEMANDS

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—German politics took a sensational turn late this afternoon when Adolf Hitler informed President von Hindenburg that he had reconsidered making his support of the "presidial" cabinet conditional upon his appointment to the chancellorship.

By yielding his "all or nothing" policy, Hitler paved the way for possibility of support for the Von Schleicher cabinet by the parties from the Centrists to the National Socialists, a condition which would insure the stability of the government for a considerable time.

Whether this means continuation of the Von Schleicher cabinet or appointment of a new cabinet rests entirely with the President.

Those who profess to know the President's mind said they would not be surprised if Franz von Papen would receive a mandate to head a new cabinet.

DRESDEN, Germany, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—An uproarious fight in the press gallery of the Saxon Diet today caused a suspension of the session during debate on last night's Communist disorder in which nine weer killed and 11 wounded.

Forester Ends Life After Raising Check

ST. CHARLES, Ill., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Harrold H. Davis, president of the Kane County Forest Preserve and member of the county board of supervisors, was found dead of poison in his office today.

He admitted last night in a conference of county officials that he raised an $8.50 check against the Forest Preserve's funds to $850 to make a payment to the widow of a St. Charles contractor, whose estate he was administrating.

Half-Billion For Relief Proposed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A general relief program, understood by its sponsors to carry out suggestions of President-elect Roosevelt, was agreed upon today by the Senate Manufactures Committee and a report of the measure to the Senate was authorized without a record vote.

This latest proposition combines the LaFollette-Costigan and the Cutting bills. It authorizes direct grants to the states with a total fund of $500,000,000 to be available, and increases by a like sum the notes, bonds and similar obligations which the Reconstruction Corporation is authorized to issue.

It sets up a federal emergency relief board of three members to be appointed by the President, the board to allocate the funds, certifying to the Reconstruction Corporation, which shall act as a fiscal agent, what payments are to be made.

Hoover Elected, Says 'Official' Letterhead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Hoover and Curtis are to be "inaugurated" March 4—according to the stationery of the inaugural committee.

The error was detected by the committee today and it immediately destroyed the stationery and ordered a new supply with the names of Roosevelt and Garner.

It all happened because of economy.

The committee decided to use the same seal for its letterheads as the Republicans did four years ago, but it told the printer to substitute Roosevelt and Garner for Hoover and Curtis. The printer forgot.

ACCUSE LAWYER OF 'FIX' OFFER

Serious allegations against an attorney were being investigated today by Judge Frank P. Patterson and District Attorney Andrew T. Park, after the jury in the morality case of George F. Hunter, of Spring Church, Jefferson County, had been withdrawn.

G. M. McDonald, attorney for Hunter, informed Judge William T. Darr, of Jefferson County, presiding at Hunter's trial, that he had been notified by an attorney that the latter could aid the defendant through a certain juror on the case. Judge Darr took McDonald before Judge Patterson, where he told his story.

According to McDonald, the attorney called him last evening and said it was a "tough case"

Prosecutor's Aide Sues for Divorce

Suits for divorce has been filed by Assistant District Attorney Charles B. Jarrett against Mrs. Marjory W. Jarrett, it was learned today.

Mrs. Jarrett was formerly Miss Marjorie Williams and is well known in society. The Jarretts were married June 3, 1924, and have three children.

Family in Houseboat Saved From Sea Gale

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The 16-man crew of the Sea Haven Coast Guard Station on Little Egg Island, seven miles south of here, were imperiled today when the station threatened to topple over after being pounded by a fierce northeast storm all night.

A message, heard over the Coast Guard wires today was believed to have come from the beleagured station, and the crew of the Bonds station put out to the rescue in a surf boat.

Earlier, two men, risking their lives in the harbor, lashed to fury by the high wind, rescued a husband and wife and their 3-year-old son from a sinking houseboat as it was being swept toward the sea.

Pounded for several hours by the storm, the houseboat, with Floyd Boger, 22; his 18-year-old wife, Phronida, and their son aboard, tore loose from its moorings in Barnegat Bay. Ned Carleton and Ivins Pharo put out in a 12-foot rowboat attached to a rope which men on shore held and saved the family.

Father Gets Hard Job For Rich, Paroled

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A job of hard work in a factory was arranged today by George E. Rich, wealthy maker of waterworks equipment, for his son, Arthur, due here in a few days from the Michigan State Prison at Jackson after a term resulting from a sensational "flaming youth" case in 1926.

The son has been paroled from a life sentence imposed after he was convicted of attacking Louise King, former Washington (Pa.) girl and a co-ed in a college at Battle Creek where young Rich was a freshman. The father said:

"It's too much idle time on their hands that gets young fellows into trouble."

Miss King sued young Rich in civil court and was awarded $50,000 damages. The elder Rich carried his attempts to free his son to the United States Supreme Court, which denied an appeal.

BRITAIN REPORTED READY TO OFFER 20 CENTS ON DOLLAR

EUROPE PLANS 'DRIVE' ON ROOSEVELT

President-elect to Attempt Bargains On Debts

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The American taxpayer, already staggering under the greatest peace load in history, appeared destined today to take over much of Europe's $11,000,000,000 indebtedness to the United States if the "big push" for cancellation or drastic reduction now gathering force is successful.

Europe's renewed drive for cancellation, or reduction to a point where the debts can be settled for a few cents on the dollar, will reach its full force soon after President-elect Roosevelt takes office on March 4.

LUMP SUM SETTLEMENT

Unofficial but convincing information has reached Washington that Great Britain is going to propose a lump sum settlement, so small that it can be paid off at once. A British mission will arrive in Washington about the middle of March to begin discussions, the MacDonald government having formally accepted Mr. Roosevelt's invitation to confer.

Twenty cents on the dollar is the most commonly reported figure to be offered by the British. Such a settlement would reduce the British debt to $899,904,000, and leave American taxpayers to take up the burden of $3,547,616,000.

While it is hardly conceivable that Congress would ever consent to such an arrangement, nevertheless it is going to be proposed—and seriously—by the British, according to seemingly reliable information reaching Washington.

EUROPEAN PARADE

The British appearance in Washington is to be followed by the rest of the European parade, certainly by those nations which met their December 15 installments. As to France, Belgium, Poland and the other defaulters, their status remains to be determined by the new administration. There will be no negotiations with them, under present plans, until their default is "cured" by making the overdue payment.

That there will be some sharp bargaining in Washington is assured.

President-elect Roosevelt has consistently opposed cancellation and also material reduction unless such reduction is accompanied by compensatory advantages for American foreign trade.

Only yesterday, President Hoover let it be known, too, that unless America's foreign debtors take steps to stabilize their depreciated currencies, he believes it will be necessary to raise American tariff walls higher to prevent wholesale dumping of low-cost manufactured products from abroad. This probably would result in retaliatory action in Europe's tariff structure, and a tariff war of world-wide proportions would be under way.

HOPES TO BARGAIN

It is understood to be President-elect Roosevelt's hope to bargain with the British for compensatory advantages on tariffs in exchange for any amelioration of the debt. However, the speech of Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, and the subsequent British reply to the Roosevelt invitation, seemed quite plainly to combat this idea.

The British chancellor served notice, in effect, that the British government would not enter into any agreements which would interfere with existing commitments—that is, the inter-empire tariff preferences set up by the Ottawa conference last year and the "gentleman's agreement" with France worked out at Lausanne.

GARNER DOUBTS HOUSE ACTION ON BANK BILL

Another Delay Looms For Measure Long Fought in Senate

By PAUL C. YATES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Speaker Garner today threw cold water on the chances of the House passing the Glass banking bill at this session. He did, however, dispose of the rumor that the measure would not be referred to the House Banking and Currency Committee, which is unfriendly to the legislation.

Asked if he expected House action on the bill passed by the Senate last night after a long fight, Garner said:

"It all depends. If we can get a report from the Banking and Currency Committee we might find time to act on it. Chairman Steagall will have something to say about it later today."

The Senate passed the bill by a vote of 54 to 9, and saw the end of a 21-day debate and filibuster led by Senator Long, the Louisiana Kingfish.

Long yielded only after a new cloture petition had been signed by 37 Senators.

The petition was circulated by Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, author of the measure. Long asserted:

"This bill has no more chance of becoming a law than I have of becoming the Pope—and I'm a Baptist.

"We reserve the right to deal a death blow to this iniquitous bill if it ever comes back, but I don't believe it will. It goes to the other branch of Congress dead."

Long criticized the Senate for not remaining in night sessions and not invoking cloture to "feed the starving or clothe the ragged." He said:

"We've left the hungry to cry, but haven't had a night session to feed them! We've left the starving to walk the streets, but we've never called up cloture to help them."

Senator McNary, of Oregon, assistant Republican leader, told Long that the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill would be taken up next. Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, declared he would move to take up prohibition repeal.

BANKS' CONTROL OF INDUSTRY CHARGED

Norris Demands Quiz Into Holdings of N. Y. Directors

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—A Senate inquiry into charges that New York bankers have acquired a "strange hold on American industry through directorates on thousands of corporations" was urged today by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The charges were made before the committee by John P. Frey, secretary-treasurer of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor.

Norris termed the conditions set forth by Frey as "intolerable in a free country."

REVEALS FINDINGS

Appearing in support of the Black bill for a compulsory 30-hour week in industry, Frey surprised the committee members by describing in rough outline the result of a nine months' investigation of banker-control over American industry. He stated:

"I first singled out 16 large New York private bankers, including J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn Loeb & Co., and I took each one of the partners of these bankers and traced his other corporation affiliations.

"I found that these partners held 71 directorships in other banks, including the largest in New York City.

"I found, too, that they held 996 directorships in industrial concerns over the country, including public utilities, insurance firms, transportation agencies and manufacturing establishments."

DIRECTORATES TRACED

Then Frey told how he trace the corporation directorships held by each member of the board of directors of the eight leading commercial banks of New York City. He added:

"I found that these directors of the eight banks held memberships on the boards of 3,741 banks, utility companies, transportation and manufacturing establishments and other agencies."

Frey charged that the Chase National Bank in two instances, which he described in detail, coerced employers into reducing wages and laying off employes. In both instances, it was asserted, the employers owed money to the bank.

Senator Norris then declared:

"This evidence presents a question and shows a condition which is intolerable in a free country. It should be investigated thoroughly, either by this committee or by some other committee."

Frey agreed to appear tomorrow with a detailed list showing each of the corporate connections of the New York banking group included in his study.

HIGHER TARIFF DRIVE STARTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The treasury today recommended that Congress give the Tariff Commission power to adjust the Hawley-Smoot tariff act to meet the situation caused by the depreciated foreign currencies.

The proposal was laid before the House ways and means committee by John J. Hopkins, special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury.

Under the treasury plan the commission would investigate each manufactured product affected and report to the President. Hopkins opposed the bill of Representative Hill, (Dem.) of Washington, directing the treasury to adjust duties.

Emerging from an hour's conference with President Hoover a short time before, Representative Snell, of New York, House Republican leader, announced a determined drive by his colleagues to revise upward American tariffs to meet increasing pressure resulting from depreciated foreign currencies.

Snell's call at the White House came within 24 hours after a caucus of House Republicans went on record as supporting the policy of tariff readjustment to prevent the inflow of foreign products manufactured in countries now off the gold standard and produced at such a cost as to materially undersell similar American products.

Lady Mary Abandons Record Flight Try

ORAN, Algeria, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Lady Mary Bailey left Senia Airdrome here for London at 8:15 a. m., today.

She is returning to London after giving up a flight to Cape Town in which she had hoped to break the record of Amy Mollison. She was forced down in French West Africa by an insufficient gasoline supply.

Risks Life to Save False Teeth in Fire

COLORADO SPRINGS, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Frank Schamp, 65, nearly lost his life because he tried to save his false teeth from his burning home. After carrying his wife to safety he returned for the teeth, left in a cup, and was overcome. Firemen found him with his clothing in flames. The false teeth were destroyed.

Find Cash Register Stolen From Elks

A cash register stolen from the lodge rooms of the Elks Club, Elk street, Carnegie, early yesterday had been found today. It was found empty along a highway a mile from the scene of the robbery. The steward, who discovered the robbery, said the register contained $70.

M'Donald to Preside At Economic Parley

ILLINOIS TROOPS GUARD CAPITAL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 26.—(INS.)—State troops and highway police were mobilized here today in anticipation of a second wave of unemployment marchers moving on the state capital in the wake of the demonstration by 200 rioters in Gov. Henry Horner's office yesterday.

Five thousand women of the Progressive Mine Workers' Auxiliary plan a demonstration during the day. They will be given a hearing by the State Legislature. Officers reported that many men from the mine fields are accompanying the auxiliary as well as several members of the Communistic group which staged a miniature riot in the Governor's office.

Nine persons were arrested and a score suffered bruised heads before state and city police succeeded in quelling the disturbance in the Governor's suite.

Three Springfield companies of the Illinois National Guard assembled last night at the state fair grounds and the arsenal in anticipation of today's demonstration.

SMITH'S NURSE TESTIFIES

Ansley D. Smith, former cashier of the closed Citizens Trust Company, Bellevue, was to resume his story today defending himself against charges of embezzlement and falsifying the condition of the bank. Smith had been on the witness stand two days. The case began a week ago Monday and may not be finished this week.

Smith left the stand a short time late yesterday while H. C. McCaughan, president of the Erie Trust Company, testified as to his character.

Smith had been unable to remember answers to questions in cross-examination regarding his stock transactions, and his attorneys called Sarah McCandless, a nurse. She testified she had attended him from October 25, 1931, the day the bank closed, to November 18. She said he had suffered a nervous breakdown and was given sedatives.

Woman's Sneezing Abates on 4th Day

PRINCETON, Ky., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lonnie Dickson, 48, passed the seventy-second hour today and still was sneezing almost incessantly, but her physicians said her condition was improving and the rate of sneezing had diminished to 16 times a minutes.

When she began sneezing at 5 a. m. Monday it was at the rate of about 25 times a minute. Last night Mrs. Dickson was able to sleep about an hour and a half, but resumed sneezing when she awakened.

TRUNK SLAYER'S HOPES REVIVE

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(INS.)—"I am glad. I have more hope for myself since Jack was freed. Maybe they will be more lenient with me."

This was the declaration of Winnie Ruth Judd at the state prison at Florence, Ariz., today, when she learned that J. J. (Happy Jack) Halloran had been freed of charges of being an accessory to the "trunk" murders for which she is sentenced to die.

Under guard night and day to prevent her carrying out a threat to commit suicide, Mrs. Judd received calmly the news that Halloran had been freed because the court held no crime had been committed.

Attorneys for Mrs. Judd planned to place before the board of pardons the same plea of self defense which voiced by Mrs. Judd as a state witness won dismissal of the charges against Halloran. They planned also to present to the board pictures taken in a Los Angeles hospital after Mrs. Judd had fled there, showing the bruised condition of her body.

FAMILY POSTS BAIL IN 'PLOT'

A man, his wife and their daughter were released on $1,000 bonds pending a hearing on charges of conspiracy to indict filed by S. Barton Sklar, of Murray avenue, before Alderman Louis Wicks, of Oakland.

Joseph Iancu, his wife, Mrs. Ida Iancu, and Nettie Iancu, their daughter, of Waverly street, posted the bonds yesterday.

Recently Sklar was arraigned before Alderman Edward Haas, of West Liberty avenue, on charges of false pretense brought against him by the Iancu family. Sklar, it was testified, proposed to the daughter and then borrowed money from the Iancus after telling them he had a large sum deposited in the closed Monongahela National Bank.

The Iancus will be given a hearing before Alderman Wicks Friday night.

Dismiss Bellevue's Trolley Complaint

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The complaint of Bellevue Borough and other nearby communities alleging that the Pittsburgh Railways Company is not giving adequate service was dismissed today by the Public Service Commission.

The Commission's order pointed out that the company's revenues have decreased steadily since 1923 and at a much more rapid rate than cuts have been made in service to effect economies. The deficit of the company last year was $800,000, and for the present year is expected to exceed $2,500,000. Under such conditions the Commission felt that service cuts are inevitable.

4 SOVIET SHIPS SEIZED BY JAPS

TOKIO, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Charged with breaking marine laws, four Soviet Russian whaling ships, which passed through the Panama Canal last October, were brought into the harbor at Yokohama today under heavy Japanese police guard.

Japanese authorities asserted Communist authorities aboard the vessel had violated the fortified zone marine laws and that the ships were subject to seizure.

Police held 231 men and women aboard the vessels, including three American Negroes. Others aboard the vessels included Germans, Norwegians and Soviet Russians.

Andre Pepoff, Soviet commander of the whaling fleet, said his ships were engaged in scientific research and had left Leningrad on July 27. He said the vessels entered the Bonin Islands, where they were taken in custody by the Japanese, to obtain water and provisions.

ACCUSE LAWYER OF 'FIX' OFFER

and that some aid might be extended through the attorney's client, a juror. McDonald said he was not interested, but later, with two men listening on the wire, had him repeat the alleged offer.

After hearing the story, Judge Patterson summoned District Attorney Park and the case was withdrawn from the jury. The juror referred to was questioned aand it is said admitted he was a client of the attorney and had talked with him last evening. The accused attorney was summoned and it is said admitted talking to the juror. It is said he insisted he was only trying to favor Attorney McDonald.

All the jurors questtioned said the juror-client had not approached them.

'FIXLESS TAG FIX' FAILS

Clarence Burleigh, 19, of 1310 Beechwood boulevard, had figured a "swell" scheme to beat the "fixless" parking tag, according to testimony in Morals Court today, where he was fined $5 for disorderly conduct—and he still has the tag to answer for in Traffic Court.

Last night, Burleigh, scion of a famous family of Pittsburgh lawyers, found a space in Sixth avenue where parking is not permitted. Patrolman Robert E. Davis had just made the rounds and had tagged several machines parked nearby.

Burleigh, before he left his car, it is alleged, took a tag from a machine next to his at the curb and placed it on his own. A pedestrian, who said he witnessed the change, notified the patrolman, who awaited Burleigh's return.

The patrolman testified that Burleigh "gave him an argument." Burleigh is a student at Washington and Jefferson College.

Alfonso Sees 15-Year Gangster Reign in U.S.

GENOA, Italy, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—It will take the United States 15 years to get rid of gangsters, former King Alfonso told a group of American friends last night at a dinner on the eve of his departure for Ceylon to hunt tigers.

Alfonso blamed prohibition for lawlessness. He said he believed it was a pity to have prohibition in such a land of liberty as America.

In discussing the "general picture of the United States," the former King said:

"If Teddy Roosevelt were alive there would be a great difference in American life. He was a great American. As King, I received him personally, once when he came to Madrid. I know he waged war against Spain, but I admired him because he was a fighter and did not stay home to make money."

The former King said he wanted to visit the United States again but, like Americans, he is suffering from the financial depression. He termed conditions in Spain "unhappy" and predicted they would become worse.

Piercy Hodgkinson, a New York engineer, and Mrs. Hodgkinson, and Mrsfi Mary Howell Rupnik, of San Francisco, now a resident of Genoa, were among the dinner guests. The Duke of Miranda was also present.

Chinese New Year Joy Dimmed by Dull Times

Today, according to the Confucian calendar, was New Years But it was a gloomy holiday for Pittsburgh Chinese for the feasts "Hon Nin," at which thanks is offered the Sky God for favors of the past year, and "Hoy Nin" when sacrifices are offered to invoke good will of the gods for the new, after long and serious consideration, were omitted.

With ceremonial rites more than 50 centuries old, the Chinese have followed teachings of their revered ancestors in the offering of solemn sacrifices at the twin feasts. But when the depleted coffers of Chinatown residents forbid the expense of the sacrifices, the Chinese sadly view the transgressions of the ancient customs and fear the wrath of the gods.

Not without reluctance and fear was it decreed by the sages that the banquet halls should remain unlighted. But the imported silks and brocades, delicate hand painted china, and fragrant tea and rice lie unsold in tiny shops. Famous Oriental dishes are untasted. Wash tubs are empty. Debts cannot be paid.

The holiday, however, did not go totally unobserved. Boys and girls were given new aprons with large pockets in which to stow good luck coins. But this year the luck-carrying coins, wrapped in red paper, Chinese symbol of good fortune, are half dollars and quarters instead of the traditional silver dollars. Incense was burned and wax candles lighted for the good will of the gods.

New Year's cards, bits of red paper, were distributed with the sender's name and the inscription in Chinese characters "Goong Hay Faut Toy," or "A Happy and Prosperous New Year."

LEWIS SELZNICK, PIONEER FILM PRODUCER, DIES AT 62

RAN JEWELRY STORE HERE YEARS AGO

Led Norma Talmadge, Others to Fame In Movies

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A career synonymous with the motion picture industry from its first commercial beginning has ended here in the death of Lewis J. Selznick at the age of 62.

The veteran producer succumbed yesterday to diabetes within a few hours after one of his sons, Myron, completed a hurried trip across the continent to be at his bedside. Myron Selznick was returning from London when he received word of his father's illness.

Mr. Selznick

The other sons, David, also a producer, and Howard, with the producer's wife, Mrs. Florence Selznick, also were at the bedside.

It was announced Rabbi Edgar Magnin will conduct funeral services today.

The son of Russian immigrants, Selznick quit school as a boy and went to work in a New York jewelry shop. Before that phase ended, he owned stores in New York and Pittsburgh. He became interested in motion pictures while he was trying to sell jewelry to J. A. Powers, a producer.

His first venture was with Powers and Carl Laemmle in the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, of which he soon became general manager. In 1914 he organized the World Film Corporation, engaging William A. Brady as production chief.

FAMOUS STARS

Among his stars were Clara Kimball Young and Norma Talmadge. The company produced such well remembered films as "Old Dutch," with Lew Fields; "The Boss," with Alice Brady and Holbrook Blinn, and "Trilby," with Clara Kimball Young and Wilton Lackaye.

The fame of Miss Young and Miss Talmadge grew under Selznick's management, and one after another, Olive Thomas, Elsie Janis, Eugene O'Brien, Owen Moore, Marie Doro, Elaine Hammerstein and Corrine Griffith were added.

Selznick retired from active picture production several years ago. He returned briefly as manager of the Associated Exhibitors, Inc., and then retired permanently, leaving his sons, Myron and David, to identify the Selznick name with present day production.

Selznick's Brothers Residents Here

"Lew" Selznick," as his friends in Pittsburgh recalled, was in the jewelry business in Smithfield street a number of years ago, at the time he became interested in moving pictures. He gave up his business here and went East to success. A brother Dave, headed the company which built the Roxian Theater in McKees Rocks, and still resides here, as does another brother, Sol. Mrs. Selznick is a sister of Attorney Charles H. Sachs, of the Frick Building.

TRACE BROWN DEATH PISTOL

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Police today had an important new "tip" in the mysterious slaying of Bradway Brown, wealthy socialite, it was disclosed by Chief Detective Ellis H. Parker.

A man from Trenton, N. J., whose name was withheld, made a special journey to Mt. Holly with information which he believes will enable police to establish ownership of the .32 caliber revolver with which the young printing company executive was slain.

It was reported the man recognized the death weapon from pictures published in newspapers and offered to trace its ownership.

Death Tragic

MISS FRANCES DZIKOWSKI

DEATH TAKES GIRL, FATHER

There were two caskets in the Dzikowski home at 273 Dunseith street, Oakland, today.

In one of gray lay the body of Felix Dzikowski, 57, a victim of an automobile accident on the South Twenty-second Street Bridge Tuesday night, and in another of white lay the body of his daughter, Frances Dzikowski, 19, who joined him in death 19 hours later.

While Frances lay ill from pneumonia in her home, her father and Herman Slain, of 2563 Aliquippa street, drove to a South Side drug store for a prescription. Returning, the machine, driven by Slain, collided with a street car on the bridge. Dzikowski suffered a skull fracture which caused his death two hours later in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Fearing that news of the fatal accident would aggravate her condition, they took Frances to Mercy Hospital. Late yesterday she died, ignorant of her father's death.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Veronica Dzikowski, had not been informed of the second death. She had been a state of collapse since her husband's death.

Double funeral services will be held Saturday morning in St. Hyacinth's Catholic Church, Oakland.

SEIZE BIG STILL, ARREST FOUR

A 1,500-gallon still in a house at 929 Washington street, Braddock, was reported seized today by Police Chief Michael Mehalik, who arrested four persons.

Mehalik said 147 barrels of mash and 900 gallons of alcohol were found. The four arrested were listed as James Davis, 23, of Carnegie; William White, Negro, of Universal; Amanda Need, Negro, and William Graham, Negro, of Washington street.

TYDINGS URGES SALES TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Assailing the extraordinary taxes levied last year in an effort to balance the budget as an "affliction to the poor," Senator Tydings (Dem.), of Maryland, this afternoon demanded substitution of a moderate general sales tax, with necessities of life exempted.

He proposed a general levy, with medicines, necessities of life, cheap clothing and cheap shoes exempted.

KILLER OF CHILD HUNTED IN BROOKLYN

Frightened Mothers Guarding Young From Maniac

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Mothers in Brooklyn's Stuyvesant Heights kept frightened eyes on their babies today for fear a killer with a twisted brain might slay them as he did 6-year-old Helen Sterler.

Helen's body was found in a dark coal bin last night. The clothesline that strangled her was still around her neck. A half eaten piece of penny candy lay on the floor. Police said a degenerate coaxed her into the tenement house cellar, mistreated and killed her, and then crept away unnoticed.

AT PLAY IN STREET

Only a few hours before, Helen had been seen at play in the crowded street outside. Her mother had given her a penny and she was munching peppermint drops she bought with it. Police, ransacking the neighborhood for clues, were told she entered a variety store a little later and bought for a few pennies a papier mache toy showing "Paris views."

Detectives believed the killer had given her this money, then waited outside the store for her. When she failed to return home, her father, Louis, an unemployed house painter, told police, and they started searching cellars.

FATHER CRAZED

When they called Sterler into the dark place where the body lay, to identify it, he stood silent for several moments, then screamed:

"My baby—she was just a baby. You police—if you don't find the man, I will."

A muttering crowd gathered outside. At home the child's mother fainted when she heard the news.

Detectives had a theory that it was some one from the immediate neighborhood who committed the act. Such was the case with little Florence McDonnell, 5, who was found slain in a basement not far away on February 3, 1932. Police said a Negro, Robert Smalls, 15 years old, confessed the killing. He did it, he said, because she "snitched" on him when he played truant from school.

Later he repudiated the confession.

Three men were questioned in the Sterler case today, but proved alibis and were released.

Dry Padlock Asked On Tunnel St. House

A temporary padlock injunction was granted today in Federal Court on the thirdfloor property at 43 Tunnel street, allegedly owned by John A. Fugassi, former head of the Allegheny County Road Department.

In the complaint filed before Judge Nelson McVicar, the property was described as an alleged speakeasy. It was raided twice, the last time on January 9. John Beere was named as alleged proprietor.

LOUISE LaVERNE . . . . DID YOU EVER SEE HER BEFORE?

Miss LaVerne, alias Briggs, held by county detectives after a raid on 1301 Caldwell street. They're investigating her in connection with the series of holdups in which a blonde gunwoman has figured in the past month or so. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Blonde Held for Quiz As Holdup Gunwoman

A tall blonde woman was being held by county detectives today for investigation in connection with numerous holdups in which a blonde gun woman has figured.

Identified as Louise LaVerne, alias Briggs, 22, the suspect was arrested yesterday in a raid on an alleged speakeasy in Colwell street. She was committed to the county jail on a District Attorney's detainer after denying complicity in holdups. She told detectives she came here from Toledo three weeks ago.

C. E. Murphy, of 7075 Campania avenue, who was robbed of $7.50 by a blonde gunwoman late Sunday night at the end of the Lincoln Avenue Bridge, was to be called to view the prisoner today.

Louis Lardo, 1301 Colwell street, in whose home Miss LaVerne was arrested, was charged with violating the Snyder act and keeping a disorderly house. He was remanded to jail in default of $2,000 bail.

CLERIC ACCUSED BY SCHOOLGIRL MISSING

Student, 18, Tells Jury Of 'Love Lesson' in Parked Auto

By KARL M. KAHN
International News Service.

MUNCIE, Ind., Jan. 26.—Whereabouts of the Rev. G. Lemuel Conway became an engrossing mystery today as the grand jury continued its investigation of an 18-year-old high school girl's charges that the clergyman made love to her.

The gaunt, elderly pastor of the Madison Street Methodist Episcopal Church, whose fisticuffs at last Sunday evening's services and whose alleged undesirable advances toward pretty Helen Huffman led to the grand jury investigation, has left the city.

SLEUTH MYSTIFIED

This is the word that was given out at the parsonage by a robust young man who answers all rings of the doorbell. Likewise it is the word of Albert Martin, the private detective engaged by the minister since his trouble began.

But Mr. Conway's whereabouts is a mystery. The church members do not know, or if they do, they profess not to and appear concerned over the matter.

His reason for leaving the city also is a mystery. But the fact remains that the grand jury still is hearing witnesses in connection with the clergyman's assault on Willard F. Aurand, choirmaster of the church, and the story told by young Miss Huffman, a high school senior, that the minister made love to her in an attempted attack.

Neither Mr. Conway nor Aurand were present last night at the regular mid-week prayer meeting held in the Madison Street Church, at which 50 members of the congregation were present. Neither were any of the church members who have been witnesses before the grand jury.

GIRL TELLS STORY

She said the pastor hailed her from his automobile December 29 and offered to drive her downtown. Instead, he drove her out into the country and stopped the car on a lonely road, she testified. The girl said:

"He asked me if I had ever had a love affair. He said that I had attained the age when I should know how to approach affairs of the heart, and that he was a man of experience and would instruct me."

She then said she successfully resisted the clergyman's advances and he drove her back to Muncie.

The assault upon Choirmaster Aurand was inspired, it was reported, by Aurand's asserted part in having the clergyman brought before an ecclesiastical court headed by Bishop Edgar F. Blake which heard the girl's charges.

Bishop Blake has not yet announced his decision in the matter.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT TODAY

SON OF 'T. R.' MUM ON FEUD

Kermit Roosevelt, son of the famous "Teddy" and fifth cousin of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, had no comment to make today as he arrived here concerning the political differences of the two branches of the family nor on the merits of "Bring-'em-back-dead" Wright's big game hunts in Missouri.

The son of "T. R." will be a guest of the President-elect on a vacation cruise next month, but beyond confirming this, the noted big game hunter would say nothing regarding the breach between the families indicated when his brother, Theodore, Jr., and his sister, Alice Longworth, and his mother supported President Hoover in the last election.

When the questioning turned to the recent hunt for two circus lions on an island in the Mississippi River for the amusement of Denver M. Wright, Roosevelt said:

"The thing was too silly for any comment."

Roosevelt will tell of his own big game hunting experiences tonight when he speaks at the annual dinner of the Traffic and Transportation Association at the Willian Penn Hotel.

'101' CONTRACT DENIED BY MIX

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Tom Mix, cowboy film star, today denied from the witness stand in Judge U. P. Rossiter's courtroom that any contract existed between him and Col. Zach Miller calling for his appearance with the "101 Ranch" Circus in 1929.

Mix was called as the star witness in his own defense at the retrial of Miller's damage suit against him for alleged breach of contract. Mix testified:

"I never had any intentions of joining the '101 Ranch.' There was no contract between Col. Miller and myself calling for my appearance with his show in 1929 for $10,000 a week or for any figure."

Miller previously had testified that he and Mix came to a verbal understanding that Mix would be the featured attraction of the ranch show.

INSURANCE MAN TESTIFIES IN 'POISON' CASE

Tells of Big Policies Carried on Lives of Boys Who Died

BULLETIN.

Mrs. Gizella Young testified at the trial of Mrs. Anna Allas and Mrs. Mary Chalfa, of Munhall, today that the defendants promised her $5,000 "to hold my mouth" after she had told them they were to blame for the death of Andrew Allas, stepson of Mrs. Allas.

Thousands of dollars of insurance was carried on the lives of two boys for whose deaths two women are on trial in Criminal Court, an insurance investigator testified today.

The boys were Stephen and Andrew Allas, 12 and 16, respectively, who, the commonwealth charges, died from poison administered by Mrs. Anna Allas, their stepmother, and Mrs. Mary Chalfa, both of Munhall.

NAMED BENEFICIARY

The insurance investigator, Milton Lance, said two insurance policies obtained for Stephen totaled $1,544, and nine valued at $11,077 were obtained for Andrew. Their stepmother was named beneficiary, Lance said. One $5,000 policy, he testified, named Mrs. Allas beneficiary, but the premium notices were sent to Mrs. Chalfa.

Testimony of another witness that he suffered from cramps while living in the home of one of the two women defendants and that she carried insurance on his life without his knowledge threatened to end the trial.

The testimony was stricken from the record after Judge J. Frank Graff had warned Defense Attorney Louis Little he must cease attempting to picture the defendants as kindly women. Little had moved to have the jury withdrawn and the testimony stricken out.

TELLS OF FEARS

The witness was Joseph Chalfa, Mrs. Chalfa's cousin, who said he and his wife had lived in the Chalfa home. He said Andrew Allas complained of cramps a week before he died.

Attorney Little asked Chalfa if he had not shown ingratitude in leaving the Chalfa home. Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty jumped to his feet and said:

"Tell exactly why you left that home."

Chalfa, before Little could object, said:

Sterki, Obscure Expert On Snails, Dies

Dr. Victor Sterki is dead.

The news in itself means nothing to millions of Americans. To thousands of scientists it is of little significance.

For Dr. Victotr Sterki was a specialist in a field so remote and so restricted that few even know of its existence. He was one of five or six experts in the world who devoted his life to the study of various species of small land snails.

These little mollusks are tiny, often too small to be seen without the aid of a microscope. But in his 20 years of service as assistant curator of zoology with Carnegie Museum, Dr. Sterki—aided by the ordinary handicap of near-sightedness—was often enabled to study his collection with bare eyes.

His snails were in many instances parasites in animals, large and small. His study of them was of use in fighting animal diseases and scourges.

Dr. Sterki was 86. He was born in Switzerland, attended universities in Switzerland and Berlin. He fell in love with the study of his tiny sub-division of the family of molluska—which includes snails, clams, the octopus and other widely separated creatures.

After service as a doctor in the Swiss army, Dr. Sterki, sight failing, came to the United States and, in New Philadelphia, O., took up general practice. When he found he was near-sighted and that the deficiency made it easier to study his tiny snails, he reverted to his specialty.

Dr. Sterki was a member of the Ohio Academy of Scientists, the Deutsch Molacozooi and the Gesellschaft, A. A. A. A. He was author of ma treatises on zoology.

He leaves two daughters, one, Mrs. Bertha Cavanaugh, of Cleveland, and a son, Walter Sterki, of Akron, O.

Mrs. Belmont, Society Dictator, Dies in Paris

PARIS, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, prominent New York society leader and president of the National Women's Party, died today. She was nearly 80.

Death followed a long period of illness, intensified when she suffered a second stroke, which was complicated by bronchial and heart ailments.

Mrs. Belmont's sons, William K. and Harold S. Vanderbilt, were notified.

Her daughter, Mrs. Jacques Balsan, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, was at her bedside.

For many years an outstanding leader in the feminist movement, Mrs. Belmont spent the last two decades of her life in fighting for women's rights and lived to see many of her cherished ideals enacted into law.

Born in Mobile, Ala., and bearing the name of Alva E. Smith, she came to New York at an early age to be feted as a debutante and in 1874 married William K. Vanderbilt, scion of an enormously wealthy but then socially unknown family.

To celebrate the betrothal, she staged a magnificent costume ball which was attended by many leading lights of New York society. This affair served to establish the Vanderbilt clan socially, and is often referred to as one of Mrs. Belmont's outstanding achievements in her long career as "dictator" of New York's elite.

Discord, however, entered the marriage after Vanderbilt had constructed for his bride a palatial residence at Newport, R. I., which was known as Marble House, and divorce followed. She was then mararied to Oliver Perry Belmont, railway magnate.

DONAHOE'S Fifth Avenue Store

BUYERS ACTIVE AT MOTOR EXHIBIT

Pittsburgh's annual automobile show today was termed a buying show, dealers reporting sales results were exceeding expectations. Thousands of visitors daily are inspecting the 1933 display which closes Saturday in the Hotel William Penn.

Staged for the first time in years in the downtown district, the show in the hotel's Chatterbox and Exhibit Hall has offered convenient inspection for the shoppers, business men and out-of-town visitors. W. N. Owings, show manager and secretary of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association sponsoring the exhibit, today said:

"Dealers report thorough satisfaction with the results from the first three days. Attendance has exceeded expectation. High-priced car owners who have not been seen at shows for several years are attending, accompanied by their chauffeurs, to make a study of motor values. The display arrangement has proved to be a more convenient manner for the visitors' comfort in studying the new car offerings."

Immediate delivery of one of the highest priced automobiles in the show was demanded by a Wheeling businessman, who visited the city to see the exhibits. The show management permitted the sales company to remove the machine so the buyer could drive back to Wheeling, Mr. Owings reported.

Interest is likewise being shown in the exhibit of accessory parts, radios and electric refrigerators, which is free to the public, in the lobby and corridors. The show is open daily from 11 a. m. to 11:30 p. m. The late closing hour is drawing many theatergoers.

Displays of aluminum and steel automobile parts form a special exhibition in the Roosevelt Hotel lobby.

'Smoke' at Exhibit Is Merely Vapor

Visitors at the automobile show have been puzzled about the origin of the smoke used in demonstrating the ventilating system of Fisher bodies on an Oldsmobile sedan. The "smoke" is a vapor caused by dry ice placed in a percolator of warm water.

The exhibit forcefully illustrates the manner in which used air or tobacco smoke is withdrawn without creating a draft.

All Bank's Funds Seized by Robbers

DOBSON, N. C., Jan. 26.—(AP.) Yeggmen blew the vault at the Bank of Dobson early today and escaped with the institution's entire funds estimated at between $9,000 and $10,000.

Your Income Tax

Exemptions Make Many Incomes Untaxable

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

Not everyone who is required to file an income tax return will be required to pay a tax. Personal exemptions and various other allowable deductions, which will be discussed in future articles, make the incomes of many individuals untaxable.

The fact that the deductions may leave no taxable income, however, does not remove the obligation to file a return if income reached the required levels, which were explained previously.

In addition to the personal exemptions, credit of $400 may be claimed for each dependent. A dependent is considered to be a person under 18 years of age or a person incapable of self-support because of mental or physical defects. Aged persons or persons in ill health may be classified as dependents.

A taxpayer who claims a $400 credit for a dependent must actually provide the principal support of the dependent person. If children receive their chief support from a trust fund or similar outside source the parents cannot claim the deduction.

Neither relationship nor residence are factors in the allowance for this claim. The taxpayer and the dependent may be residents of different cities.

BLAST WRECKS BRADDOCK HOUSE

An investigation was under way today to determine the cause of a blast which last night ripped apart a two-story frame house at 935 Washington street, Braddock, damaged the adjoining house and jarred nine persons, including two children.

The occupants, legless Frank Rogalski, a watchman in Carnegie for the Pennsylvania Railroad, and his wife were absent when, with a terrific roar, the explosion shook the house apart, leaving standing only the walls.

In the adjoining house, at 937 Washington street, members of two families were knocked off their feet. The second floor of this house was damaged considerably by the blast and the fire which followed.

The occupants were Ray Hill, whose face was bruised; his wife, a marathon dancer, who suffered a blackened eye; their child, Jean; Mrs. Hill's sisters, Clara and Thelma Hill; John Romanowski, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drzewnski and their son, Stanley, 14 months.

Fire Chief T. K. Martin estimated the damage at $10,000. He said the gas stove in the kitchen, which was reported to be burning, might have been the cause.

TROLLEY ROUTE SHIFT FEARED

The Pittsburgh Railways Company this week will receive a visit from a committee of the South Side Businessmen's Association, which will discuss with the officials a rumor that Carrick line No. 53 will not be routed over the Tenth Street Bridge when the structure is opened.

At yesterday's luncheon meeting of the association in South Side Presbyterian Church a committee of three was chosen. Since the building of the new bridge, two years ago, line 53 has been routed down Carson street and over the Smithfield Street Bridge. The association believes the railways company is contemplating routing the line from Carrick, through the South Hills Tunnel and over the Smithfield Street Bridge, avoiding the new Tenth Street Bridge.

The following officers were re-elected: Ben Friedland, president; Fred J. Breitweiser, vice president; George J. Lacher, treasurer, and Paul J. Bleichner, secretary. The re-elected board members are: J. C. Grau, chairman; L. William Hartlip, William Finkel and Gustave Wilde. Morris Schwartz was a newly elected member.

Solicitor Branded As Fake, Fined $10

An alleged bogus solicitor for the Volunteers of America today was fined $10 or 30 days in jail by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider in the North Side Police Station. John Lucas, 40, of 208 West Stockton avenue, was accused by Col. Frank H. Wise of soliciting funds. Col. Wise testified Lucas was not connected with the organization, although the credentials he carried had been issued to him years ago for solicitation in Cleveland. Col. Wise testified that Lucas had been wearing an old cap of the organization to further the deception. Wise said authorized solicitors are not wearing the cap.

Three 'Pirate' Lads Behind Erie Bars

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Capt. Kidd, in the person of Paul Riggs, 12, and his two jolly rovers, John Skubi, 11, and George Francis, 12, are "in port" today in an Erie jail while authorities await word from their parents or guardians. After riding all night in a boxcar the three asked a housewife for something to eat. She kept them occupied until police arrived.

Riggs and Skubi said they escaped from Father Baker's home at Lackawanna, N. Y. Francis says he is a Penobscott Indian and lives in Detroit.

Jail 2 in Burning Of Officer's House

Florence Brunner, Pittsburgh policeman, and Clyde Getz, 22, were committed to the Mercer County Jail on a charge of arson in connection with the destruction of a house owned by Brunner in Liberty Township, Mercer County, last March. Brunner had been held in the Butler state police barracks.

Marcell Williamson, 23, arrested as a suspect along with William Fletcher, 33, both farm hands, was released yesterday after questioning by state police. Fletcher was held, however, and committed to jail in default of $1,000 bail.

Candy Slot Machine Approved by Court

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Voting two to one, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that candy sales in which the buyer has a chance to get back his cent as well as receive candy are legal. The majority opinion held that the question of morals does not enter into the case.

I SEE BY TODAY'S WANT ADS

That a summer resort not far from Pittsburgh is for sale: 20 acres, shady grove, concrete bathing pool, boating and fishing.

That at Clinton, Pa., you can buy for $2,000 a 6-room bungalow with ½ acre of ground, gas, electricity, water, garage, fruit and poultry house.

That in Emsworth you will learn of 3 or 4 rooms furnished, bath, light, heat and laundry.

Now that you have read these, turn now to the want ads and learn of many other interesting and attractive propositions.

Warning Against Collector Issued

Steps were being taken today by the Better Business Bureau to block an unauthorized collection to provide food for the school children.

A man who has been approaching downtown business houses with a request for money is without authority, School Superintendent Ben G. Graham declared. A warning has been issued by R. W. Elton, general manager of the Better Business Bureau.

RIISER-LARSEN OFF FOR POLE

By CAPT. H. J. RIISER-LARSEN
Noted Norwegian Explorer of the Antarctic Regions.
Special Cable Dispatch.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Jan. 26.—All preparations for our journey into unknown Antarctic regions are completed. The Norwegian steamer Thorshavn arrived yesterday and we shall embark at once for the Antarctic continent near Enderby Land, where our 3,500-mile sledge journey of exploration will begin. Only one of our sledge dogs died on the way. All the others are in good shape despite the great heat. The ice reports are good and we are all eager to proceed on our job.

Capt. Riiser-Larsen and two companions plan to start from Enderby Land about February 7 on their long sledge journey, during which they will traverse and survey vast areas of the Antarctic coast hitherto unexplored, including Hearst Land.

Their objective is Louis Philippe Land, and many important scientific and geographical mysteries of Antarctica are expected to be solved.

North Side Man Collapses in Cell

Steve Fallen, 54, of 6 Belmont place, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital after collapsing in a cell in the North Side Police Station last night, according to police. Fallen, arrested for abusing his family, collapsed shortly after being lodged in the cell, police said.

DELAY INCREASE IN MILK PRICE

Retail milk price of 8 cents a quart today was expected to remain effective at least 30 more days with the refusal of producers to accept a new wholesale price offered by dealers.

The members of the Dairymen's Co-operative Sales Association, which negotiates prices with the dealers contracting with the group, were joined by the newly organized independent producers' group in refusing $1.55 per hundredweight on the basis of 9 cents a quart milk. A committee of the Western Pennsylvania Milk Producers' Association, composed of independents, supported the refusal. The present price is $1.30.

A conference between the producers and dealers was held yesterday in the Mayfair Hotel following a session by the producers. The producers previously had demanded $1.70, which was refused. No definite demand was made at the price conference yesterday. Dealers' representatives explained the $1.55 rate would have to be indorsed by the entire group.

North Side Man Held As Still Operator

Accused of operating a still in his home, 1014 Reedsdale street, Michael Manhanaro, 42, today was held for court, charged with violating the Snyder act, by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider.

Lieut. John Lynch testified he found a 100-gallon still, some moonshine and mash when he raided the house yesterday, following a complaint to Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh.

For Absolute Reliability

THIS is what the McCann slogan for absolute reliability means to you applied to purchases . . . it means if for any reason you are dissatisfied with anything purchased at McCanns, you may bring it in, state your complaint and receive your money back.

applied to quality . . . it means that McCanns protects you with a quality standard that is dependable and consistent!

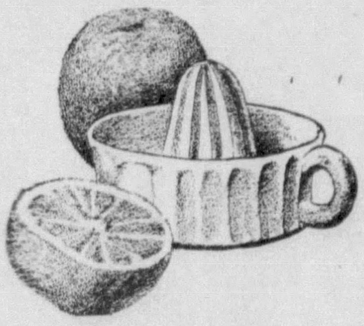
applied to prices . . . it means that you are asked to pay only fair prices consistent with McCanns quality standard.

applied to advertisements . . it means that only the truth is stated in McCanns advertisements and advertised foods (everything sold at McCanns for that matter) are everything they are said to be insofar as we are able to determine.

Save the price of expensive packaging

McCanns Favorite
COFFEE
3 lb. pkg. 50c

It is not necessary to pack Favorite Coffee in expensive vacuum containers to keep it fresh. Favorite coffee, like all McCann coffees, is roasted daily on our premises . . . enough to keep our counters well supplied. You can't buy fresher coffee anywhere.



It pays to buy these large
Juice Oranges
216 size . . . heavy with juice
2 doz. 43c

Drink a glass of orange juice every day for your health's sake. It's not an expensive habit when you buy big oranges. There's a lot of juice in one of these 216s.

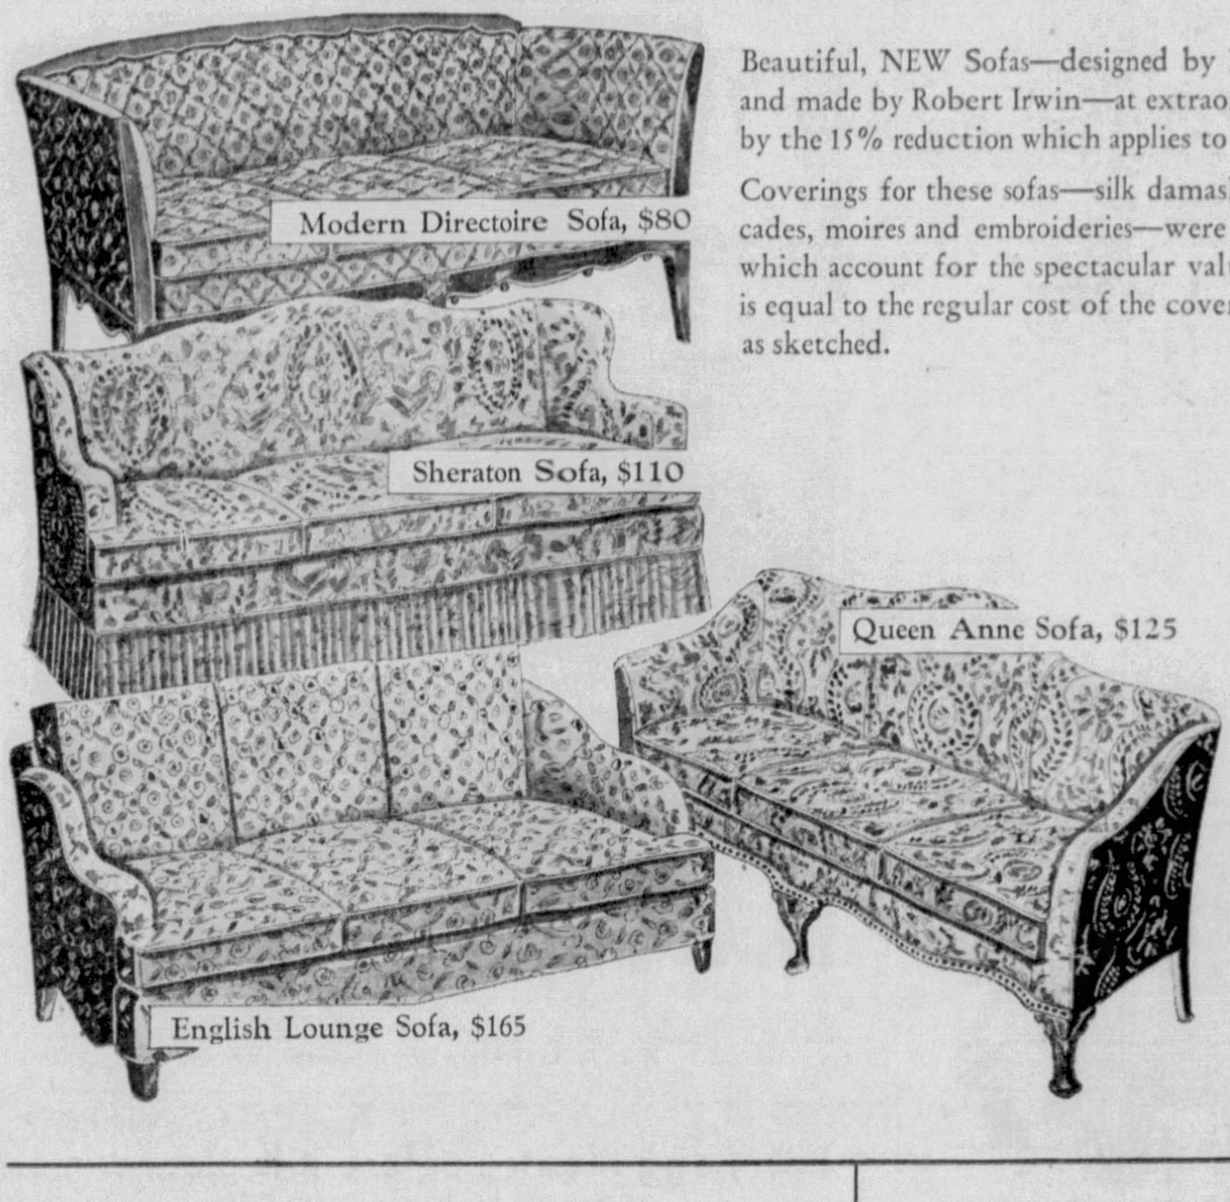
Irwin Sofas

In the February Furniture Sale—

$80 $110 $125 $165

Four Remarkably Low-Priced Groups



Beautiful, NEW Sofas—designed by Ernest Cooper and J. Stuart Clingman, and made by Robert Irwin—at extraordinarily low prices, made still lower by the 15% reduction which applies to all Horne furniture during February.

Coverings for these sofas—silk damasks, velvets, brocatelles, tapestries, brocades, moires and embroideries—were secured at practically give-away prices which account for the spectacular values. In some cases the cost of the sofas is equal to the regular cost of the coverings alone. There are four styles—as sketched.

Make Selections Now

Selections made now will be charged and delivered February 1st when the sale starts. But make your choice now!—the selection is limited and because of the unusual values we cannot possibly duplicate these sofas at these prices!

Irwin Chairs that can be correctly correlated with these sofas may be selected in semi-lounge and lounge models at $39.50 and $59.50.

For the First Time—A Two-Day Sale of

Men's Banister Shoes

Regularly $10

To spur more men to put Banisters on their feet—to learn the custom-like appearance and feel of these vastly superior shoes, we offer for two days, unrestricted choice of our entire stock at this decided saving.

Banister was started 88 years ago—four years before this store was founded—and, like Horne's, has progressed because the business was built on the solid foundation of quality. What has been learned about good shoe-making in that time is reflected in their fineness of leathers, excellent workmanship, distinctive style, and comfort.

Eight models, in black and brown calf, answer every preference as to style. All sizes are available.

make—is to ask the Supreme Court to review the case.

If this request is refused—and even the refusal will take time—the Mayor then may return to Butler and ask for a new trial. Judge Finletter once refused it, but the consensus of legal opinion is that he may reinstate this motion.

If he grants a new trial, months may elapse before it gets under way.

WOULD APPEAL SENTENCE

But even if the Judge sentences the Mayor—a sentence which automatically removes him from office—the Mayor's attorneys are believed to have the right to appeal. Such an appeal would have to be based on grounds not previously argued.

The Superior Court's reversal was a victory for District Attorney Andrew T. Park, but the prosecutor's only comment was his customary:

"I have nothing to say."

In his native Philadelphia, however, Judge Finletter varied the language:

"You can quote me as being silent."

The Superior Court's decision in reversing Judge Finletter was unanimous. The opinion was written by Judge William M. Parker, of Venango County.

Judge Parker failed to see the inconsistency which Judge Finletter gave as his reason for tossing out of court the guilty verdict returned against the Mayor last May in Butler.

FINLETTER'S REASONING

The inconsistency to Finletter was that on one count the jury acquitted the Mayor of the charge of illegally purchasing trucks for the city, but that on another count it convicted him for paying for the trucks—bought from Henry Braun.

The paragraph from the Superior Court opinion which justifies what to Judge Finletter constituted an "inconsistency" follows:

"When the jury replied not guilty to the fourth count, [involving the truck purchase] they did not find that ALL the necessary elements in that were not proved but only that the necessary elements were not ALL proved."

There was one other person who declined to comment on the court's decision yesterday. That was Senator James J. Coyne, who was in Philadelphia at the time attending the funeral of the mother of Auditor General Charles A. Waters.

Succop and Kline were convicted last May in Butler of malfeasance charges based on charges of favoritism in the awarding of city contracts totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars.

COURT'S OPINION UPHOLDING KLINE CONVICTION

The opinion on the Kline reversal, written by Judge William M. Parker:

"The learned judge who presided in the lower court in his opinion filed in support of the order says: 'It is plain that the verdicts in the two counts are contradictory. In the fourth the jury found the defendant innocent of entering into a willfully illegal contract. In the fifth they found he had entered into such a contract. Indeed, into the same contract, and add that having done so, he paid for the goods. The two findings cannot be reconciled. It is no answer that the fifth count contains additional charges, to wit, that the defendant issued an order and that he paid for the goods before delivery. It would have been an answer if these additional charges had been averred without reference to the illegality of the contract. But they are averred in such a way as to be interwoven with illegality of the contract.'

EXPLAINS INDICTMENTS

"The two counts under consideration each charge the common law offense of misdemeanor in office. Wharton, in his work on Criminal Law (10th ed.) Volume 2, Section 1568, said: 'It is clear that when the law imposes on an individual a ministerial office, then not only is disobedience to the requirements of that law in respect to such office indictable, but an indictment lies for such willful or negligent misconduct in such office as works injury to the public, or to an individual. For mere error of judgment, however, no indictment lies, unless for an act made specially indictable by statute irrespective of intent.' See Com. vs. Rosser, 102 Pa. Super. Ct. 78.

"The gravamen of the fourth count was the willful making of an illegal contract of purchase of certain trucks with one Braun—illegal in that it involved more than $500—was not let after advertisement and competitive bidding, and to the lowest bidder, and was not in writing. The gravamen of the fifth count, as far as concerns the defendant Kline, was the willful lending, advancing, and paying out of the funds of the City of Pittsburgh to the amount of $5,000 and signing and approving of the warrant in connection with this same illegal contract of purchase. It is true that the same illegal act, to-wit, the failure to comply with statutory requirements as to advertisement, etc., was involved in and an essential part of both counts.

CHARGES SEPARATE

"Separate offenses were charged in each of these counts, in the one case the willful making of an illegal contract of purchase, and in the other the willful paying out of funds of the city. The failure to comply with the statutory requirements as to advertisements, etc., was a violation of statutory laws: Acts of May 23, 1874, P. L. 230, Sec. 6; 53 Purdon, Par. 282; March 7, 1901, P. L. 20, Art. 15, Sec. 1, as amended by Act of May 11, 1911, P. L. 238; 53 Purdon, Par. 9531, 9532, and 9535. The requirements in the statutes referred to and with which we are concerned are mandatory, which makes the violation of them an illegal act: Com. vs. Rosser, supra; Kratz vs. Allentown, 304 Pa. 51; Com. ex rel. vs. Jones, 283 Pa. 582; Smith vs. Philadelphia, 227 Pa. 423. The purpose of these mandatory provisions is to prevent fraud and favoritism: Harris vs. Philadelphia, 238 Pa. 496; Hinkle vs. Philadelphia, 214 Pa. 126.

"Insofar as these failures to comply with the statutory law were concerned, it would have been proper for the trial court to have said to the jury that if they found that the contract had been made without complying with these provisions of the law, such act was illegal as a matter of law, and it was then for them to determine, as to the fourth count, whether the making of the contract was done willfully, and as to the fifth count whether the money was paid willfully. It was just as much a violation of the positive duty of the Mayor to pay out the funds of the city upon an illegal contract as it was to contract for the same. 'It shall be the duty of the Mayor to cause the ordinances of the city and the laws of the state to be executed and enforced': Act March 7, 1901, P. L. 20, Article I, Section 1, as amended by Act of May 1, 1923, P. L. 122, Section 1; 53 Purdon, Par. 8387.

BACKS PROSECUTOR

"In fact, the point at which the city was seriously harmed and prejudiced was when the payment was made. In preparing the indictment, the district attorney very properly treated the entire transaction as one that was void and illegal and then charged the defendant with particular phases of misconduct connected therewith. The jury might not have been satisfied that the conduct of the defendant was willful until with his assistance the funds of the city were actually disbursed and the municipality thereby injured. There was much to lead them to the conclusion at which they arrived, for apparently the sum of $5,000 was advanced or paid without receipt of the trucks.

"Viewing the matter from another standpoint, it is apparent that there was not any inconsistency in the verdicts on the fourth and fifth counts. The verdicts on these counts are not to be held to be inconsistent unless the jury in reaching its verdict of acquittal on the fourth count necessarily found not proved some essential element in the fifth count. When the jury replied 'Not guilty' to the fourth count, they did not find that all the necessary elements in that count were not proved, but only that the necessary elements were not all proved. It is, therefore, impossible to say that the verdicts are inconsistent.

"The order arresting judgment as to the defendant Kline is reversed and the record remitted with a procedendo."

SUCCOP OPINION

The opinion in the Succop case, also written by Judge Parker:

"The judgment is affirmed and the record remitted to the court below. It is ordered that the defendant appear in the court below at such time as he may be there called, as that he be by that court committed until he has complied with the sentence or any part of it which has not been performed at the time the appeal in this case was made a supersedeas."

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite; a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.

QUICKEST WAY TO KNOCK COLDS

Feel Like A New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system and you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now for a few cents. Way it works will surprise you.

CAPONE DENIAL ON RECORD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A blanket denial by Warden A. C. Aderhold that Al Capone has received any special favors or treatment from Federal officials at the Atlanta Penitentiary was inserted in the Congressional record yesterday by Representative Oliver (Dem.), of Alabama.

The letter, addressed by Warden Aderhold to Sanford Bates, Director of Prisons, concluded with the paragraph:

"Capone, during his incarceration in this institution, has had no special favors not granted all other first-grade prisoners. It was made clear to me by officials in Washington, at the time Capone was committed to this penitentiary, that he could have absolutely no favors or special privileges not granted other prisoners and these instructions have been carried out."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Beware the 'Captain of the Men of Death'

Dr. Copeland

This is the time of year when pneumonia earns its title, "Captain of the men of death." Though great advance has been made in the treatment of pneumonia during recent years, no definite cure has as yet been discovered.

Pneumonia is a disease which may occur in any season. It respects neither age nor sex and may be fatal in the very young and the aged.

I am quite sure there would be fewer cases of pneumonia if we guarded against colds and infections. Most cases of pneumonia, particularly broncho-pneumonia, can be traced to neglect of the common cold.

Never allow yourself to become chilled. Bear in mind that when the body is warm and the skin is moist, as they get after exertion, it is easy to become chilled. Never sit on a cold surface or in a draft when you are overheated. If you pass from a warm room to the cold outside air, be sure you are properly clothed.

Chilling of any part of the body, excessive fatigue, lack of sleep and nourishment, lower the resistance to infection. If we hope to prevent pneumonia, great care should be taken to avoid overexertion and exposure to cold and dampness.

Since real pneumonia is contagious and spreads rapidly by contact, it is important to avoid crowded and poorly ventilated places. A person afflicted with pneumonia should be isolated and avoided by all who are not compelled to be near him.

Pneumonia is a serious infection which is easier to prevent than to cure. If you have a cold do not slight it. Neglect may lead to pneumonia and render you liable to many unnecessary dangers. If you have a persistent cough, pain in the chest, difficulty in breathing and fever, go to bed and call your doctor.

I can think of nothing better than to give you a few suggestions. Observe them carefully if you are anxious to prevent this serious disease. Here they are:

Keep your rooms well ventilated and at a temperature of 70 to 72 degrees. Avoid dry heat, drafts, excessive heat and chilling.

Whenever possible, breathe deeply of the pure outdoor air. Avoid dust, dirt and smoke. Your diet should be simple, nourishing and eaten at regular hours. Obtain eight hours of sleep every day. Dress seasonably and sanely.

Correct any tendency toward constipation. To this end drink six to eight glasses of water daily.

Though scientific research has increased our knowledge of pneumonia, there still remain many unsolved problems regarding this disease. It is hoped that as our knowledge is widened, we will be able to prevent the disease and thus save the many lives that are now sacrificed to pneumonia. Until then, the number of fatalities can be greatly reduced by watchful care of the health.

Early recognition of the disease, as I said, is of vital importance. If you are in doubt call the doctor at once.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Initials on Linens

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I have recently been married and I would like to have my linens monogrammed. Before marriage the first initial in my last name was K, and my married initial is K also. My first name is Betty. Should I use B. K. K.?

2—Is it proper, when placing two initials on a tablecloth, to separate the B and K, placing them diagonally on the cloth, for instance about fifteen inches from each end?

3—Is machine monogramming proper or should the initials be done by hand?

K.

1—The monogram that a married woman should use when embroidering her linens is composed of the initial of her first name, the initial of the last name of her maiden name, and the initial of the last name of her married name.

If "Betty" is your real first name, then the first initial would be B .... But if, as is usually the case, Betty is a nickname for Elizabeth, then the first initial would be E. The second initial would be K, for the last name of your maiden name. And the third initial would be K, for the last name of your married name.

2—It is correct to place the initials together, not separate them.

3—The initials should be hand-embroidered.

TUBE CITY DEBT TO BE PAID

County Commissioner C. M. Barr, the county's "bill collector," will be able to chalk up another collected item from the city of McKeesport within a few weeks.

McKeesport owes the county $105,000 and interest for several years, as its share toward the building of the Duquesne-McKeesport Bridge. A conference was held two weeks ago with officials of McKeesport and it was agreed the money would be paid. The State Department of Internal Affairs yesterday approved a bond issue of $130,000 for McKeesport, from returns of which the bill will be paid.

Barr was named a committee of one to adjust municipal debts to the county. To date he has brought about settlements amounting to more than $2,500,000.

Hunting birds with a sound-camera is the subject of a talk by O. H. Caldwell, president of the New York Electrical Society, on WCAE at 6:45 p. m. During the broadcast, one of a series on "Better Radio Reception," Caldwell puts on the air "sound photographs" of various bird calls.

Richard Halliburton, young author and adventurer, chats about some of his thrilling experiences in the African jungles when he appears as guest star with Abe Lyman and his band on WJAS at 8:45 tonight.

The true story of a noted musician who attempted to give a concert in one of the old Nevada mining camps is dramatized during "Death Valley Days" on KDKA at 9.

A series of talks by Robert L. Wickline, tax consultant, on "How to File Your Income Tax" opens on KDKA at 10:15 tonight.

Much excitement is promised in the forthcoming episodes of "Maud and Cousin Bill" . . .

Wagner Cycle Starts on WCAE

The annual Wagner Matinee Cycle, an outstanding event of the Metropolitan Opera season, will be presented over nation-wide NBC networks, including WCAE, in six weekly broadcasts beginning tomorrow at 3:15 p. m.

The cycle, to be heard in addition to the regular Saturday afternoon series now on the air from the Metropolitan Opera House, will open with the four music dramas of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" and close with "Tannhauser" and "Tristan und Isolde" in the following order: "Rheingold," January 27; "Die Valkure," February 2; Siegfried," February 9; "Gotterdammerung," February 17; "Tannhauser," February 22, and "Tristan und Isolde," March 3.

Uncle Bob Reads Comics to Betty

A quarter-hour of fun is listed for WCAE dialers at 6 o'clock tonight when loquacious Betty and her jovial Uncle Bob read the Sun-Telegraph comic page.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, relays the latest news flashes over WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. His schedule tomorrow is the same, with the exception of the 2:15 broadcast, carried by WCAE only.

Amos 'n' Andy To Add Girls To Cast

Flash! . . . Amos 'n' Andy, going in for more realism, say they want a real live Madame Queen and a Ruby Taylor who can talk instead of being talked about and so are auditioning gals with Southern drawls for the roles. So far the contestants who have shown symptoms of eligibility are Glenna Glover, Lavenia Jones, Suzanne Melick, Edna Morisette and Mary Boyd Saunders, all of Elizabeth City, N. J. . . . Meanwhile, Radio's first "battle of the femmes" is in the offing. Jane Froman, who's been disagreeing with NBC in Chicago and who terminates her Midwest commercial in two weeks, is in New York and probably will go with CBS—which means a professional contest with Irene Taylor, another Chi contralto.

Miss Froman

The motion picture version of a recent installment of "Secrets of the French Police," H. Ashton-Wolfe's article appearing serially in the American Weekly, starring Gregory Ratoff in the leading role, is to be the feature at the Davis and Regent theaters for a week beginning Saturday. Next Sunday's installment is being broadcast currently under the title, "The Wolf of Paris."

Fred Waring, as forecast here a few days ago, has signed with that cigaret sponsor who first put Whiteman on the air . . . and although it's undecided as to who the featured comic shall be Jack Benny is out front. J. P. Medbury, Joe Cook and Harry Richman also have been auditioned.

Little Jack Little, who introduces a new song from his own pen each Sunday night, suddenly realized the other Sunday a. m. that he'd overlooked the matter of writing one that week . . . and spent most of the day working on "When You're Sixty and Feel Like Sweet Sixteen."

American Weekly Dramas on Air

The chilling underworld drama from the next issue of the American Weekly, "The Wolf of Paris," starring Howard Smith and Elizabeth Day, is broadcast by KQV at 3:30, WWSW at 4, WJAC, Johnstown, at 5, and WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va., at 5:30 today.

"The Kiss of Death," the second of this week's American Weekly dramatizations, with Ruth Fallowes, Broadway actress, portraying the leading role, is offered on WFBG, Altoona, at 3, and WKBN, Youngstown, O., at 9 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter Of the Sun-Telegraph-Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Tomorrow the cup of joy overflows for Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thomas, of Homewood. Surrounded by over 50 members of their family, they celebrate their eightieth birthdays and their sixty-third wedding anniversary. The fifth generation will be represented by 2-year-old Nancy Jane Watkins and her 4-month-old brother, Glenn, and Shirley Ann Rice, two months old.

Members of the family from New York, Johnstown, Sharon and Homestead will congregate at the West Homestead home of daughter Mrs. Bernard Green. In all of this big family not one death has occurred.

Oliver W. Moore, West Newton, sends in this actual school-room episode.

Teacher—Johnnie, go to the back of the room and bring that globe to my desk.

Johnnie—I'm no globe trotter.

It's a good thing Mrs. Jack Lewis has a strong nervous system. It was called upon the other day to withstand a tremendous shock. While nonchalantly sorting her cards during the evening game, she suddenly, breathlessly realized that she was holding 13 spades. Ordinarily never speechless, she couldn't utter a sound. With a marvelous display of self-control she finally conquered a desire to bid no trump and to her husband's premature dismay managed to say seven spades. Her opponents were Grethen Maloney and Dale Adam. These dream hands are being dealt in Canonsburg.

Complaint from B. M. F. for commenting that Helen Kane looked a trifle heavier in her recently published engagement picture. She writes: "She may be a trifle fat but who ever hears of a fat old maid?"

* * *

Words of praise from Matty, who also believes that the boy friend is "on the spot" when a stranger to him walks over to his girl at a dance, gains her acquiescence for the next waltz and then turns to the escort and politely inquires:

"Do you mind?"

Matty asks:

"Why should a handsome moron chisel, or muscle, in on your girl friend to catch a date or a telephone number?"

Smith and Rowand To Be Vets' Guests

Judges Ralph H. Smith and Harry H. Rowand will be guests of honor at a barbecue being held tonight by the Kletzly Egli Post No. 441, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the Eagles Hall, Verona.

$3 worth of protection for $1 if you use Pepsodent Antiseptic

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

IT DIDN'T take the public long to figure out the difference between Pepsodent Antiseptic and other leading kinds. Common sense said, "Here's the difference between one dollar and three dollars...the difference between positively killing germs and being fooled when diluting old-style antiseptics."

Two kinds of antiseptics

Most mouth antiseptics kill germs only when used full strength. But Pepsodent Antiseptic is powerful enough even when diluted with 2 parts of water to kill germs in 10 seconds! Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. It goes 3 times as far—gives you 3 times as much for your money—and gives you greater protection against sore throat colds.

Use Pepsodent for safety

Millions who once diluted ordinary antiseptics now discover their mistake. Be sure you choose the antiseptic that, even when mixed with water, kills germs. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—be sure! Be safe...and save your money!

IMPURE BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

Some of the 50 different uses for this modern antiseptic

Sore Throat Colds, Head Colds, Smoker's Throat, Bad Breath, Mouth Irritations, Irritations of the Gums, After Extractions, Tired, Aching Feet, Cuts and Abrasions, After Shaving, Chapped Hands, Dandruff, Skin Irritations, Checks Under-Arm Perspiration Odor, "Athlete's Foot"

SLUMP!

Old-fashioned Bessie! A date she wants to keep, but her periodic pain keeps her home! Some girls still suffer in silence. They haven't learned to block such pain with Midol. This discovery of the specialists is not a mere measure of relief; it ends the pain. Taken in time, not one symptom of pain is felt. If the pains have caught you unaware, Midol will banish them in a few minutes. Think of it! No need, now, to let nature interfere with one's work or social engagements. Take a tiny tablet of Midol and forget the time of month! And it's not a narcotic. Any druggist has the little box of ten tablets to slip in purse or pocket. Simply ask for Midol.

Faith Is the Best Medicine For a Sick Spirit

Can a "bad girl" come back?

Maybe you don't think so. Perhaps you believe that "once a tramp, always a tramp." If you do, you won't be alone.

Plenty of people have written this department calling us mean names for holding out a hand to some desperate kid who has taken the wrong turning, but before you join the anvil chorus, listen!

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I've often wanted to write to you, but until now I have restrained that impulse. Your article on girl's coming back, however, has touched me very personally. It has done so because I am on my "way back," and I am so thankful to everyone who says or writes an encouraging word on this subject, that I must say so to you.

I feel so grateful to people who will believe in a girl who is trying to make good, and you don't know how great is my own desire to justify such faith.

I have been fortunate. First, I had a wonderful mother. And now I have an understanding and devoted husband, who has helped me constantly to learn to put my mistake behind me, to put aside and gradually forget the tragedy and sorrow that had threatened my health and sanity.

I had never intended marrying, after I made my misstep, and had entirely avoided the opposite sex, until my husband came along. When I realized that the beautiful friendship that existed between us had developed into love I was terrified, for more than anything in the world I wanted to save him from unhappiness. So I told him my story, thinking it would kill his love then and there.

GRATEFUL FOR FAITH

But he simply turned it into a stronger argument for our marriage. He said that he wanted, more than ever, to love and protect me, and that he would spend his life helping me to forget. And he has given me such love and devotion that that other life is gradually slipping into the shadows, as though it had never been.

And now just a word for those unbelievers who doubt the ability of a girl to come back. Give her a chance, and if she has the right stuff in her she will lay down her life trying to be worthy of your faith.

She will be true, for she has been through hell before.

She will sing over her tasks, and they will not be mere drudgery to her, for there will be a great thankfulness in her heart that God has given her a chance—another opportunity to "make good."

Her heart will be full of thankfulness for the children God has given her, and her life will be spent trying to be a good wife and mother.

NEED ENCOURAGEMENT

This is a picture of my life. And sometimes I can almost feel thankful for even that terrible experience, because it taught me so much, even if it did seem to be the very end of things for me when it happened, and because now the most ordinary things reveal themselves to me as the most worth-while, the most wonderful things in life.

And I say God bless anyone who will believe in a girl who is trying to live down a mistake like I made, and get back to normal. Such a girl needs faith and a word of encouragement. Don't give her a kick instead.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Well, there's the story, stranger. What do you think of it? Does it sound as if erring girls weren't worth a second chance? Not if I know my humans.

It's just another beautiful proof that the best medicine for a sick spirit is faith.

What do you need when you've made a mistake, partner? A scolding? A sermon? Some mean remarks, rubbing it in? No, you don't. You want someone to believe in you, someone to love you, someone to bet that you'll make good in spite of your blunder.

Then give that love and faith to the other fellow when he's down.

"Do unto others," when they've made a mess of things, "as you would have others do unto you."

Breakfast Quarrel Can Ruin the Whole Day, Declares Fay King

By FAY KING

To quarrel during any meal is not only unpleasant, but dangerous. To eat when one is angry or riled causes indigestion. Acute indigestion often proves fatal.

Especially not to quarrel at breakfast should head all beauty hints and rules for success in business.

To start the day wrong will have bad results. A husband will be a grouch at the office, making poor decisions. A wife will go about her household duties in that ill humor which hatches unbecoming wrinkles.

No one is at his best in the early morning, and the first meal should be eaten in calm quiet.

Let a husband enjoy his morning paper in silent content. Let a wife read also, or think over her plans for the day.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Principle of Defense

One of the highest compliments that can be paid a Bridge player is to say that, when playing the defending side, he obtains every trick possible with his cards. There are few, even among acknowledged experts, who are so adept at the drawing of inferences and the reading of distribution through the leads that they do not occasionally slop a trick, which permits the making of a contract.

One of the strongest defensive players in the United States as well as a brilliant Dummy player, is Mr. Ralph R. Richards, formerly of Detroit, but who now makes his home in Los Angeles. A brilliant example of his defensive tactics occurred in the hand below, in which he was the partner of Mr. R. R. Mabie, vice president of the American Whist League. The game was played at the Hollywood Bridge Club in Los Angeles in a Duplicate contest. Mr. Richards sat North, and Mr. Mabie, South.

West—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 7 6 2 ♡ A J 3 ◇ 10 7 2 ♣ A Q 6 3
♠ K 9 3 ♡ K Q 6 ◇ K Q 4 3 ♣ K 7 5	North West East South	♠ A J 10 5 4 ♡ 10 9 4 ◇ 9 ♣ J 10 9 4
	♠ Q 8 ♡ 8 7 5 2 ◇ A J 8 6 5 ♣ 8 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
	1 NT	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

The hand is one of minor importance in a Rubber Bridge game, but in Duplicate Bridge, scored on the match-point basis, each hand has the same significance as any other. Perhaps this is one of the chief values of Duplicate, inasmuch as it drives home the lesson that we must always use to the utmost our trick-taking power and that no trick is ever insignificant.

South's Opening lead was the club 8, the top of a doubleton suit. North won with the Queen, laid down the Ace, and returned a third club, giving South a ruff. South then chose as his next lead a heart. The Queen was played from Dummy, and Mr. Richards here made the play which caused the writing of this article. He did not win the trick, but instead played the trey. Three rounds of spades followed. The Declarer thereby picked up the adverse trumps, and then led his singleton diamond toward the Dummy. South won with the Ace, led another heart, and North now reaped the benefit of his defensive strategy. Two tricks in hearts were cashed, which, with the diamond trick, the 2 club tricks and the ruff, defeated the Declarer 1 trick.

It may be interesting for the reader to study the method of defensive play here outlined. It is, of course, obvious that with the heart suit now established, the one losing heart in Dummy's hand would be discarded on the established diamonds.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North-South are vulnerable and have a part-score of 60 points. North deals and bids two notrump. What should South respond with the following hand?

♠ 9 6 ♡ J 5 3 2 ◇ Q 10 8 7 3 ♣ 4 2

Answer—South should pass, as the hand contains less than 1 honor-trick and North's Opening bid is sufficient for game. Furthermore, if a three diamond bid was made, there would be great danger that North would raise in an attempt to reach a Slam contract.

Hints for the Household

To clean oil paintings, rub a freshly cut slice of potato dampened in cold water over the picture. Wipe off the lather with a damp sponge and finish with lukewarm water. Dry and polish with a piece of old silk. The surface should then be rubbed over with a flannel slightly dampened with good quality linseed oil. Very little oil should be used; this will be sufficient to preserve the paint, but will not be sufficient to attract dust.

Everyone is familiar with the appetizing relish of celery stuffed with pimiento or cream cheese, but you will find an equally delicious stuffing in a good, rich peanut butter. The flavor of the crisp, fresh celery, combined with rich peanut butter is a pleasant surprise to all who try it.

Grease stains on whitewashed walls can be removed with a paste of fuller's earth. Or a more simple and effective method is to wash the stains with a solution of caustic soda, to the proportion of four ounces to one quart of water. Apply this with a thick cloth, taking care not to immerse the hands. Rinse the walls thoroughly with cold water. This method is suitable only for whitewash, and must not be used for colored washes.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Praised and Scolded by Husband

"I don't think he was a moonshiner, or that he had any interest in revenue agents," I said slowly. "I think he was pretending to be an ignorant mountaineer."

"That one word 'Scram!' would cinch that," Dicky said. "That was the last word he said, wasn't it?"

"Yes, it seemed to be an afterthought."

"It's where he slipped up," Harry Underwood commented. "He was quite within the picture until then. A gangster or an ordinary cheap criminal would say 'Scram!' but not one of those hill-billies of the Jersey hinterlands. They haven't learned any new words since Washington crossed the Deleware."

"What about his voice?" Lillian struck in. "The way you reproduced it, there was something forced, a bit theatrical, in it, and I've seen your memory and mimicry at work too often not to know that you must have him down pat."

"I think the voice was forced and theatrical," I agreed. "My whole impression of the man was that he was acting a role."

"Then I, for one, will bank on his being something else than a moonshiner," Harry Underwood said emphatically. "Which leads us to another conclusion. Do you realize, folks, that Mrs. Madge here may have found the trail to the hideout where the girls are being kept?"

PAID TRIBUTE

"It has occurred to me," Dicky said dryly, "and, while she ought to be shot at sunrise for turning the trick, it's ten to one she has turned it. What about it, old dear?" He turned to me abruptly. "Can you draw a map of the road you took tonight, with all of the cross roads you didn't take marked, so that they can't be mistaken for the real thing?"

"That's a tall order," Harry Underwood deprecated.

"Not too tall for mein frau if she had her memory in working order," Dicky said, and I thrilled to the tribute as if it were given for something creditable I had done, instead of being a recognition of my uncanny memory, for which I am in no wise responsible. It always has been an unexplained gift, and it was fostered by my mother.

"I think I can give you a fairly accurate map," I said, and almost before I had finished the words, Mary had unfolded a card table before me and spread out paper and pencils.

COMPLETES MAP

For the next few minutes I charted the route Ronald and I had taken, while the others, knowing my dislike of having anyone near me when I work, withdrew to the other end of the room. I knew vaguely from overhearing part of their low-toned colloquy that they were discussing Samuel Brixton, but my first real knowledge of what they were saying came as I marked upon the map before me the stile that had ended our journey, and put down my pencil with the knowledge that my task, whether worth anything or not, was completed.

"If he isn't involved it seems awful to leave him up there in the power of those—" Lillian's voice trailed away as if she could find no epithet strong enough to describe the kidnapers, who, according to her evident belief, were responsible for the attack upon Samuel Brixton.

"But what else can we do, Lil?" Dicky argued. "We can't risk the safety of the girls in order to rescue this fellow, who, if he isn't guilty of helping in this thing, is so tarred with it that he'll have to have a long session with a dry cleaner before he's presentable again. We have enough of a job on our hands today without worrying over Brixton. Ah, there, Madge; map finished? Let's have a look."

He scanned the map I had drawn carefully, and then struck his hand against it.

"That's the one part of the terrain I didn't make yesterday," he said. "I'll bet when I go over it today I'll find that lake and tree Marion described. Maybe I'm wrong, but I've got a hunch, Lil, that we're nearly out of the woods."

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Take out your furs in the evening, even marten scarfs being used for formal wear. Buy a straight-line, untrimmed, collarless evening coat, preferably of a more substantial velvet, such as Lyons weave. This will be grand with your furs or fur cape.

A double life is permitted the nicest frocks. A double-duty frock of black silk crepe with a separate guimpe of pleated white marquisette changes its identity when worn with a long-sleeved jacket of the silk crepe, that buttons all the way up the back with tiny rhinestone and pearl buttons.

GOOD WITH GRAVIES

DEADLOCK NEAR ON VITAL BILLS IN ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The 1933 Legislature, carried along by its initial burst of speed, is slowing down for the crossroads.

Preliminaries have been swept aside and the interlude of political sparring has begun.

Veteran legislators who view the situation from an economic standpoint — reduced state expenses, lower taxes, unemployment relief —assert the lawmakers are confronted with four possible solutions:

1—To transfer the unemployment relief burden from the state to the counties and municipalities;

2—Divert motor license fund money to the general fund for relief and other general state expenses;

3—Enact new taxes, and

4—Adopt Gov. Pinchot's plan of increasing collections of present taxes by centralizing the collection of inheritance, personal property and mercantile levies under the Department of Revenue.

OLD PROPOSALS

None of these solutions is new, and at least two were considered and rejected by the 1932 special session.

Diversion of motor funds was defeated in the House last year, and new taxes were rejected, one by one, until the emergency sales tax was accepted as a last-resort measure in a hopeless deadlock.

Now all factions are committed to the policy of no new taxes, and revenue measures are conspicuous by their absence.

Further attempts to divert motor funds are expected. Those likely to attract the heaviest support would increase the percentage of the gasoline returned to counties or to cities and other municipalities. Over all of them, however, hangs the threat of a gubernatorial veto, in a session where most factional leaders concede it would be impossible to override executive disapproval.

OPPOSED BY CITIES

Transfer of unemployment relief to municipalities has been discussed. Speaker Grover C. Talbot mentioned it last week, but in a tentative manner. Advocates of the plan see in it an answer to the state problem, while opponents assert it would merely shift an immense burden from one shoulder to another. Many legislators, particularly in the House, assert Philadelphia and Allegheny delegations would provide a serious obstacle for this plan.

The Pinchot plan, as one upstate member of the House describes it, is "economically the most practical" but "politically inexpedient." The Governor declares it would produce $35,000,000 more revenue for the state from present taxes, save the same amount for local taxpayers and finance $20,000,000 state unemployment relief.

Meanwhile the Democrats, 65 strong and a potential controlling factor in the House, have been ominously silent.

Seasoned leaders predict the waning days of the session will witness a union of Democrats and independent Republicans which will control the House. Should this develop, they contend, the Republican organization in the Senate would face the alternatives of going along on House-approved legislation or having the session end in a deadlock.

The ultimate result of a nonproductive regular session, most legislators agree, would be another special session which would carry nearer to the 1934 gubernatorial year the factional disputes which now impend.

N. J. Chief Justice Dies in His Sleep

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 28.—(INS.)—Chief Justice William S. Gummere of the New Jersey Supreme Court died today in his sleep at St. Barnabas' Hospital. He was 80 years old.

He had been ill a little more than a week. What seemed to be a case of grippe developed into pneumonia and pleurisy.

New Castle P. O. Wage Parley Fails

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 26.—A conference called today by Miss Emmelinne Pitt, of the United States Department of Labor, to settle the minimum wage rate for laborers on the new postoffice here was unable to reach a decision. The Keutsche Company, of Detroit, general contractors, failed to send a representative and Miss Pitt refused to deal with J. H. Eliscu, representative of the Harris Wrecking Company, of Chicago, a sub-contractor. Forty cents an hour is required by the government, according to Miss Pitt, and the Harris Company has been paying 25 cents, it is said.

New Antiseptic by Vicks Saves Half Usual Costs

Born in a Depression Year—and Priced Accordingly —It Brings Tremendous Savings to Every User of a Daily Mouthwash and Gargle.

NEW BAN ON HALITOSIS

Local Druggists Now Offering a Special Trial Size—A 25c Value for Only 10c, While Supply Lasts.

The makers of Vicks VapoRub have now produced an antiseptic. It is called Vicks Voratone Antiseptic. No extravagant claims are made for it. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce. And they were aided by the chemists, bacteriologists, and pharmacologists of their 16 allied organizations in America, England, and Germany.

In most American families, such an antiseptic is now considered a daily necessity—for halitosis (bad breath), oral hygiene, and other antiseptic uses. That a gargle and mouth wash — guaranteed by the Vicks name and reputation—can be had now, at actually less than half the usual cost, is welcome news to millions of people.

Vicks Antiseptic has this unique advantage. Born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly. Aided by record low prices on raw materials—and Vicks facilities for mass production—Vicks Chemists were able to produce a large 10-ounce bottle—a usual 75c value—that is priced regularly at only 35c.

Vicks Voratone is a balanced antiseptic. Mild enough to be used daily without risk to delicate membranes. Strong enough to do everything an oral antiseptic can and should do. It is designed for all the customary uses of an antiseptic mouth wash and gargle—to be used in the customary way.

Unusual Trial Offer

Of course, the only real proof of its quality—and its economy—is actual use. To furnish such proof, the makers have supplied druggists with five million bottles of a special trial size at less than cost of manufacture. Each bottle contains 2½ ounces—a 25c value. The price to you—while the supply lasts—is only 10c.

ILLUSION:

In this startling trick, the magician seemingly pushes a huge threaded needle through the body of an assistant, pulling the needle out the other side, followed by the thread.

EXPLANATION:

Under the clothes of the victim is a pipe, extending around one side of his body from front to back. The needle, which is flexible, is inserted in the front end of the pipe, is carried around the body and emerges from the pipe in back. This operation is performed so quickly that the audience does not notice that the needle and thread are momentarily shortened during the act.

CAMELS

It's fun to be fooled— ...it's more fun to KNOW

We like tricks...but we prefer to keep them out of business.

Here's one that's interesting...The illusion that by some obscure magic certain cigarettes are "COOLER" than others.

THE EXPLANATION: Coolness is determined by the speed of burning. Fresh cigarettes burn slowly. They're cool. Parched, dry cigarettes burn fast. They're hot.

Camels are carefully wrapped in moisture-proof cellophane...in the famous air-tight Humidor Pack. Camels are cool because they're fresh and full of natural moisture.

A cigarette blended from choice non-irritating tobaccos also gives a cooler effect than one that is harsh and acrid. The finer the tobacco the less irritating it is, and therefore the "cooler."

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

This is why Camels are cool and mild, non-irritating—full of flavor. This is why Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made. It's the tobacco that counts.

Keep the famous welded Humidor Pack on your Camels. It assures you a fresh, cool smoke.

CLUBWOMEN AID AT COOKING CLASSES

Memorial Hall today was the scene of the second class of the Kroger Foundation Cooking School and Food Institute, with another throng on hand. Some 2,300 women braved yesterday's rain to enjoy the first presentation of the lectures and exhibits.

Helen Watts Schrieber, nationally-known lecturer and food expert, who conducts the school, was being introduced today by Mrs. Paul Howe, newly appointed chairman of the home for the southwestern district of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women.

Mrs. Saul Lavine, president of the Pittsburgh Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations, made the introduction yesterday. Tomorrow Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, president of the Congress of Clubs and Club Women of Western Pennsylvania, will officiate.

GIVES DEMONSTRATION

Mrs. Schrieber's lecture, which deals with the "styling of foods," and with recipes, includes a demonstration of the making of her dishes on complete kitchen equipment. "Thought for Food," a television-radio program featuring Aloys Havrilla, is an added attraction, showing experimental work at the Kroger Food Foundation, Cincinnati.

A number of society women have consented to serve as ushers for the three different classes, today's list being:

Mrs. Sherman Parker, Mrs. Raymond Moreland, Mrs. J. Porter Gillespie, Mrs. W. McCook Reed, Mrs. Wallace H. Rowe, Jr., Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Jr., Mrs. Harvey Childs III, Miss Emily Frew, Mrs. J. Shirley Austin and Miss Louise Reed.

Tomorrow's ushers will be Mrs. Ray Harrison, Mrs. Arthur P. Woolfolk, Mrs. John J. Bissell, Mrs. George H. Love, Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., Mrs. Paul B. Dickey, Mrs. John H. Wilson, Mrs. R. Green Annan, Miss Virginia Wright and Mrs. John Berdan.

The cooking school and institute is presented by the Kroger Food Foundation of Cincinnati. All meetings are free, with lectures between 2 and 4 o'clock this afternoon and tomorrow. Many food exhibits are open during the mornings for students by appointment, but there is no morning cooking school.

Gifts are distributed to guests at each session.

The presentation of new ideas and methods in all phases of the culinary art is the chief purpose of the classes. Exhibits by food manufacturers demonstrate details of production and marketing.

Barred From Tracks, Killed on Highway

COATESVILLE, Pa., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—For years, Giovanni Dipaoli, 65, a crossing watchman, walked to work on the railroad right of way. About a month ago, the management ordered him to take a safer course. Yesterday, as he trudged to his post, a truck roared down the Lincoln highway and killed him.

Here's Padded Cipher--And It's Different

CIPHER NO. 48

By MILTON G. LEHMAN, JR.

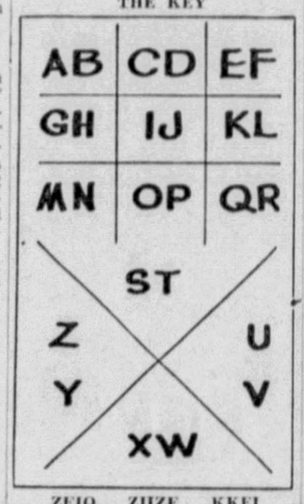
"Many a genius knows man is only but two times the per cent of his inspiration, but he and almost over ninety-eight times his per cent is not perspiration."

This one is easy. Let's see if you can complete it. The answer will be published tomorrow with a new original cipher.

SOLUTION TO NO. 47

By MRS. HENRIETTA BRADWELL

THE KEY



ZFIQ	ZIIZE	KKEI
ZDQA	IVUZD	QTPQ
KXZI	ZIDVE	KXZP
QAIV	ZFEBF	ZDXZ
IIZE	KKEIZ	DKVU

Here's the key that gives you the answer:

A B C D E F G H I J K L M d c b a i h g f e m l k j
N O P Q R S T U V W X Y Z
q p o n v u t s r z y x w

It's easy with this, isn't it? The answer was:

When wee Willie wanders wantonly we wearily wonder which way Willie walks.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor.

Here is a cipher that should keep you guessing. It's Cipher No. 48, contributed by Milton G. Lehman, Jr., of 5464 Darlington road. As this is a different kind of a cipher than we have yet published, it may cause you plenty of trouble. It is called a "padded cipher."

The Cipher Editor will give you one clue. This is a message within a message and a proverb of Edison's. That should get you off to a good start. Now let's see what you can do. "Bogie" on this is a half hour.

Did you solve Cipher No. 47? It was a long one. The table code printed today will show you how it was decoded.

Write the Cipher Editor and let him know how you are enjoying this new game.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengué (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengué by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic baumes, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Truism

Too soon the feast is done and lights go dim,
And we must face the terror of the night;
Since all our hopes of happiness are slim
Let us be wise and take love in full flight;
Granted that castles topple to the ground,
Granted that ashes follow any fire,
Name me a pair of worthy lovers bound
By all the sickly rules that check desire,

No, we must drink our tiny cup of wine,
Reel for a while beneath illusion's spells—
And, with the last grape stripped from off the vine
Creep to our separate and yawning hells;

Knowing as all must know who aim too high—
Glamour is born but once—and born to die!

—Don Wahn.

The Sins of the Fathers

Many Vanity Fair editions ago we related how Walda Winchell, at the time, aged 4, forgot her manners. It was in the lobby of a hotel, and two women went up to the child and said:

"Aren't you Walter Winchell's little girl?"

"Dood Lord!" was Walda's fedup retort, as she stomped a foot, "do I have to hear dat again?"

That fact has its sequel. Heywood Broun's little boy also abhorred when strangers pointed him out as "that famous newspaperman's child." One day Heywood III was being fondled by a matronly visitor to his school.

"And whose lit-tul boy are you?" she cooed.

"You know damn well whose little boy I am!" he barked.

Crazy Allen's Brother

Mickey N. George alleges that Gracie Allen's lost brother has been hiding in their bathtub for two years!

Izzy Elinsonisms

When we first got the Liberty Bell—only the bell was cracked!

Despite those songs, things would really be better if skies were gray—gray with the smoke from factory chimneys!

The Price of Glory

It happened the other evening at a hotel here. Reporters and cameramen were rushed to the place to interview Prof. Piccard, who risked his slender body twice in a balloon which went higher than anybody's into the stratosphere.

Upon arrival the press heard whisperings that Greta Garbo was in the same hotel incognito. Prof. Piccard was promptly neglected.

Hours later it was discovered that the "Garbo" gal was only a likeness of the movie star. Moral: Don't be a Piccard, you Piccard you!

That's "Al" There Was!

George M. Cohan's hit, "Pigeons and People," is a show that runs for 1 hour and 45 minutes. It has no intermissions. The proceedings consume a single but very interesting act.

Al E. Smith witnessed it the other performance, and when the curtain fell he came out into the foyer—lighting a cigar.

"If his next act," said Smith, "is as good as this one—he's got a hit!"

And he had left his hat in the theater!

As If We Didn't Know

Curiosity is said to have killed a cat, observes Dana L. Cotie, but maybe that was because the cat wasn't as tough as a newspaper reporter.

Nifties

By David K. Murray: Well, bullet-proof vests don't do gangsters much good. They usually shoot each other in the back! . . . Looking for a needle in a haystack isn't so bad lots of times as looking for a train in a time-table! . . . One thing about staying in bed until noon—you miss all the early birds, who are after your worms . . . I know a radio comedian who is really in a tough spot. He can't read English, so he has to wait until his rivals steal all the good gags—and then he swiped them from them!

Newspaperman Stuff

A Britisher, who had never concealed his dislike for Americans, was interviewed by Jules Levine, one of the better reporters. The scribe asked the Britisher just what he considered was wrong with America.

"Your columnists, your gangsters and your Congressmen," barked the man.

"Why do you place columnists first?" queried Jules.

"Because they're the most dangerous," was the retort swelegant, "they're INTERESTING!"

MOVIE TALES

News and Gossip From Hollywood Studios

Life of Star Jean's Next Story

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26.—Life in Hollywood, the loves of a flashy, temperamental movie star, will be the subject of Jean Harlow's next picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The screen's platinum blonde draws the feminine lead in "Bombshell," a play which Caroline Franeke and Mack Crane are said to have modeled from the experiences of a certain famous Hollywood figure.

The rendezvous of the stars, inside scenes of studio life, views of the film people at work and at play are to be included in this new Hollywood portrait.

Pictures turning the mirror on the cinema capital have enjoyed much popularity during the past year. Constance Bennett's "What Price Hollywood?" treated the subject seriously, while the derisive "Once in a Lifetime" and Harold Lloyd's mildly satirical "Movie Crazy" have leveled their shafts of humor at our eccentricities.

Now, "Boomshell" is again to attempt the serious picture. Not too serious, though. It will bear in mind the many laughs that come up in the day's work at the studio.

Mr. Roosevelt On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Pictures of President-elect Roosevelt visiting Muscle Shoals are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, with a full description of his trip by the Glove Trotter. Mr. Roosevelt tells a crowd that he will "put Muscle Shoals again on the map." There are comprehensive views of the sluiceways and other parts of the huge project which President-elect Roosevelt promises will become the greatest power plant in the world.

Ted Lewis, famous leader, and his orchestra bring to the screen for the first time the song "Buy American," battlecry of the prosperity campaign that is now sweeping the country.

The opening of the racing season in Florida show 12,000 turf fans gathered at Hialeah Park in Miami for the Inaugural Handicap.

Pictures from Conroe, Tex., show a great oil fire for all the world like a volcano in eruption.

The Tuscagee Choir of 107 voices is seen and heard as they sing on the top of a New York skyscraper.

Famous New York cartoonists, led by Rube Goldberg, are seen painting designs on knees of some of New York's prettiest feminine dancers.

Broadways of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ESPLANADE HOTEL, BERLIN, Germany: I ran into Jack Johnson this morning, and we spent a couple of hours together. Jack, as I suppose almost everyone knows, was the heavyweight champion of the world from 1908 until 1915. He's in the fifties now, but he still thinks he can stand up with any of our modern heavyweights for as long as they wish. And when I consider our modern heavyweights, I think so too.

Jack's over here at the present time and if the proposed capital comes through he expects to open a Jack Johnson gymnasium in Berlin. His plans seemed a trifle indefinite when we talked, for he spoke vaguely of a huge bar on one floor, a night club on the next, and the gymnasium on the third.

Johnson has had a career that has few equals. He has been accused of practically every crime on the calendar.

You may think of him as a scamp and a rogue, but surely you can never take away from him the fact that he has lived hard, dangerously and well. Neither can you take away his sense of humor nor his unfailing optimism.

If you could have seen him as I did this morning, I'm quite certain you would agree with me. I knew there wasn't any too much dough in the family sock. I knew the man was growing older. All my common sense told me that the end of the game couldn't be too far away.

And yet—there sat Jack, reciting amusing anecdotes by the carload. People strolled from different directions to get a look at him, and he loved it. His beret perched jauntily upon his huge dome. His tan coat, tan gloves, tan suit, tan socks and tan shoes made the perfect combination.

He tapped my knee with his long cigaret holder.

"Mark," he murmured, "don't you ever go getting the idea that Jack Johnson's money days are over. Jimonelly, no! There's big dough just around the corner, brother. Big dough! Could you spare me another cigaret?"

"The best phony fight story I ever heard?" grinned Jack. "Sure, I'll be glad to tell it to you. But don't use the names unless you have to. Let's say it was a famous fight—and that one feller's name was Joe while the other's name was Frank. It happened plenty of years ago.

"Frank was supposed to be built up for a championship match, and business was done with Joe. Joe wouldn't agree to be knocked out, but he promised to be so definitely outpointed that the decision would have to go to Frank.

"Nobody knew much about this Frank feller except that he looked pretty good in training. He had bowled over a couple of set-ups—also by the business route—and it looked like a cinch for the big fight if he could get past Joe. And with Joe being paid off right, it was strictly okay.

"Joe does his best to get in the way of different punches, but this Frank is so bad that he misses nine out of ten. By the time the fifth round rolls around, Joe is plumb disgusted. He knows he's gotta do something in a hurry or Frank will fall over from sheer exhaustion. And that was the one thing in the world that Joe didn't want.

"In the middle of the fifth round, a miracle happens. Frank lets go of a punch from nowhere and connects with Joe's chin. Joe ain't hurt, but for the moment, he forgets himself and grows a little bit sore. He goes after Frank and begins to punch him all around the ring.

"Luckily enough, the bell rings just as Frank is about to go out completely. Frank sways to his corner and drops to his seat. And as Joe sits in his, fresh as a daisy, it suddenly dawns upon him just what he has done. He has the supposed winner of the fight on the verge of a knockout!

"Joe looked across the ring. No, it was no use. He had hit a little too hard. Frank was bound to fall down in the middle of the next round, no matter what happened. Something would have to be done—and done quick. 'Cause Joe needed the promised money very, very bad.

"The bell rings for the sixth round, and Frank's seconds lift him up and almost throw him into the center of the ring. But Joe, who was thinking fast, didn't leave his stool. His face twisted with all the agony in the world, he called the referee to his side and whispered something to him.

"The referee nodded and stepped to the center of the ring. He announced that Joe was unable to continue because of a terrible cramp in the leg—and that Frank had won the fight.

"The crowd didn't go for that—and neither did the press boys. Jimonelly, no! People began to jump up and down around the ring and the excitement was terrific. One of the reporters hollered to the referee to learn what leg Joe had the cramp in. The referee nodded and walked over to Joe, who was still twisting and groaning in his corner.

"'Say, Joe,' he asked, 'Which leg was it you said you had the cramp in. I've forgotten.'

"Joe stopped suddenly and looked up. He rubbed his chin.

"'My gosh,' he cried, 'this is terrible. I've forgotten, too!'"

FOOTLIGHTS :-: Developments on Stage Of Present Day :-: LEGITIMATE

Two Kinds of Revolution Started by Elmer Rice And Noel Coward

By GEORGE SEIBEL

"Design for Living" has started something in New York. The box-office queue, which has been only a rosy memory for years, extended from the Ethel Barrymore Theater to Broadway and around the corner. Theatrical men from other white-light thoroughfares came to watch the spectacle. Those people were not buying tickets for the Tuesday night opening, but for weeks ahead. For the opening no tickets were to be had: the top price had been fixed at $11, but speculators were asking $75 for a pair. And Alfred Lunt writes me that the Washington week went well over $30,000.

All of which cannot be explained either by the Behaviorists or the Technocrats. Maybe it's the end of the depression. Or else it shows the depression has not gone far enough—or has hit the wrong people.

No theatrical performance is worth that money — not even "Hamlet" with Edwin Booth as Hamlet and William Shakespeare playing the Ghost, the part he wrote for himself.

ELMER RICE'S SOAPBOX

There's a new Elmer Rice play in New York, "We the People," and nobody was willing to pay $75 to see that opening. A friend writes me that it's the most revolutionary drama he has even seen. At the close a large part of the audience felt like going forth and starting something. In the very last scene the stage becomes a platform for a public meeting to remedy all the abuses shown up in the play—that's really turning the stage into a soap-box.

It looks to me as if the author of "Street Scene" had dramatized Technocracy.

In his opening scene there's an American family, happy and content. They own a car and can go joy-riding; they have a radio and can listen to Amos 'n' Andy; they have money in the savings bank, so they know "God's in his heaven—All's right with the world."

But then comes the depression, pay cuts, unemployment, bank failure. The son of the family, after hunting a job in vain, steals coal from a railroad yard and is sent to reform school. He thinks about things and becomes a radical. At a street meeting a policeman is killed and the boy is arrested—though he is palpably innocent. In such cases somebody must be made the goat. The meeting at the close of the play is a meeting of protest.

Pittsburghers are interested in that public meeting, because William Ingersoll, leading man of our stock company for many years, plays a minister of the gospel who takes the side of the oppressed, while a school teacher of liberal leanings is played by Eleanor Phelps, who is the wife of Alden Chase, until recently the leading man of "our late stock company."

REVOLUTION BY DRAMA

Whether Elmer Rice's new play starts even enough of a revolution to bring crowds to the boxoffice, it reminds us that revolutions have been started by dramas. If you read up the life of Beaumarchais, who wrote the comedy of "The Barber of Seville," which we know only as opera, you will find it had considerable to do with the beginnings of the French Revolution. Another opera, which we know as "Masaniello," but which in Europe is known as "The Mute Girl of Portici," actually started the revolution that led to the independence of modern Belgium.

Governments and conspirators have known this dangerous tendency of stage entertainment, and there are many historic incidents to illustrate it. The most interesting concerns Shakespeare and Queen Elizabeth. When Essex was plotting his rebellion, some of his friends came to the Globe Theater and arranged to have an old play revived. They paid the money for a production of "Richard the Second." When the conspiracy was nipped, Elizabeth took cognizance of this. "Don't you know that I am Richard the Second?" she asked. In that historical drama there are mob scenes which result in dethroning the king, just as the conspirators had hoped to overthrow Elizabeth.

While the Czar was on his throne, the classic "William Tell" of Freidrich Schiller was not permitted to be played in Russia. The reason is obvious. In "William Tell" there is a tyrant and a conspiracy—the tyrant is killed, the conspiracy triumphs. And now the Soviets won't permit plays that show the beauty of bourgeois life under capitalism.

Governments are queer, but they agree on taxes.

POLITICS

Philadelphians Split Over Root Bill

By MARK SHIELDS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—The upset condition of Republican politics in Philadelphia is evidenced again by the split within the organization over the bill introduced in Harrisburg by Representative Morris J. Root to permit a mayor in Philadelphia to succeed himself.

Mr. Shields

This city now is in the same position that Pittsburgh was before the Legislature of 1925 altered the law which prohibited a mayor serving two successive terms.

Root says he introduced the bill at the behest of Councilman Harry Trainer, one of the powers in politics of the city, and associated with the Vare organization. It has the tacit approval of Recorder of Deeds James M. Hazelett, Republican city chairman, and Harry Davis, chairman of the Republican executive committee, the two men representing the Vare interests in Harrisburg.

Serious Objection Within Organization

But there is serious objection within the organization. Councilman Edward A. Kelly, also a Vare supporter, yesterday objected strongly to the bill. Other organization men echoed his sentiments, and independents in the city intend to fight the measure, encouraged by the assistance they are receiving from the Republican regulars.

Behind the bill, according to political gossip, lies a plan to indirectly make Council President Edwin Cox Mayor eventually, something Vare was unable to accomplish directly in the last mayoralty election. His preference for Cox collided with other organization opinion which threatened to run George Biles, and the result was a compromise and the election of Mayor J. Hampton Moore.

The Vare plan would be to have Moore run to succeed himself, and he probably would be re-elected. Sometime thereafter Moore could resign, either to run for the Senate or to accept some other post, and Cox would succeed to the vacancy through his Council place.

Chance to Widen Political Breach

Whether the bill will be forced through Harrisburg in view of the objections which have arisen is today debatable. It it should be passed Gov. Pinchot might veto it, if he listens to the appeals of some Philadelphians who are his friends. In any event, he would have the opportunity through action one way or the other to drive a further wedge into the splitting politics of Philadelphia.

Some Philadelphians are reported to be cooling on the bill to repeal the direct primary, though organization sentiment continues committed to a return to the old convention system of making nominations for public office.

The argument is being advanced that the Philadelphia organization in a convention would not have the power it does in a primary. This city usually is good for an organization majority of 225,000 and that usually is sufficient to determine a nomination. In a convention the party rules would be so drawn as to reduce this preponderance of influence, and rural districts, as well as Allegheny County, would insist upon a proportion of representation which would make them the chief factors.

Vare Nomination In Convention Doubted

Some organization men here are pointing to the experience of 1926, when William S. Vare was nominated as the Republican Senatorial candidate in a three-cornered fight with former Senator George Wharton Pepper and Gov. Pinchot. It was the majority he received in Philadelphia which put him over, as he failed in nearly every other county.

It is argued that under the convention system Vare would never have been nominated, due to rural objections and the influence of the Mellons in Pepper's behalf in Allegheny county and other sections of Western Pennsylvania.

Despite these arguments, it appears that the repealer will pass the Senate, though there are increasing signs that it cannot be passed over an expected executive veto. While Democrats in the House are committed to the repealer, Democratic Senators are understood to be satisfied with the present situation, though insisting upon legislation preventing a man being a candidate in two party primaries.

Coolidge Believed He Reached Summit When Chosen as Governor

CHAPTER XI.

I did not refer to my own candidacy, but spent all my time advocating the election of Mr. McCall. He was a character that fitted into the situation most admirably. He was liberal without being visionary and conservative without being reactionary. The 25 years he had spent in public life gave him a remarkable equipment for discussing the issues of a campaign. Whatever information was needed concerning the state government I was in a position to supply. Much emphasis was placed by me on the urgent necessity of preventing further increases in state and national expense and of a drastic reduction wherever possible. The state was ready for that kind of a message.

When the election of 1915 came, Mr. Cahill won by 6,313 votes and my plurality was 52,204. After having been held five years by Democrats, the Governorship of Massachusetts was restored to the Republican party, where it was to remain for the next 15 years and probably much longer. The extended struggle in which the Republicans had been engaged to restore the people of Massachusetts to their allegiance to sound government under a reunited party had at last been successful. With that prolonged effort I had been intimately associated.

Partner Acquired

The office of lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts differs from that of most states. As already disclosed he does not preside over the Senate. The Constitution of our commonwealth is older than the Federal Constitution and so followed the old colonial system, while most of the states have followed the federal system. I was ex officio a member of the Governor's council and chairman of the Finance and Pardon committees. As the council met but one day each week I was pleased with the renewed opportunity I expected to have to practice law. But it soon developed that I must be away so much that I asked Ralph W. Hemenway to become associated with me, and he has since carried on my law office so successfully that it has become his law office rather than mine.

It has become the custom in our country to expect all chief executives, from the President down, to conduct activities analogous to an entertainment bureau. No occasion is too trivial for its promoters to invite them to attend and deliver an address. It appeared to be the practice of Gov. McCall to accept all these invitations and when the time came, to attend what he could of them, and parcel the rest out among his subordinates. In this way I became very much engaged. It was an honor to represent the Governor, and a part of my duties according to our practice. Some days I went to several meetings for that purpose, ranging well into the night, so I was obliged to stay in Boston most of the time.

It was during this period that I wrote nearly all of the speeches afterwards published in "Have Faith in Massachusetts." They were short and mostly committed to memory for delivery. This forced me to be a constant student of public questions.

Supported Hughes

It did not seem best for me to take a very active part in the presidential primaries of 1916, but I quietly supported the regular ticket for delegates, which was elected. We had at least three candidates for President in Massachusetts, with all of whom I was on friendly terms, as I had never allied myself with any faction of the party, but I felt the convention did the wise thing in turning to the great statesman Charles Evans Hughes, and I supported him actively in the campaign for election. He carried Massachusetts by a small vote. My renomination came without opposition, as did that of the Governor, who had a plurality of 46,240 at the election. My own was 84,930.

During the summer I had been chairman of a special commission to consider the financial condition of the Boston Elevated Street Railway, and helped make a report recommending that the Governor be authorized to appoint a board of trustees who should have the control of this property and be vested with authority to fix a rate of fare sufficient to pay the costs of operation and a fair return to the stockholders. This was adopted by the General Court and solved the pressing problem of street railway transportation, which became so acute on account of the increasing costs of operation. Later the plan was applied to the other large company in the eastern part of the state. It was not perfect, but saved

It Was All Done Years Ago With Aid of Mirrors

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Our advice is to roll all diplomats up in budgets and then slash the budget.

There's going to be another conference thing in Washington next March. They're going to hold it to see who can grow the longest beard.

You don't have to join the Navy to see what diplomats do to the world. They have demonstrated clearly that peace ain't even a rest between rounds.

The March shillaber is going to be about war debts. The visiting dignitaries will each be entitled to the ambassadorial salute. We will dip the flag in red ink.

It's our own fault for not being smarter in the original talk tournament in the Versailles hall of mirrors many seasons ago.

With all those looking glasses in the place we should have known we were getting a round hair cut.

IDENTIFIES MEN AS FAKE DRYS

Thomas Findon, of West Tarentum, witness at a hearing before the United States Commissioner, identified George W. Guthrie, alias John L. Keith, and Elwood L. Moore, alias G. L. Osborne, alleged fake prohibition agents, as being the men who "shook him down" for $50 last Saturday, after threatening him with arrest.

He also said that Warren Wurtz, another alleged fake agent, had visited his home the previous day, in company with Guthrie, and they had purchased a pint of whisky from him. They were held for court.

The three men were arrested by Chief John Heplen, of the Creighton police. Findon said that after giving up the $50, Guthrie bid him good-bye, shook his hand and said, "There will be nothing to this."

A stag party attended by 300 hardware dealers of Western Pennsylvania will be held in the Fort Pitt Hotel tomorrow night under auspices of the Pittsburgh Hardware Dealers Association. A program of speaking and music will be given.

LAPELS CARRY 'BUY AMERICAN' MESSAGE

Thousands Here Are Wearing Buttons With Slogan

Thousands of "Buy American" buttons are bedecking the lapels of as many Pittsburghers today, the gift of the Sun-Telegraph to those interested in buying American-made goods.

Exhibitors in the automobile show wore them, while many companies sought enough to outfit their sales staffs and other employes.

Members of the Logan-Gregg Hardware Company will get a supply of the buttons to be distributed to their staff; many other concern are following suit.

LEGION MEN HELP

American Legion unemployed of the county have taken to selling posters and stickers for the campaign—doing it through the sponsorship of Daniel Keffer Post No. 75, Clairton, while a number of industries are springing up, such as the "Buy U. S. A., Inc." to market "Buy American" license plates.

Adding its word of commendation to the campaign is the J. F. Jelke Company, national concern which markets American-made vegetable fats products.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph have complained that several chain stores met their customers' objections to foreign-made goods with the statement:

"If you want to buy cheap articles you have to buy Japanese."

HOME PRODUCTS BETTER

American manufacturers insist that their own products are superior, if more expensive, and point out that Japanese and other foreign-made goods are produced with labor getting from 6 to 25 cents an hour, a rate far lower than American workmen.

In reverse to this attitude of merchants, many in Crafton, Ingram, Ambridge and other towns and cities have banded together in a "Buy and Sell American" campaign. Decorating their streets and shop windows with "Buy American" placards, they are encouraging Americans to buy goods made by their fellowmen.

Rosenbaum & Co., downtown department store, is also advocating "Buy American" by poster and advertisement.

Indiana's House of Representatives concurred with its Senate yesterday in indorsing "Buy American," as did New York City's Board of Aldermen.

F. T. Robson, chairman of the dairy department of the California Farm Bureau Federation, declared foreign vegetable oils are damaging to American agriculture.

In Illinois, 234 Odd Fellows' lodges in the state were waging a "Buy American" campaign.

Shanghai War Films To Aid Pitt Fund

Moving pictures of the Japanese attack on Shanghai will be shown Sunday afternoon and night at the Eagles' Club, 431 Third avenue, the proceeds to aid in the completion of the China memorial room in the Cathedral of Learning and to aid those affected by the recent Japanese attacks. A musical program will be presented at both showings of the picture.

MOVE TO SEIZE RAIDED BEER

A forfeiture libel was filed in Federal Court by United States Attorney Louis E. Graham against 6,000 bottles of Canadian beer and a truck, which were seized November 9 in a garage at Penny and Walnut streets, McKeesport, by prohibition agents. The libel was brought under the customs law, as officials believe the beer to be the genuine Canadian product and smuggled into the United States.

The bill of complaint said that the beer did not show payment of a Canadian tax import tax duty. The seizure was made after the driver of the truck drove into the garage for repairs. Judge Nelson McVicar issued a motion for any claimants to the truck and beer to appear in court February 15.

Cut in School Work Opposed by Aaron

The full text of the reply of Marcus Aaron, President of the Board of Education, to the committee of 25 citizens, follows:

"I am, of course, deeply gratified to be advised of the unanimous approval of the committee on business and financial procedure of the board's position on all controversial matters relative to the 1933 budget and tax levy.

"Preliminary to formal action by the board, I desire to express my appreciation of the service rendered the people of Pittsburgh by the members of this committee, and particularly to the members of the sub-committee headed by W. L. Monro. The report was based upon careful study and not upon faith in the members of the school board. That gives the report increasing value.

"The committee has made certain suggestions relative to the budget and the tax levy for 1934. The suggestions will receive the very earnest and careful consideration of the Board of Public Education.

WILL CONTINUE WORK

"The committee has accepted my invitation to continue permanently and has authorized its present sub-committee to continue in its advisory capacity in the preparation of the 1934 budget and tax levy.

"Relative to the suggestion for an amendment providing possible greater readjustment of the Board of Public Education's salaries to teachers in accordance with changing economic conditions and a further reduction in those salaries for next year, I personally question the wisdom or the necessity of writing such an amendment into the Edmonds Act further than has already been advocate, by the Board of Public Education in its statement of May, 1932.

"Relative to suggestion 2. The study of the personnel of the business, administrative, and operative departments will be kept constantly before us. We feel that we can justify to the committee any salaries or wages that are now being paid.

CITIZENS' PROBE OF POLICY TO CONTINUE

Payment of '33 Levies Urged to Permit Future Slash

Assurance that the report of the Citizens' Committee suggesting school tax reduction for 1934 will receive earnest and careful consideration has been given by Marcus Aaron, president of Board of Public Education.

The committee has accepted Aaron's invitation to continue its work, he reports, and the subcommitee which prepared the report on the School Board's financial policy will advise the board on its policy this year in preparing the 1934 budget.

TAX PAYMENTS URGED

The course of the board in setting an unchanged tax levy for 1933 has been approved by the committee, and all citizens have been called upon to pay their taxes in order to make possible tax reduction next year.

Aaron has publicly thanked the committee which he appointed for its service.

Aaron, however, takes issue with his committee on a number of suggestions for reducing taxes in 1934. He expresses doubt as to the wisdom of a further decrease in the salaries of teachers or of the administrative force the committee suggests.

The committee also proposed curtailing some school activities in 1934, notwithstanding the opinion of educators. Aaron said this could not be done without endangering the effectiveness of the school system.

A suggestion to shorten the 1934 term was also opposed by Aaron.

He agreed with a suggestion that the board rely on its borrowing power rather than build up a high cash reserve in the general fund.

The report of the committee was prepared by a sub-committee consisting of W. L. Monro, chairman; Frank Wilbur Main, H. H. McClintic, E. T. Weir and J. C. M. White. It was passed unanimously yesterday by the general group meeting in the Union Trust Building.

The board is commended for the efficiency of its accounting system and its conservative business policies.

ECONOMY URGED

In its conclusions, the committee says:

"Your committee has arrived at the unanimous opinion that, considering all relevant factors, the budget has been prepared on a fair and reasonable basis, and that no change can be made in the tax levy for 1933.

"It is recommended, however, that every effort be made to effect further savings by keeping the expenditures for 1933 as much below the budget estimates as practicable.

"The committee has also given consideration to a suggestion that the revenues might be larger than have been estimated, and to the possibility of a reduction in expenditures, whereby a surplus in a substantial amount might be realized at the close of the calendar year. Suggestion has been made that if such amount is considerable, exonerations or refunds might be granted to taxpayers on 1933 taxes sufficient to absorb the surplus.

"Your committee is advised by counsel that a similar question was raised in Philadelphia, and it was the opinion of counsel that no such arrangement can be made regarding the taxes for 1933 unless the same be authorized by the Legislature. In case there should be any such surplus it should be applied to current expenses for the next budget year.

"Under the circumstances the committee advises that full publicity be given this fact, and the taxpayers be advised to pay their 1933 taxes in order that the schools may continue to function."

PROPOSALS FOR CUTS

The committee then turns to the millage for next year and makes definite recommendations to bring about tax reduction. The suggestions follow:

"1—Amendment to the Edmonds Act to provide for readjustment by the Board of Education of teachers' salaries in accordance with changing economic conditions, and a further reduction in those salaries for the next school year.

"2—Study of the personnel of the business, administrative and operative departments, with a view to ascertain if it is not possible to reduce the staff, or to reduce all salaries or wages in line with compensation paid for equal ability by private enterprises.

"3—Possibility of curtailing some of the school activities, notwithstanding that by so doing it might reduce the full effectiveness of the prevailing scheme of education now considered requisite and necessary by the Board of Public Education and advisory authorities and educators.

"4—Study and analysis of the

COUNTY BOARD SPLIT ON PERSONAL TAX PENALTIES

SEEK RETURNS FROM ALL, DUE TUESDAY

As thousands of Allegheny County residents struggled with the task of making out personal property tax returns, due next Tuesday, the County Commissioners today were still divided on imposition of penalties on persons who failed to file statements in previous years.

Under the law the county has the right to collect delinquent personal property taxes for five years. In the case of death, the county collects from the estate for the same length of time.

Blanks for the returns are being delivered by assessors in the city and in every borough and township to every individual over 21. There is a four-mill tax on savings accounts, stocks and bonds and all monies out at interest.

IGNORANCE NO EXCUSE

Although the tax is new to most residents of the county, Commissioner C. C. McGovern points out that the law has been in effect for many years and declares ignorance of it is no excuse. He asserts the Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes has no right to exonerate persons from taxes due the county through failure to file returns.

The increase in the assessed personal property in the county as compared with last year is noted in the report of George E. Meyers, chairman of the board. The total personal assessment for 1933 is placed at $500,000,000, an increase of $11,696,000 over 1932. This is also an increase of more than $2,000,000 over the estimate made on personal property several weeks ago.

REALTY ASSESSMENT UP

The total assessment for real estate in the city and county for 1933 is $1,823,967,240, an increase of $6,000,000 over last year. Of this increase $2,000,000 is in the city and $4,000,000 is in the county outside the city.

Of the real estate assessment, the county last year collected 71.9 per cent of its levy, before discounts and exonerations. After deducting the latter, the percentage was 78.7.

There has been no general increase in assessments, although a number of adjustments have been made for equalization. Some properties also have been found which were not on the assessment books.

COLLECTIONS DOWN

It is not expected the increase in assessment will have much effect on the county's revenues this year because of the decreasing rates of collection, and it does not remove the necessity for deep cuts in the budget if an increase in the tax rate is to be prevented.

Chairman McGovern in explaining his stand on the personal property tax pointed out that in recent years county officials have not sent out return blanks and most people ignored the tax. However, many regularly called for their returns, made affidavit and paid. To ignore the back taxes owed by many who are filing their first return in years, would be unfair to those who paid regularly, McGovern maintains.

Commissioners W. D. Mansfield and C. M. Barr are of the opinion the county should not try to collect the arrears due to failure to file returns, but agreed that every effort will be made this year to have all residents file returns. These are to be checked by local assessors who will report to the main board.

Assessors will sit in the various districts at several times before the end of the month, giving information and swearing all who wish to file returns. There will be no charge for administering the oath.

activities. The board feels that it has gone as far as it is possible to go without endangering the effectiveness of the education that we are offering the children of the community. The board is sustained in this position by the educational advisory committee which has just reported to us.

"Suggestion 4—Study and analysis of the items listed in the budget as 'Supplies and Expenses' with a view to effecting possible economies and reductions. That study is constantly going on and will be continued.

"Suggestion 5—Sale of nonproductive real estate as soon as reasonable prices may be secured for same. There can be no question concerning the propriety of this recommendation.

"Suggestion 6—Make no expenditures of any importance for capital account, by either building new schools or major additions to present schools. The board came to this conclusion about a year ago.

"Suggestion 7—Consideration should be given to a reduction in the length of the school year. Our teachers and others have been elected for the year ending June 30, 1933, and we could not, if we would, make the change suggested at this time. I feel very sure that we will be able to convince the members of this committee before the next budget is adopted that Pittsburgh cannot afford to make this change.

"Suggestion 8—The maintenance of a general fund reserve to cover contingencies. I am sure that the board will agree in view of the increased amount of delinquent taxes unpaid that it may very properly borrow a reasonable amount if necessary late this year to keep our budget in balance for the ensuing year and to take care of future contingencies.

"I hope that nothing I have said would indicate any disagreement with the committee that has served Pittsburgh so unselfishly nor a lack of appreciation of their thorough painstaking work. We are fortunate to have in Pittsburgh a group of men who have been willing to undertake what may appear to some to be a thankless job."

• GARGLE Sore Throat, Incipient Colds
• ANTISEPTIC LOTION Minor Cuts, Abrasions, Etc.

Whole nation responds to trial offer on antiseptic by makers of VapoRub

WE MAKE no extravagant claims for Vicks new Antiseptic. Instead, we have supplied to druggists . . . at less than actual cost . . . 5 million trial bottles . . . so you can test it in your own home. Since this trial offer was announced 10 days ago, many thousands of people, in every section of the country, have taken advantage of it.

Best Vicks Could Produce

Vicks Voratone is simply the best oral antiseptic our chemists could produce. And they were aided by bacteriologists and pharmacologists of our 16 allied organizations . . . in America, England, Germany. They examined the whole field of oral antiseptics. Some they found were too weak . . . some too strong for regular use in the mouth . . . most were very good . . . but all were much too expensive!

Priced for the Times

So they produced a balanced antiseptic . . . mild enough to be used day in and day out without risk to delicate membranes . . . strong enough to do everything an oral antiseptic should do. You can use Vicks Antiseptic for all the customary uses . . . in your customary way.

And Vicks Antiseptic has this additional advantage . . . Born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly. Large 10-ounce bottle . . . a usual 75¢ value . . . only 35¢.

"7—Consideration should be given to a reduction in the length of the school year.

"8—The maintenance of a general fund reserve to cover contingencies should not be continued under existing economic conditions, in view of the fact that the amount of the delinquent taxes increases accordingly the borrowing power of the school board. This borrowing power is sufficient to take care of contingencies."

The committee expressed indebtedness to R. L. McKallip, of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, and I. L. Aronson, president of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League for suggestions.

TAX ESTIMATE LIBERAL

It said an estimate of 75 per cent tax collections for this year made by the Board of Education was liberal, considering conditions, and predicted the revenue would be even less. Possibility that the state may be compelled to reduce its appropriation to the Pittsburgh schools was pointed out.

Other revenues of the board likewise are likely to fall short of the amounts estimated, the committee said. An unexpended balance left in the general fund of $665,953 was justified as conservative business under these conditions.

TEACHERS PRAISED

Regarding the voluntary reduction in salaries taken by the teachers, the committee says:

"Great praise and credit is due to the entire body of teachers and supervisory staff, as well as to every other employe of the board, that everyone, from the humblest positions to the highest, voluntarily accepted a 10 per cent cut."

On administrative salaries, the committee said a specific report could be made only after a survey by experts.

Substantial reductions from the budgets of prior years were noted by the committee in practically every department of the school system.

The number of pupils in Pittsburgh's elementary and secondary schools has increased while the teaching staff has decreased since 1929, the committee reported. The cost per pupil has declined from $98.71 in 1929 to an estimate of $91.41 for this year in the elementary schools, the committee reports.

In the secondary schools the cost has declined from $191.42 per pupil in 1929 to $135.76 estimated for 1933.

TEACHERS HANDLING MORE

The number of pupils per teacher has increased. In the elementary schools the average in 1932 was 36.7 pupils per teacher, while in the high schools the teachers averaged 31.6 pupils. The standard set by most Eastern colleges for high schools is an average of pupils per teacher not to exceed 25.

In the supplies account, the committee called attention to an item of $70,000 to provide milk for school children and that the state is now furnishing funds for that purpose.

The committee approved the self-insurance plan of the board and the other reserve funds set up for various purposes.

Members of the committee on business and financial procedure in addition to the sub-committee named included Frank F. Brooks, A. E. Braun, J. W. Bamford, Howard Heinz, R. Lamont Hughes, J. H. Lockhart, H. C. McEldowney, W. L. Mellon, Frank Phillips, A. W. Robertson, A. C. Robinson, H. B. Rust, Arthur Scully, Edwin W. Smith, Lloyd W. Smith, William Watson Smith, A. CALVIN COOLIDGE'S OWN LIFE STORY the properties from destruction and gave a fair means of travel at cost, which was to be ascertained by public authority.

Active During War

It was in the ensuing year that the United States entered the World War. While this took most of our thoughts off local affairs, it did not prevent opposition to the renomination of Gov. McCall. Had it been successful, it would have deferred any chance for me to run for Governor for two or three years and perhaps indefinitely. Under the circumstances most of my friends supported the Governor, and he was renominated by a wide margin. I had no opposition. But interest in the election was not great, so that the vote was light. Nevertheless, the Governor ran 90,479 votes ahead of his nearest competitor. In my own contest my opponent secured the Democratic, the Progressive and the Prohibition nomination. I did not think the combination would prove helpful to him, and it did not. He fell off 77,000 from the vote of his predecessor, and I won by 101,731.

While the United States had been engaged in the World War every public man, and I among them, had been constantly employed in its many activities. It increased every function of government from the administration in Washington down to smallest town office. The whole nation seemed to be endowed with a new spirit, unified and solidified and willing to make any sacrifice for the cause of liberty. I was constantly before public gatherings explaining the needs of the time for men, money and supplies. Sometimes I was urging subscriptions for war loans, sometimes contributions to the great charities, or again speaking to the workmen engaged in construction or the manufacture of munitions. The response which the people made and the organizing power of the country were all manifestations that it was wonderful to contemplate. The entire nation awoke to a new life.

Nominated Governor

It was no secret that I desired to be Governor. Under the custom of promotion in Massachusetts a man who did not expect to be advanced would scarcely be willing to be Lieutenant Governor. But I did nothing in the way of organizing my friends to secure the nomination. It is much better not to press a candidacy too much, but to let it develop on its own merits without artificial stimulation. If the people want a man they will nominate him, if they do not want him he had best let the nomination go to another.

The Governor very much desired to be United States Senator, but made no statement indicating he would seek that honor which would cause him to retire from his present office. Neither I nor my friends approached him or sought to influence him. Finally he called me aside and told me to announce that I would run for Governor, which I did. As no one knew what he had told me, some supposed I would run against him, which I would not have done.

I had a strong liking for this veteran public servant, and so I felt sure he liked me. He was away on many occasions, which under the Constitution left me as Acting Governor, but at such times I was always careful not to encroach upon his domain. While I may have differed with my subordinates I have always supported loyally my superiors. They have never found me organizing a camp in opposition to them. Finally the Governor sought the Senatorship, but before his campaign was under way he very manfully announced that as the country was at war he was entirely unwilling to divert public attention from the national defense to promote his political fortune and therefore withdrew. My nomination was again unanimous.

Wins Office

The campaign was difficult. The really great qualities of my principal colleague, Senator John W. Weeks, had been displayed mostly in Washington and were not appreciated by his home people. A violent epidemic of influenza prevented us from having a state convention, or holding the usual meetings, and the party organization was not very effective. In spite of my protest and the fact that we were engaged in a tremendous war, criticism was too often made of President Wilson and his administration. My own efforts were spent in urging that the people and government of Massachusetts should all join in their support of the national government in prosecuting the war. While I was elected by only 16,773, Senator Weeks to my lasting regret was defeated, so the state and nation lost for a time the benefit of his valuable public service. Later he was in the cabinet, where he remained until, during my term, he retired due to ill health, and did not long survive.

Again I supposed I had reached the summit of any possible political preferment and was quite content to finish my public career as Governor of Massachusetts—an office that has always been held in the highest honor by the people of the commonwealth.

Veterans Helped

To get a few days' rest I went to Maine the next Friday after the election. It was there that I was awakened in the middle of Sunday night to be told that the Armistice had been signed. I returned to Boston the following day to take part in the celebration. What the end of the four years of carnage meant those who remember it will never forget and those who do not can never be told. The universal joy, the enormous relief, found expression from all the people in a spontaneous outburst of thanksgiving.

While the war was done, its problems were to confront the state and nation for many years. I was to meet them as Governor and President. They will remain with us for two generations. Such is the curse of war.

In my inaugural address I dwelt on the need of promoting the public health, education and the opportunity for employment at fair wages in accordance with the right of the people to be well born, well reared, well educated, well employed and well paid. I also stressed the necessity of keeping government expenses as low as possible, assisting in every possible way the re-establishing of the returning veterans, and reorganizing the numerous departments in accordance with a recent change of the constitution, which limited their number to 20.

There being no Executive Mansion, the Governor has no especial social duties, so I kept my quarters at the Adams House, as I had always lived there when in Boston, where Mrs. Coolidge came sometimes; but as our boys needed her she stayed for the most part in Northampton. She never had taken any part in my political life, but had given her attention to our home. It was not until we went to Washington that she came into public prominence and favor.

In February, President Wilson landed at Boston on his return from France and spoke at a large meeting, where I made a short address of welcome, pledging him my support in helping settle the remaining war problems. I then began a friendly personal relation with him and Mrs. Wilson which has always continued. Our service men were constantly returning and had to be aided in getting back into private employment. About $20,000,000 was paid them out of the State Treasury.

In the confusion attending the end of the war the work of legislation dragged on well into the summer. While I did not veto many of the bills which were passed, I did reject a measure to increase the salaries of members of the General Court from $1,000 to $1,500, but my objection was not sustained.

Labor Troubles

In the great upward movement of wages that had taken place those paid by street railways had not been proportionately increased. It is very difficult to raise fares, so sufficient money for this purpose had not been available, though some advances had been made. Because of this situation a strike occurred in midsummer on the Boston Elevated that tied up nearly all street transportation in the city district for three or four days. Finally, I helped negotiate an agreement to send the matter to arbitration, so the work was resumed. The men secured a very material raise in wages, which I feel later conditions fully justified.

In August I went to Vermont. On my return I found that difficulties in the police department of Boston were growing serious and made a statement to the reporters at the State House that I should support Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis in his decisions concerning their adjustment. I felt he was entitled to every confidence.

The trouble arose over the proposal of the policemen, who had long been permitted to maintain a local organization of their own, to form a union and affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. That was contrary to a long-established rule of the department, which was agreed to by each member when he went on the force and had the effect of law.

Police Go on Strike

When the policemen's union persisted in its course I was urged by a committee appointed by the Mayor to interfere and attempt to make Commissioner Curtis settle the dispute by arbitration. The Governor appoints the Commissioner and probably could remove him, but he has no more jurisdiction over his acts than he has over the judges of the courts; besides, I did not see how it was possible to arbitrate the question of the authority of the law, or of the necessity of obedience to the rules of the department and the orders of the Commissioner. These principles were the heart of the whole controversy and the only important questions at issue. It can readily be seen how important they were and what the effect might have been if they had not been maintained. I decided to support them, whatever the consequences might be. I fully expected it would result in my defeat in the coming campaign for re-election as Governor.

While I had no direct responsibility for the conduct of police matters in Boston, yet as the Chief Executive it was my general duty to require the laws to be enforced, so I remained in Boston and kept carefully informed of conditions. I knew I might be called on to act at any time.

REDUCE WITHOUT THYROID WITHOUT SALTS WITHOUT DIET

Science finds only absolutely safe way to lose ugly fat.

Here's wonderful news for women who want to make their figures slim and lovely. A great physician, who has specialized in research with the Pasteur Institute of Paris and famous clinics of America, has discovered an absolutely harmless tablet that will take off 5 pounds of ugly fat each week.

Now it is absurd for anyone to take dangerous drugs, or a daily dose of laxative salts that rushes food through the system half digested, and leads to chronic constipation. The new treatment contains no Thyroid Extract, no laxative drugs at all. It is a safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies.

You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three ample meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it. We will donate $500 to charity if anyone can prove that Vannay contains Thyroid, Iodine or any harmful drugs.

Start the treatment at once and all your fondest dreams of health and slim loveliness will come true. Ask your druggist for Vannay and be sure to see that name on the package. If you are not entirely satisfied, money back.

"You may not speed...but your oil should be able to!"

"SURE, you obey the speed laws! But even if your speedometer never hits 35...Gulf Supreme—that 100-mile-an-hour oil—is the oil for you!

"Here's why in a nut-shell... The oil that has proved to be good at 100-miles-an-hour is a better, safer oil at ANY speed!

"It has extra resistance, extra lubrication value! It gives more protection against heat, wear, and repairs! It's far and away better than the oil that 'just gets by' at ordinary speeds!"

Gulf Supreme has proved its ability to take super-punishment.

On August 8, 1932, it out-performed special racing oils in an Official AAA test on the Indianapolis Speedway. It lubricated a speeding Duesenberg racer in a one-hour, non-stop run—at an average speed greater than 100-miles-an-hour. Not once did the oil pressure vary by the width of a pencil mark!

Change to Gulf Supreme today! It takes super-punishment, cuts lubrication costs . . . saves on repairs . . . and lasts longer.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Two members of Pittsburgh's younger set were among the guests of honor at an elaborate ball masque at Palm Beach last night. They are, as you probably have guessed by this time, the attractive Tunnell sisters, Helen and Shirley, the E. Paul Tunnells' daughters.

Their aunt, Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, gave the ball masque last night at her Palm Beach place, Casa Rosada Del Lago.

The honor guests, besides the Pittsburgh girls, were Lord Decies and his son and daughter, the Hon. George Beresford and the Hon. Moya Beresford, also her house guests; and Mrs. Harry Norment, of Washington.

Masked Dance

The party was the first masked dance to be held at the resort, society's winter playground in the States, in many seasons.

The guests danced in the south drawing room until midnight, then unmasked, and went to the north drawing room to meet the honor guests.

The orchestra of the Bath and Tennis Club played for the dancing.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer's home is built around three sides of a spacious patio, and is an ideal spot for the many interesting parties held there.

Colored Lanterns

Fairy lamps, clusters of rose and green glass grapes, lighted from within by tapers, illuminated the grounds and the patio. And there were colored lanterns among the palm trees and festoons of rainbow lights.

The beauty of the setting and the colorful costumes of the guests and the moon were reflected in Lake Worth.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Tunnell's sister, wore a spanish costume of antique black lace, adorned with silver trimming and pink roses.

The Hon. Moya Beresford and Shirley Tunnell were dressed alike as sailor boys with blue and white suits topped with gob hats. Helen Tunnell wore a black and silver pierrot costume.

Before the dance the T. Richard Cowells gave a buffet dinner for 40 at their villa in honor of Mrs. Van Rensselaer and her guests.

Workers in the Y. W. C. A. budget campaign yesterday voted to send a message of congratulation to Mrs. E. W. Cassidy, member of Central Branch board of directors and a former active campaign worker, who was celebrating her eighty-seventh birthday in her home, St. James street.

The one-third mark in the $107,000 campaign was approached yesterday when workers reported $12,229 at their luncheon meeting in Central Branch, bringing the total to $35,578.

The principal address was given by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

The Kingsley House Association decided some time ago to take care of little boys as well as little girls.

They now have just one little boy, but he has livened things up considerably.

The association had decided to put on "The Sign of the Cross" as a benefit. But a member objected that the picture was too sexy!

In one of the recent bank failures, the association lost all its money. So it hopes to recover its loss at the benefit bridge it will give February 15 in Mrs. F. I. Merrick's home.

THE NEW HAT FOLLOWS LINE OF SMART AMERICAN SPORTS ATTIRE

A NEW hat is creating a stir. It is the first hat to follow the principle that women like best of all to wear sports clothes; and that next best they like wearing things that are modeled after sports clothes.

THIS HAT is, like all sports clothes, immensely practical. Being knitted, it can be crumpled up into a ball without spoiling its smart lines. It appears in both wool and silk, and in all colors; women wear it on the golf links, wear it motoring, or wear it to tea.

THE SKETCH shows two views of this new headgear; it may also be worn with the peak tucked in, in the manner of the overseas hat.

THE DRESS in the sketch makes use of the new knotted jersey lace. The lace is fashioned of silk jersey cords, which have been knotted and tied into a diamond design. It is used here in white, incrusted into the yoke of the skirt and at the elbows, and also appears as a collar for the wide neckline of the frock.

* * *

QUICKEST WAY TO WHITEN TEETH

START brushing your teeth with Kolynos. In just a few days they'll look whiter—shades whiter. They'll feel much cleaner. Here's the reason: Kolynos does what ordinary toothpastes can't do. As it cleans up ugly stain and tarnish—it foams into every tiny crevice and kills millions of germs that are the known cause of most tooth and gum troubles. Thus Kolynos gives RESULTS YOU CAN SEE. Cleaner, whiter teeth. Healthier looking gums. Give up incompetent ways of brushing and start using the Kolynos technique—a half-inch of this remarkable dental cream on a dry brush twice a day. TARTANS MAY LOSE FERGUS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Pirate Squad Complete. Hendrick's Many Shifts. Spitters Most Durable. Grid Contracts Passing. Aqueduct May Go Out. Cueist Hall Fails Again.

BUCS PAT EXCEPT FOR ONE RELEASE

UNLESS A CHANCE for some sort of deal develops to force a change in the plans of the management, the taking on of Pitchers Waite Hoyt and Ralph Birkhofer completed the Pirate forces for the spring training cruise, and the make-up of Skipper George Gibson's crew on the conditioning trip will be exactly the same as at present, with a single exception. That exception will be the one player Pittsburgh must yet turn over to Kansas City, along with Outfielder Stanley Schino, to complete the deal for Pitcher Harold Smith. The delivery is to be made by February 15, and the pastimer must be one acceptable to the American Association club.

George Gibson

Barring that change, which will reduce the roster from 30 to 29 players, here is the squad with which the Bucs will start training: Catchers—Grace, Padden, Finney and Brenzel. Pitchers—French, Swetonic, Meine, Swift, Harris, Chagnon, Hoyt, Smith, Kremer, Wood, Birkhofer and Brame. Infielders—Traynor, Suhr, Vaughan, Piet, Thevenow, Brubaker, Grosskloss and Young. Outfielders—Paul Waner, Lloyd Waner, Lindstrom, Comorosky, Jensen and Barbee. There are 12 pitchers, including three left-handers (French, Wood and Birkhofer), four catchers, eight infielders and six outfielders.

FEW PLAYERS IN the major baseball league have done more shifting around than Harvey Hendrick in recent seasons. The purchase of Hendrick by the Cubs from Columbus in the American Association marks the fifth time he has changed clubs within a period of less than two years.

During the race of 1931, Hendrick was transferred from the Dodgers to the Reds. Last year the Reds turned him over to the Cardinals in one of the mysterious deals in which these two clubs have figured, and soon afterward the Cards sent him back again.

RECENTLY THE REDS released Harvey to Columbus, a Cardinal farm, as part payment for Jim Bottomley, and in less than a week he was purchased by the Cubs, who had waived on him only a short time before. He has also been with the Red Sox, Yankees and Indians in his major league career.

Hendrick is to be carried as a pinch-hitter and as a substitute for Manager Charley Grimm at first base. There is no doubt that he will aid the Cubs during the season by giving them considerable extra batting power.

THE ADVANCED AGES of the three surviving spitball pitchers who are preparing to start another season in the major leagues would appear to spike the theory that that style of delivery is wearing on the arm. Jack Quinn is 47, at least, Urban Faber is 44 and Burleigh Grimes is 39. Managers used to say the pitch had harmful effects that shortened a hurler's career. When Bill Doak joined the Cardinals, Miller Huggins expressed regret that he used the damp fling, but Doak lasted 15 years. When Big Ed Walsh folded up, the spitter was blamed, but Faber declares that was all wrong. He says it was overwork that ruined Walsh.

Urban Faber

FABER POINTS TO his own case as evidence supporting his assertion. He says that if he had attempted to act as relief man a couple of times a week, in addition to taking his regular turn on the rubber, as Walsh did, he, too, would have been through many years ago.

As it is, Faber is preparing to start his twentieth consecutive season with the White Sox, and he says the spitter alone has kept him in the game. He took it up because he had a sore arm after Pittsburgh released him to Minneapolis 22 years ago, and he hasn't had a lame arm since.

CLARENCE MITCHELL will be among the missing this year, but he hung on until he was almost 42. And he attributes his longevity to the spitter. The fast ball puts full pressure on the arm, he says, while the curve pulls the muscles and causes kinks.

But the wet pitch on the other hand, according to Mitchell, is an easy and restful delivery, because the moisture does the work, causing the ball to take peculiar dips around the plate and forcing the batter to top it if he connects.

PERHAPS IT WON'T be long until other colleges follow the lead of Michigan State. That college, though it readily agreed to release Jim Crowley so that he could accept an offer from Fordham, has announced that it will not draw up any more contracts with its football coaches. These contracts appear not to mean anything, as the moment a coach gets a better offer from another school he proceeds to break his agreement anyway. The coach isn't the only party at fault, as the school that makes offers to him when it knows his contract runs for another year or longer is equally guilty. Incidentally, the coaches now raise the point that sometimes it's the college that fails to live up to a contract. It is said that one prominent mentor at a large university has not been paid a nickel on his contracted salary, lean receipts being the plea.

THOUGH OFFICIALS OF the Queens County Jockey Club deny that there is any intention to abandon racing this year, reports persist that the famous Aqueduct track is on the road to meet the fate of Sheepshead Bay, Gravesend and Brighton Beach and be cut up into building lots.

The organization asserts that the assessed valuation of the property, $2,000,000, is far out of line, and it is making a vigorous fight for reduced taxes. The track was operated at a loss last year, and it is said the club will have to get some relief if it is to continue. The course was opened in 1894.

THERE'S A NEW scoring system coming for basketball games, if Pat Page, one of the floor coaches at the University of Chicago, carries out successfully an idea of that kind on which he is now working.

Allen Hall

It will be a complete system, giving credit for passes and floor work that lead to baskets, and charging up errors for fumbles, missed shots, bad passes and the like. Page will award numerals to his freshmen players at Chicago on the basis of these records.

THE FACT THAT Allen Hall has lost all of his five games in the Chicago tournament for the world three-cushion billiard championship draws attention to that cueist as an example of the difference between being a star in ordinary competition and keeping pace with rivals in title play. Hall long has been a puzzle to the dopesters. Ordinarily, he is one of the best shot makers, and besides he has plenty of physical strength, more than average intelligence, and when he gets into a big tournament he almost invariably has the gallery with him, regardless of the popularity of his opponent. In spite of all these things, Hall never has won a world title. It was figured by many of the experts that this would be his lucky year and that he would finally reach the heights, but on the contrary his showing has been poorer than in the past. With all the other equipment needed, he appears to lack what it takes to be a money player.

SPECIAL BOARD TO DELIBERATE ON PROPOSALS

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Reference in the 1932 football rules committee report to the fear that something might have to be done eventually about the forward pass has brought forth from prominent coaches at least three suggestions that something be done immediately.

As a result, football's "Committee of Twenty," representing college and high school coaches, with Lou Little, of Columbia, in the chairman's seat, will meet here early in February to draw up recommendations to the rules committee.

SUGGESTIONS RECEIVED

Definitely, the fear of rules committee that forward passing was getting out of hand and that indiscriminate tossing should be discouraged, has brought these suggestions:

1.—That the penalty for two successive incomplete passes be increased from five to 15 yards.

2—That forward passes be permitted from any point behind the scrimmage line, replacing the present restriction that the ball must be thrown from a point at least five yards behind the line.

3—That a forward pass caught by the defense after it has touched an ineligible receiver be ruled an intercepted pass, instead of an incomplete pass as is the case today.

These suggestions stood out in the mind of Lou Little today as he prepared to receive members of the committee, including Dick Hanley, Jock Sutherland, Hunk Anderson, Bill Alexander, Tuss McLaughry, Fritz Crisler, Harry Kipke, Gil Dobie, Elmer Layden, Bernie Bierman, Harry Stuhldreher and Harry Mehre.

TO STUDY RULES

The committee was formed for the first time at the annual coaches' sessions here last December. The results of its deliberations will be turned over to the rules committee as suggestions for consideration at the annual meeting of the lawmakers next month. Little said:

"All we want to do is help the rules committee and help football if we can. There's nothing belligerent in our attitude. We're not trying to run football. After all, in order to teach football we have to know it and study it, and the results of that study, since the best interests of football are our best interests, should be of assistance in ruling the game.

"Personally I believe that, aside from simplifying the rules, taking away the ambiguity that exists in some places, they should be let alone. Last year's changes worked out very well, I think. A little attention to the forward pass is about all I can see that is necessary."

By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: EMPEROR NORTON OF THE UNITED STATES—The demented Englishman who claimed this title came to the United States in 1819. Financial reverses unbalanced his mind in 1857, and he presently became obsessed with the idea that he was emperor of the United States by "an act of the Legislature." He assumed the additional title of Protector of Mexico, issued "an imperial decree abolishing many federal offices in the United States, and summoned Lincoln and Jeff Davis to appear before him to compose their differences." Among other ambitious understandings of the "Emperor" was his suit for the hand of Queen Victoria and a scheme for the union of Great Britain to America. As his actions were innocent enough, he was treated with toleration and the inhabitants of San Francisco submitted good-naturedly to his "royal" acts until he died in 1880.

STELLAR GUARD STRICKEN WITH STOMACH ILL

By JESS CARVER

The path of Bill Fergus, more commonly known as Red, to basketball stardom this year is identical with the first part of the name of his home town. Bill is a native of Rocky River, O.

Red Fergus

Red will tell you it's just the other way around, that Cleveland is the suburb, but Red is looking forward to a career as a Chamber of Commerce booster, so what can you expect?

Ever since the stellar guard enrolled at Carnegie Tech, fetching along a pip of a reputation as a basketballer, ill fortune has been tugging at his coattail. Last year, he suffered a leg injury, which, while not serious, bothered him no little. Last fall, he turned out for the Tech football team and wrenched a knee. He was forced to submit to an operation, and it was only this week that the carrot-top appeared to have gained his old speed.

HAS TUMMY ACHE

And now . . . . what do you think? Red has a tummy ache and has been ordered to bed by Doc Marks, the team physician. Maybe he'll be able to play against the Dukes tomorrow night and maybe he won't, and if the latter is the case, Carnegie's chances against the Bluffites will take quite a booting.

With Fergus under the covers and George (Silver Tip) Silverman still out with his shoulder injury, Coach Max Hannum, who used to be a sports writer and still is a publicity purveyor, knows how it feels to have to shake up a lineup. He used to sit down and write stories (which he seldom believed) about coaches having to shift their battle front due to injuries and illness. Now he's in the same boat. Yesterday he had Specs Freedel and Jo Mihm alternating at Fergus' position, with Rigg playing the other guard on which Silverman figured he held a mortgage.

Things are not what they might be at Duquesne, either. The Dukes appear to be overtrained. Jim MacDougal and Capt. Bunk McGeever both are nursing colds and appear to be in slightly run-down condition and have been ordered to take it easy by the Dukes' team medico. MacDougal can't go against Tech. Len Brenner will get the call. The other positions are set, with Bird and Feldman at the forwards and Moore and Reiter at the guards.

PITT EYES STYDAHAR

The boys at Pitt read with some interest of the doings of J. Stydahar, West Virginia's giant center, against Wesleyan in last night's game at Morgantown. Despite the fact his team was beaten Big Joe kicked in with 24 points including 10 field goals. Clair Cribbs, the Pitt center, was especially interested in the reports of the game.

Stydaher, you know, was at one time a member of the Pitt freshmen football squad. Joe went to football camp with the Panthers in 1932, but after a week there became homesick and one Sunday in company with some West Virginia University alumni, took a trip to Clarksburg. He never returned. He entered West Virginia shortly afterward.

Big as he is, Joe can't be much tougher than Moose Krause, of Notre Dame, was last week . . . in fact, if he is 50 per cent as good as Moose, Pitt can sit back and grieve over Joe's desertion of a year ago. If he scores 24 points on Cribbs, or even half that many, he'll be going very well.

W. VA. BOXERS STRONG

The Panther basketballers figure to beat the Mountaineers but the Panther boxers to face the crack West Virginia punchers in an Intercollegiate Conference match after the ball game, can hope only for the best and in this case, the best will be the escape from total annihilation.

HARVARD CUTS BUDGET

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Most of the comforts and luxuries that made Harvard athletes one of the most pampered groups in intercollegiate sport were wiped out by Athletic Director William J. Bingham while he was overcoming a $316,000 football shrinkage and balancing his 1932-33 sports budget.

To do so Bingham had to chop $210,000 off the cost of running the Harvard sports program, which has been reduced from $886,000 to $676,000.

Here are some of his economy measures:

Such frills as private cars and diners, Pullmans, taxi-service, porters and police escorts have been eliminated from Harvard traveling and from now on all Crimson sports teams, even the varsity football squad will ride in day coaches.

To save $11,000 on equipment, Bingham has ruled out new shells and oars for the varsity crew, new tackling or blocking dummies for the football teams, new vaulting poles, javelins and weights for the track team and new uniforms for the baseball and hockey teams.

Anzac Pair Presses Bike Race Leaders

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The Australian team of Walker and Gadou unleashed a strong drive in the evening sprints last night and caught up with the Americans, McNamara and Hill, who had held the lead in the six-day bicycle race for three days.

The Americans and the Australians were on even terms in number of miles and laps, but McNamara and Hill were ahead in points.

Shortly before the sprints began the number of teams was cut to nine by the withdrawal of Rene Boogmans, of the Belgian team, who suffered a fractured wrist in a spill, and of Boland, of the Hungarian team. Rene's young brother and partner, Marcel, was then paired with Peneteire, Boland's former partner.

Lindstrom Content To Stick In Outfield

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—It's all right with Freddie Lindstrom if they keep him chasing baseballs in the outfield from now on.

During a fanning bee in a Loop gymnasium where Lindstrom is getting ready for 1933 and Pittsburgh, he was asked if he'd rather play third base as he once did for the Giants or patrol the outfield. He said:

"Give me the outfield every time. It's better and cleaner work. You don't run down so soon. When you see a fellow walking along with stooped shoulders and a worried look, you can pick him out. He's an ex-third baseman who spent his baseball career chasing after bunts that weren't bunts.

"Nope, not for me. Give me the outfield every time."

SLICE VALUE OF PREAKNESS

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—A 50 per cent slash in the stake for the 1933 Preakness, one of the biggest horse races of the country, has been approved by the Maryland Racing Commission.

The announcement by M. L. Daiger, secretary of the Maryland Jockey Club, said the stake for the Pimlico classic this spring will be $25,000 added and included scaling down of other stakes for the spring meet.

The Preakness, rated with the Kentucky Derby for 3-year-olds will be held May 13, a week after the Churchill Downs premier. The Kentucky Derby will retain its usual stake of $50,000.

DOVER, O., Jan. 26.—Mrs. Robba Young, 61, wife of Denton T. (Cy) Young, retired big league baseball pitcher, died last night in Union Hospital, where she had received treatment for a week.

SUTTER TO PLAY BELL TODAY

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Clifford Sutter, of Tulane University, seeded No. 1 in the all-South tennis championship tournament, will face Berkeley Bell, of New York, in the quarter-final round of the tournament today. Sutter drew a bye yesterday while Bell eliminated Kohn Nixon, of Miami, 6-3, 6-3.

George M. Lott, of Chicago, drew upon the tennis mastery he hopes will put him again on the American Davis Cup team, and defeated Gus Feuer, of Miami, 6-1, 6-2, in the third round.

Dr. Gene McCauliff, of New York, found Joe Whalen, an unseeded Miami player, a stiff opponent, and lost one love set to him before winning, 7-5, 0-6, 6-2. McAuliff's twisting service failed him in the second set, when he scored only 13 points during the six games, but he came back strong in the third set.

Lott will play Carroll Turner, of Miami, in the quarter-finals.

Jay Cohn, of Chicago, won, 6-1, 6-2, from Hudson Hamm, Fort Lauderdale youth, who won four titles in the recent Florida public courts tournament. In the quarter-finals he will play Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, who defeated Ray White, of Tampa, 6-4, 6-4, yesterday.

Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. Y., defeated Dr. Philip B. Hawk, of Forest Hills, N. Y., 6-2, 6-2.

Sarazen Departs For Tourneys In Florida

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—After shoving his pockets full of medicine bottles, Gene Sarazen left here for Miami and the Florida golf tournaments.

"I feel fine," said the holder of the American and British Open titles. "In another two weeks I expect to be fully recovered."

Sarazen contracted influenza in the third round of the Los Angeles Open. In the course of the hospital siege he had his tonsils removed.

Goodwin Eliminated By Celest Durand

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Celest Durand, of Long Island, took revenge as he eliminated Tommy Goodwin, of Monroe, N. Y., in the second round of the Lake Worth amateur golf tournament, 2 up.

Goodwin trimmed Durand in the recent Miami mid-winter tournament, but he was no match yesterday for Durand, who played the first six holes in two under par.

Arnold Brillhart, of Yonkers, N. Y., beat Roy Gussman, of West Palm Beach, in 19 holes, while W. J. Donohoe, of New York, was pressed to eliminate J. H. Forsman, of New York, 2 and 1.

Durand was favored to continue his advance today when he meets Brillhart.

Bring Them Back!

The Pacific Coast League has voted to return the 25-cent bleachers to baseball.—News Dispatch.

In days of old when derbies bold and tandems were in style,
With "Little Annie Rooney" and "Bedelia" to beguile,
We laughed off all our panics and enconomists the while
We sat upon the 25-cent bleachers.

Away with sour prophets and their base hypocrisy,
I'm weary, too, of Einstein, and the new Technocracy—
So here's a toast, we'll drink it to an Aristocracy:
"O, Bring us back the 25-cent bleachers!"

SLAVIAS NEXT FOR CURRY

By TOM BIRKS

The Curry Soccer Club, which defeated the Cleveland Shamrocks, defending national amateur champions by a 4-to-0 score in the first round of the national open challenge competition cup last Sunday at Greenlee Field, will meet the Cleveland Slavias on the same field Sunday, February 12, in the second round of play.

This information from the national cup committee was received by the president of the West Penn Football Association today.

The Slavias, a professional organization and easily the best soccer club in the Buckeye State, should be a great attraction in Pittsburgh, especially inasmuch as Ralph and George Caraffi, former Pittsburgh players, are the star members of the club.

Slavia easily defeated the Buffalo (N. Y.) Germans in the first round last Sunday and will be a hard nut for the Keystone League booters to crack.

Local fans will welcome this battle to Pittsburgh, and despite the fact that the Shamrocks drew a capacity crowd as amateur champions, the national reputation of the Slavia professional circles makes the draw the best attraction seen here in years.

Mike Bookie, local star with the Curry team, should have a good line on the Slavia team. Bookie played with the Slavias at one time and was a member of the team selected for the all-America team that toured South America.

Rudolph Boosts Lead Over Ponzi

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, shot his lead over Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, up past the 250 mark in their 1,750-point pocket billiard match as he won two more blocks yesterday. Rudolph now leads, 750 to 470.

The Tipoff

George Shaffer, of Greensburg, one of the outstanding athletes developed at Washington and Jefferson College in the last few years, is through with varsity sports. He is slated to graduate at the end of the present semester, completing his four-year course in three and one-half years. Shaffer is one of the few men now in school who have won letters as quarterback with the varsity football team, two as a hurdler with the track team and two as a guard in basketball.

His fine attitude and spirit were paid fitting tribute last fall when he was chosen as the most valuable member of the varsity grid squad. During the summer between his sophomore and junior years, Shaffer won a gold medal offered by the District of Columbia for the outstanding soldier in Citizens Military Training Camp at Ft. Monroe.

The game with Pitt Tuesday night marked the beginning of a period of inactivity for W. & J. floor athletes. The Presidents are not scheduled to return to action until February 8 when Juniata will be played in a return engagement. Other varsity sports will also be at a standstill for a brief time, the boxers idle until February 7, when they meet West Virginia here and the wrestlers marking time until February 9 when Waynesburg will appear here.

BOZEMAN HOLDS LEAD IN WORLD CUE TITLE TOURNEY

KIECKHEFER LOSES SECOND MATCH

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—If Jay Bozeman, the rapid-fire billiard artist from Vallejo, Cal., doesn't lose another match soon, he's likely to wake up some morning with his prize mustache stolen.

When Bozeman arrived in Chicago for the start of the world three-cushion billiard championship drive 10 days ago, his rivals noticed a mustache of the midget, shoe string variety adorning his upper lip. He said:

"As long as I have this mustache, I'm going to be in the running for that title and the dough that goes with it. This mustache is going to bring me luck."

YOUNGSTER AT TOP

The mustache was still there today and so was Bozeman. He led the field in the race for the title with a mark of four victories against one setback. He was certain to have at least a share in the lead after today, too, as he was idle while his closest rival, Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, faced the dangerous Clarence Jackson, of Detroit, in the big match tonight. Cochran's record was three victories and one defeat.

Bozeman soared into the undisputed lead yesterday as he defeated Tiff Denton, Kansas City veteran, 50 to 28, in 37 innings, and Cochran was turned back, 50 to 35, in 46 innings by Frank Scoville, of Buffalo. It was Cochran's first defeat of the tournament.

In his drive for the title, Bozeman has played brilliant and erratic billiards. Against Denton, he completely upset his rival with his seemingly careless and exceptionally fast shots and had the veteran at sea. He ran up a lead of 26 to 7 after 23 innings and coasted in after a brisk rally by his rival.

KIECKHEFER BOWS

Augie Kieckhefer's chances to retain his crown faded last night as he suffered his second reverse in five matches, falling before Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, 50 to 46, in 62 innings. The Chicagoan's defeat was caused by his slow start. He went through the first six innings without scoring a point as Reiselt clicked off seven.

The standing of the players:

	W.	L.	Hr.	Rg.	Tr.	Tr.
J. N. Bozeman	4	1	9	56	227	207
Welker Cochran	3	1	4	50	185	196

SHIELDS, HALL NET VICTORS

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Paced by the defending champion, J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., and Frank Shields, big Davis Cup player from New York, three players from the United States and five from Montreal have advanced to the quarter-final round of the Canadian indoor tennis championships. The entire Boston delegation and one more New York player were eliminated yesterday.

Hall, who opened his title defense Tuesday, won his second round match yesterday without much trouble from Ernest Savard, of Montreal. The scores were 6-3, 6-3.

SHIELDS VICTOR

Shields, co-favorite in the title quest, lost only five games as he recorded two victories. In the first round he trounced Leslie Clegg, of Montreal, 6-3, 6-1; in the second he eliminated Hon. Peter Aitken, of London, England's one representative in the tourney, 6-1, 6-0.

Edward W. Burns, Jr., of New York, also won two matches, defeating Paul Fontaine, Montreal, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, and David Morrice, Montreal, 12-10, 6-4. Another New Yorker, Albert Law, won his first round match from Dr. F. Coburn, Montreal, 6-1, 6-2, but lost to Robert Murray, Montreal, 6-4, 6-2, in the second.

In addition to Murray, the Montreal quarter-finalists are Marcel Rainville, C. W. Leslie, Roland Lonetin and Laird Watt.

WIN IN DOUBLES

The stars from below the border also won their opening doubles matches with a few exceptions. Shields and Burns had one hard set as they eliminated Ross Wilson and Eric Walker, Montreal, 6-1, 9-7. Hall and Rainville easily defeated A. Forsythe and A. Cameron, Montreal, 6-1, 6-1.

Sport Shorts

ITHACA, N. Y.—Cornell University authorities today denied reports the athletic association was "broke." They said there were sufficient funds in the treasury—more than enough to pay equipment maintenance and coaches' salaries until next fall, and it was in much better financial shape than some other institutions with huge stadium indebtedness.

LEWISBURG, Pa.—Former friends and classmates of Christy Mathewson, at Bucknell University, were to lay a wreath on the grave of the famous pitcher of the New York Giants today.

PHILADELPHIA.—Bill Carr, of the University of Pennsylvania, 400-meters Olympic champion, today confirmed a report he will retire from active track competition this fall. Upon graduation from Penn, he said he expected to tour Europe with the United States track team this summer and then enter the business world.

LOS ANGELES.—After 18 years, Barney Oldfield, auto racer, was winner today of a $25 lawsuit filed against him by an auto body company. Oldfield appealed to Superior Court in 1915 after losing judgment in a lower court. The case was dismissed yesterday.

CHICAGO.—Clark Shaughnessy, football coach at Loyola University of New Orleans, is one of four prospects still under consideration to succeed A. A. Stagg, veteran football coach at the University of Chicago, it was announced today. Nelson T. Metcalf, who will succeed Stagg as athletic director, said the field of applicants has been narrowed down to four candidates.

TOLEDO, O.—Sale of the Toledo Baseball Club of the American Association to Clarence (Dan) Rowland, of Chicago and Albany, N. Y., or to one of two local parties interested, may be consummated in the "very near future," Al E. Reuben, receiver for the club, indicated today.

Meyers Bowl Boxing Arena Being Sold for Mere $500

CONSTABLE JOHN DUHOM, OF NORTH BRADDOCK, KNOCKS DOWN OUTDOOR FIGHT CENTER TO CARL C. BALDRIDGE AT PUBLIC SALE

Part of the turnout for the public sale of the Meyers Bowl boxing arena in North Braddock. The sale was scheduled to be held on the premises, but, on account of rain, was conducted in a garage across the street. Carl C. Baldridge, owner of the ground on which the bowl is built, made the high bid of $500 and took over the plant. Baldridge is undecided at present as to what he will do with the bowl. This is an exclusive Sun-Telegraph picture.

J. W. Lodge at Ambassadors.

Continuing their policy of bringing only the best out-of-town teams to Pittsburgh for basketball games, the Goldenson Vanities will meet the Fairmont Pirates, champions of West Virginia, at the South Side Market House tonight. The Fairmont team is composed mainly of former Broaddus College stars.

Tonight on their home floor, the Y. M. H. A. floormen play their opening game in the West Penn League aginst the Goose Goslins of the South Side. The Oaklanders were but recently voted in as a member for the second half of the league and drew as their assignment one of the most powerful teams in the circuit.

In the other games tonight, the J. P. Rooneys are at home to the Willigs; Goodwill takes on the Tarentum Y. M. C. A. five and St. Michaels appears at Glenshaw.

Jeannette Eleven To Be Banqueted

JEANNETTE, Pa., Jan. 26.—Jeannette High School's 1932 football squad will be officially recognized as the Westmoreland county football champion at the annual banquet to be held Wednesday evening, February 1, at the Elks' House.

The squad will receive a silver cup donated by Jacob Elpern, of Greensburg, who is sponsor of the Westmoreland County High School Football League, and who will make the presentation at the banquet.

Coach Sutherland of the University of Pittsburgh will be the principal speaker. A. Markley Barnes, coach of the championship eleven, was one of Sutherland's pupils when Barnes was a Pitt student.

Chicago Awarded Outboard Title Event

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The 1933 national outboard championships will be held at Chicago September 23-25 in connection with the world's fair, it was decided at a meeting of the National Outboard Racing Commission at the motor boat show.

Other dates set were: Miami Beach, Fla., Col. Green Trophy race, March 17-18; Margate-Longport, N. J., September 2-3; Ocean City, N. J., September 4, and Middletown, Conn., September 9-10.

Two Rookies Added To White Sox Roster

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—The White Sox, making a strong effort to bolster their club for the 1933 season, took on two more players for a tryout today.

They are Carl Boone, 27, a right handed pitcher, and Charles Wax, a 21-year-old catcher. Boone was tried out by the Cubs last year at Catalina Island, but received a broken finger and could not play. Wax was a star backstop for Virginia Polytechnic Institute and last year played semi-pro baseball.

TAYLOR BALKS AT CONTRACT

WEST NEWTON, Pa., Jan. 26.—Danny Taylor, former Chicago Cub outfielder and at present the property of the Brooklyn club of the National League, is getting in shape for the coming pennant race, but so far has not come to terms with the Brooklyn club.

Taylor refused to say whether or not he'd been given a cut for 1933, but said he was dissatisfied with the contract sent him by the Dodgers.

CARDS RELEASE PAIR

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Sylvester Johnson, veteran right-handed pitcher, has been released to Columbus of the American Association by the St. Louis Cardinals, it was announced here today.

It was also announced Miguel Gonzales, veteran catcher, had been given his unconditional release by the Cardinals.

FERRELL, KAMM OUT

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—Wesley Ferrell, pitching ace, and Willie Kamm, fleet infielder, have returned unsigned contracts to the Cleveland Indians. Ferrell said there was a "wide financial breach" between himself and the management. Pitcher Oral Hildebrand joined the dissatisfied group yesterday.

JOE MOORE SIGNS

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The signing of Joe Moore, left fielder from Texas, for the 1933 campaign was announced today by the Giants.

Sportsmen to Hold Field Day Saturday

The South Hills Sportsmen's Association will inaugurate its 1933 season Saturday afternoon with a field day on the club's grounds on Brownsville road.

Trapshooting and rifle contests will be staged for members and visitors. Cash prizes wil be awarded under the Lewis class system.

OLIVER COACH BURIED

Funeral services for David A. Smith, Oliver High School coach who died Monday afternoon following an unsuccessful operation, were held at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Smith, 300 Southern avenue, Mt. Washington, last night. Interment was made this afternoon in the Mt. Lebanon Cemetery.

CHAMPS LOSE THIRD

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The Wichita National A. A. U. basketball championship team suffered its third straight Missouri Valley setback of the season here last night at the hands of Hutchinson, 26 to 31.

POLOISTS CARD DOUBLE BILL

The Shady Side Academy polo team has been invited to compete in the prep school division of the National indoor polo tournament, booked for New York this spring. The academy officials are giving the invitation serious consideration and may decide to enter the Blue and White riders in the national event.

Meanwhile the boys are prepping for their league tussle with the 308th Cavalry in the second game of a polo double-header in the Hunt Armory Saturday night. The Vangs and South Park trios will battle in the first attraction.

The double-header is the first to be tried by the league.

In Saturday night's tussles, the Vangs will spot the Parkers an eight-goal advantage while Shady Side will give the Cavalry a two-goal lead. The Vangs and Shady Side are engaged in a red hot battle for the league title.

Wykoff Embarks On Eastern Invasion

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Frank Wykoff, I. C. A. A. A. A. sprint champion, left here today for New York for his first whirl at indoor running.

The University of Southern California flash, holder of the world record of 9.4 seconds for the century dash, has just completed his college work and will receive his degree next June.

Bare Knees, Shorts Proposed As Golf Attire

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The International Association of Clothing Designers expects to bring about in the United States something which all the Scottish precedent for the ancient and honorable game of golf could not do.

Next year, the association announced at the close of its annual convention, the American golfer will go with knees exposed to eyes and breezes from all directions.

No more will slacks or baggy knickers and gay woolen stockings cover skinny shanks. It is the dictum of the style makers for men.

The well-dressed golfer will wear—say the style makers—shorts similar to those used by the Boy Scouts of America, and rolled-down socks.

ARMY CANCELS SPORT EVENTS

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Continuing their precautionary measures to prevent the spread of influenza at the United States Military Academy, Army authorities have ordered the cancellation of all indoor sports events and other gatherings until January 29.

Saturday's polo game with Squadron A, and hockey game against the Morristown Hockey Club will be held, because they will be played under open-air conditions. The basketball team also has been authorized to make a trip to State College, Pa., for a game with Penn State.

Parks Golf Fee Boost Not Likely

The plan to increase from $10 to $15 the cost of season permits at the county parks golf courses is likely to be abandoned by the County Commissioners, it was indicated today. Such a move, it was feared, would be a case of "killing the goose that lays the golden egg."

More than 7,000 public parks golfers last year paid $43,858 into the county treasury and approximately $15,000 in caddie fees. Golfers are the heaviest contributors to the upkeep of the parks, and the commissioners are expected to vote to "let well enough alone."

Babe Didrikson Regains Health

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Mildred (Babe) Didrickson, noted girl athlete, who was ordered to bed yesterday by her physician, has recovered from the slight temperature that caused her to cancel yesterday's engagements.

Dr. L. Roy Leader said she would resume her scheduled program today, including rehearsals for a vaudeville tour.

Wynne May Coach At Michigan State

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The news today says Chet Wynne, head coach at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala., is in Chicago conferring with Michigan State authorities concerning a coaching job.

Wynne, whose football team last year was undefeated and tied only once, has not renewed his contract, which expires in May.

GAMES TONIGHT

Marshall vs. Fairmont at Fairmont.
Glenville vs. Morris Harvey at Barboursville.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 26 — West Virginia's hopes of scoring a basketball victory over Pitt in Pittsburgh Saturday night were not greatly increased today following last night's setto with West Virginia Wesleyan, but the Mountaineers did point today to a scoring threat of real class.

While the Bobcats were defeating the Mountaineers, 39 to 28, in a hotly contested game, Joe Stydahar, sophomore center, covered himself with glory and the basket with shots as he sank 10 field goals and four fouls for 24 points. Stydahar was not eligible for varsity competition until last night.

Wesleyan won the game when Tom Giantonio tossed a goal from past the center of the floor just before the final gun. Hull, forward, and Spears, center, each scored 13 points for the Bobcats. The lineup:

Wesleyan.	G.	F.	Pts.	West Va.	G.	F.	Pt.
Edmundson, f	0	0	0	Sortet, f	3	2	8
Hull, f	5	3	13	Slate, f	2	1	5

Score at half—West Virginia 21, Wesleyan 18. Referee—Art Ward. Umpire—Ben Kahn.

BOXERS WIN

Following the basketball defeat, the Mountaineer boxers defeated the Glenville State Teachers' College ring squad, 5 to 0. The match was the first of the season for the Mountaineers. The summary:

115 pounds—Glenville not represented; Barkalow and Lowe, of West Virginia, fought exhibition, two rounds.

125 pounds—Puzilla, West Virginia, won by a technical knockout over Deitz, Glenville, after 1 minute 55 seconds, second round.

135 pounds—Glenville not represented; Neely and O. Hamilton, of West Virginia, fought exhibition, 3 rounds.

145 pounds—T. Hamilton, West Virginia, won a decision over Rishel, Glenville, 3 rounds.

155 pounds—Gallo, West Virginia, won a decision over Husk, Glenville, 3 rounds.

165 pounds—Voorhees, West Virginia, won a decision over Smyth, Glenville, 3 rounds.

JACKETS DEFEATED

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 26.—The Waynesburg College varsity wrestling team lost its second dual engagement of the season to the West Virginia grapplers here last night, bowing by a 29-to-3 score. Zubela, Waynesburg captain, scored the only Yellow Jacket victory, winning on a time advantage over Chittum, of the Mountaineers.

Gregalach Assigned 'Chase Top Weight

LONDON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. M. A. Gemmell's big Irish steeplechaser, Gregalach, winner of the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree in 1929, today was assigned top weight of 175 pounds for the 1933 renewal, March 24.

The American-bred and owned Troublemaker, leading United States winner, and owned by Mrs. T. H. Somerville, was highest weighted of the American entries, being assigned 160 pounds.

Fight Results

At Moose Temple—Manuel Quintero defeated Billy Holt, 10 rounds; Marty Gornick won by technical knockout over Marty McHale, 5 rounds; Johnny Durso defeated Jerry Clements, 6 rounds; Kitner Wilson won referee's decision over Georgie Schlee, 4 rounds; Shorty Washko defeated Johnny Woods, 4 rounds; Joey Zelano won referee's decision over Jackie McCann, 4 rounds.

HOLT BEATEN BY QUINTERO AT MOOSE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Manuel Quintero, the Spanish welterweight, from Tampa, Fla., stands redeemed today in the eyes of the local fans as a result of his victory over Billy Holt, Homewood Negro, in their return bout in the windup of the reopening show in the Moose Temple, downtown, last night. Billy upset the dope by beating Manuel in Motor Square Garden, New Years night. Last night, he won only one round, the sixth, in which he nailed Quintero with rights for two counts of nine. He also held his own in the first and last rounds, but all of the others went to Quintero.

It was a case of Quintero, at 142¾ pounds, proving a much better fighter than he was at 145½ in their first meeting. He kept on the move and nailed Billy almost at will with left hooks and swings to the body and head. He seldom used his right.

SINGLE FLASH BY HOLT

The action was monotonous and one-sided except for that solitary flash by Holt in the sixth round, and even then Quintero was well ahead until Billy suddenly lashed out with an overhand right that landed on the jaw and toppled Manuel near the ropes close to his own corner. At four he was on one knee, grabbing uncertainly for the lower rope, and he barely beat the count getting up. He ran into another right and was spilled again and this time started to get up without a count, but changed his mind and went down again along the ropes.

This action by Quintero caused some confusion between the referee and the timekeeper in getting the count under way, and he got the benefit of possibly a dozen seconds on the floor. His head was clear when he arose, however, and he finished the round in good shape and never was in danger again.

The differences between Quintero's losing and winning fights against Holt were that he was dictating the terms last night and was more accurate in his hitting. As for Holt, he won the first fight by driving ahead with right hand punches to the head against his southpaw opponent. Last night he was throwing the right only spasmodically and was futilely trying to outbox his man. Billy, at 148, had an edge of 5¼ pounds in weight.

What the main bout lacked in sustained action was supplied in the preliminaries.

GORNICK STOPS M'HALE

Marty Gornick, Whitaker junior-welterweight, won the scheduled eight-round semi-final by a technical knockout over Marty McHale, of McKeesport, when Referee Al Grayber stopped the bout at the end of the fifth round to save McHale, who had been down for a count of nine in the round and had his left eye completely closed. McHale protested the action, but he seemingly was on the way to a full-fledged knockout and appeared to be getting a break.

Johnny Durso showed a lot of stuff in winning his fourth verdict over Jerry Clements in the six-rounder, piling up a big lead which a strong finish by Clements in the last two rounds failed to wipe out.

The three four-rounders were especially lively. In them Elmer Wilson, Negro junior-welterweight, of the East End, was bested by Georgie Schlee, of the North Side, but got the referee's decision when the judges disagreed; Shorty Washko, Duquesne bantam, won over Johnny Woods, Hill Negro, and Jackie McCann, of Lawrenceville, had an edge on Joey Zelano, of the North Side, although the judges disagreed and the referee's decision went to Zelano.

The heavy rain kept down the size of the crowd for the show, but the gate was around $500, nevertheless, at popular prices. It was announced next week's bill at the Moose will consist of four eight-round bouts, with Frankie Goosby, Anson Green, Charley Baxter and Ray Winbush booked for one side of the card.

Tonight's Fights

Benefit amateur bouts under auspices of Elks, Sharpsburg, Pa.

Eddie Houghton vs. Harry Taylor, 8 rounds, Philadelphia.

Billy Flick vs. Scotty Otten, 10 rounds, Evansville, Ind.

Jack Peterson vs. Jack Pettifer (for British heavyweight title), 15 rounds, London.

Babe Anderson vs. Don Fraser, 6 rounds, Tacoma, Wash.

Between Rounds

The card is complete for the Arena boxing show tomorrow night with the signing of Eddie Bolack, of Cleveland, to meet Jacquette Rivemlo, local Negro welterweight, in the eight-round semi-final. Bolack originally was engaged to box Tiger Joe Randall in the 10-round windup, but wasn't considered a sufficiently strong card, and Jack King, of Little Rock, was substituted for a return bout against Randall, whom he already has beaten, in a bout at Motor Square Garden. Tuz Phillips, of Charleroi, returns to action after a long absence to box Hal Finney, Hill Negro welterweight, in the second bout, and P. Crigan, of Homestead, takes on Dominic Mancini, of Blairsville, in the opener.

Tony Palazzolo, of Detroit, who boxes Moe Rutch in the eight-round semi-final to the Barney Ross-Johnny Datto bout at the Garden next Monday night, has met Soldier Dombrouski, Carl Mazzola, Johnny Mitchell, Mickey Cohen and Paul Dazzo, among others. He recently returned from a trip to California, and now is fighting out of Chicago as a stablemate of Ross.

Rutch also is signed to box in Youngstown, engaging Maffy Mathison, of Buffalo, in a main bout on February 8. W. G. Tracey is the new promoter of the Youngstown club. Mathison defeated Johnny Edwards in the Ohio city a month ago.

Baby Arizmendi, Mexican, recognized by the California Commission as the world featherweight champion, as a result of his victory over Speedy Dado, Tuesday night, also holds wins over Fidel LaBarba, Tommy Paul, Claude Varner, Young Tommy and Newsboy Brown.

Jack Metz and Billy Linder, Willow Club coaches, have entered a full team in the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. junior championship boxing tournament, to be staged at the Keystone A. C., Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week and the following Monday, and will make a strong bid for the point trophy.

Leon Jendrasiak and Johnny Allen, lightweights, are back here from Grand Rapids and Benny Dyke, 140-pounder, who opposed Sammy Mandell and other good ones is with them. Irish Kane will hand the trio.

Joe Marcus, of Braddock, has been signed by his manager, Bunny Buntach, for a 10-round bout with Tracey Cox, of the Detroit Olympia Arena, Friday night of next week.

Freddie Edwards boxes Freddie Fitzgerald at East Liverpool, O., next Monday night.

Having lost the Meyers Bowl property through the landlord's sale yesterday, Apples Meyers says he plans to rent the arena from the new owner, Carl Baldridge, for bouts during the summer. The arena was sold to the highest bidder, who happened to be Baldridge, owner of the ground, for $500 to satisfy a debt of $1,155.25 in back rent and taxes.

RAIL SHARES AGAIN CHUG FORWARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 26. (AP.)—Rails again provided rather dim highlights in another apathetic session of the stock market today.

Pennsylvania's ordering of a dividend yesterday, and Delaware and Hudson's announcement of a substantial purchase of New York Central evidently generated a little fresh interest in the carrier issues. The market remained a quiet professional affair, however, and tobaccos were adversely influenced by American Tobacco's discontinuance of its extra dividend.

Wall street was still chiefly interested in trying to detect some convincing signs of the appearance of the usual seasonal improvement in manufacturing industry, which normally appears in late January and lasts until early April. Some quarters expressed the view that legislative uncertainties may tend to stifle the usual pickup, although the more general tendency was to believe that some recovery would be experienced.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation's report for December attracted some attention, inasmuch as loans swelled to $153,774,007, an increase of $46,120,420 over December. Banking authorities pointed out, however, that an increase in loans to banks was to have been expected, for the period around the turn of the year is normally most trying to banking.

American Tobacco's discontinuance of its extra dividend led to expectations in some quarters of a further cut in wholesale cigaret prices to meet competition from the low-priced brands. Prices of leading brands were recently reduced from $6.85 to $6 per thousand, and a further cut to perhaps $5.50 per thousand would not be surprising. Next week's meeting of United States Steel directors was a subject of much conjecture, with opinion considerably mixed as to what action may be taken on the preferred dividend.

TRADE BUYING LIFTS COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 4 higher on steady Liverpool cables and trade buying. March, 6.17c; May, 6.29c; July, 6.41c; October, 6.62c; December, 6.75c.

March sold to $6.31 and October to $6.63 on the initial demand, making net advances of about 2 to 5 points on active months, but the advance seemed to meet more southern selling, accompanied by rumors of slightly freer spot offerings from the interior of Texas.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 26.—Cotton, receipts 2,000 bales; American nil. Spot, moderate business done; prices 2 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.86; good middling, 5.56; strict middling, 5.31; middling, 5.16; strict low middling, 5.01; low middling, 4.86; strict good ordinary, 4.66; good ordinary, 4.36. Futures closed steady, January, 4.92; March, 4.94; May, 4.96; July, 4.98; October, 5.02; December, 5.05.

March sold up to 6.20 later in the morning, or about 5 points net higher, but the bulges met further Southern selling and fluctuations became irregular. At mid-day May was selling around 6.30, with the general market quiet at net advances of 2 to 4 points.

REVEAL LATEST R. F. C. LOAN REPORT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The House of Representatives and the country were told in detail today—despite strenuous objections from Reconstruction Finance Corporation members—just how that huge federal relief agency had pledged $1,195,000,000 in five months to help business try to get on an even keel.

At the same time, a report disclosed the corporation during December had authorized and made loans to financial institutions and railroads totaling $80,193,572. There were no loans required by banks in the Pittsburgh district.

AID FIVE PENNA. BANKS

At the close of business December 31, the corporation had made in all loans totaling $1,648,622,000. Its authorizations since it began business were $2,095,823,000 and from last February 2 to the end of the year, repayments were $317,288,000.

Five Pennsylvania banks and one mortgage guarantee company, all in Eastern Pennsylvania, were authorized to borrow more than $1,000,000 each, and 25 others more than $300,000.

Following the policy he insisted upon last spring, Speaker Garner made the report public. Pressure had been exerted to have the report given only to members of Congress, on the ground that publication would be harmful to the borrowers. The speaker denied this and held that since the loans granted after July 21 had been published under an amendment to the original R. F. C. Act the others should be, too. The later loans have been made public monthly since July.

RAILS PLEDGED BIG SUM

Railroads were told they could borrow $224,147,000. Of this, $32,500,000 was allowed the Baltimore and Ohio, and $27,500,000 went to the Pennsylvania.

The December report showed that at the end of the year the corporation had assets of $1,725,000,000, and a cash balance of $7,927,000. The December loan authorization or allocations included $35,837,000 for state relief, $8,271,000 for self-liquidating projects, $2,671,000 for facilitating agricultural exports, $11,000,000 to the Secretary of Agriculture for loans and advances to farmers, $6,000,000 for capital in agricultural credit corporations and an $800,000 subscription to Home Loan Bank stock.

The corporation announced that because of prevailing low money rates it had, in December, decreased its interest rates one-half per cent. This report also said that total loans authorized for the month were 738, and applications from financial institutions and railroads were 756. In November, 584 loans were approved and financial institutions and railroads filed 576 applications.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—While there were a number of spotty rallies in the bond market today, the side-lines were still the favorite positions of most traders and investors. The United States government section was quiet and slightly irregular, although Liberty 3½s reached another new 1932-33 high. Foreign obligations were slightly mixed.

Steel Companies Plan To Make Labor Pay For Mistakes

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

A NEW WAVE of price cutting in the impoverished steel industry is being accompanied by reports that a further reduction is to be made in wages.

The tendency towards the shading of prices has increased during the past two weeks as the wage cut story has gained momentum.

Producers have been taking the attitude that they could afford to make new concessions to buyers since the difference in price can be absorbed by lowering the cost of labor.

It is difficult to understand how the steel industry has been helped by the two preceding wage cuts or how it is to be helped by the one which is understood to be under consideration. If the past wage cuts had lightened the burden of the depression on the steel industry by passing an added share onto labor, the steps might have had some justification. But the steel wage cuts, up to the present time, have done no good for the industry and they have added to the troubles of employes, already hit by reduced working time.

Past Wage Reductions Followed by Price Cuts

THE LEADING STEEL companies anounced wage cuts of 10 per cent in October, 1931, and 15 per cent in May, 1932. Both these cuts were followed within a short time by reductions in the prices of the principal steel products. These price reductions appear to have completely eliminated any benefits to the companies from lowering their wage standards.

If the lower prices had increased steel consumption and had given more employment in the mills, the policy might have been justified. But previous experience in the industry has shown that no appreciable change in the volume of steel use has resulted from cutting prices.

Firm Price Stand Would Have Helped

FOR MANY YEARS the weakness in the steel industry has been in its sales departments. Marketing has been on a price shaving basis because there have always been a few producers who, in their greed for tonnage, would not stay in line on established prices.

In the days of good business, increasing operating efficiency covered up many of the follies of short sighted selling. But since business has been on the toboggan, engineering developments have not been able to keep pace with vanishing earnings. As a result, labor is being forced to bear the burden of bad selling.

If the steel industry had taken a firm stand on prices after the first wage cut, the industry would have been helped by the sacrifices of employes and further cuts might not have been necessary.

LOREE AGAIN 'IN ACTION'

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Leonor F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Company, today was again in the fore in railroad financial circles with his announcement that the Delaware and Hudson has acquired a 10 per cent stock interest in the New York Central Railroad.

Rail and financial circles greeted Loree's announcement with ironic recollection that only recently the New York Central and three other major Eastern rail lines had proposed to the Interstate Commerce Commission that the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, owned by the Delaware and Hudson Company, be jointly allocated to them in a new trunk line set-up.

Although the Interstate Commerce Commission must approve the purchase before a Loree representative may be elected to the board of New York Central, it was thought such approval would be forthcoming and that Loree's influence in Central's affairs will be marked, inasmuch as the Delaware and Hudson purchase makes it the largest individual stockholder.

RESERVE SHOWS GOLD GAIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve Board in its monthly bulletin reported an increase of $80,000,000 in monetary gold stocks during the four weeks ended January 18.

There was a seasonal decline of $130,000,000 in the volume of money in circulation during the same period. Member bank reserve balances increased during the four weeks about $100,000,000 to a level $575,000,000 higher than a year ago. Excess reserves of member banks also increased.

The volume of member bank credit continued to decline during December and the first part of January, the board said;

It reported the December decline in the volume of industrial production as slightly less than the usual seasonal amount; while factory employment and payrolls showed a decrease somewhat larger than usual for the season. The report said the general level of wholesale commodity prices, after declining in December, showed little change in the first half of January.

American Radiator Gets 'Cooling' Jobs

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation, through its subsidiary, American Blower Corporation, has received orders for complete air-conditioning equipment for the First National Bank Building at No. 2 Wall street and for the British Empire Building, a part of Rockefeller Center, Inc.

Various subsidiaries of American Radiator are gradually expanding their lines to include all types of air-conditioning apparatus.

Pennsylvania Coal Output Shows Gain

HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.—(INS.)—Anthracite production in December, 1932, was 5,089,000 net tons, a gain of 19 per cent over the preceding month, when 4,271,000 tons were reported, according to the Department of Mines today.

Bituminous production for the same period decreased 1.6 per cent. An estimate of 75,000,000 tons of bituminous for 1932 is lower than any similar period since 1900, according to the department.

Transue-Williams Reducing Capital

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The New York Stock Exchange has received notice from the Transue & Williams Steel Forging Corporation, of a proposed decrease in capital represented by outstanding capital stock to $500,000 from $2,000,000.

RUKEYSER SEES TRADE ACCORD

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, financial columnist for Universal Service, in an address yesterday before the Hardware Manufacturers' Statistical Association at the Yale Club, predicted that the Roosevelt administration would collaborate sympathetically with socially-minded business leaders to restore prosperity.

Rukeyser declared that President-elect Roosevelt's re-election four years hence would hinge on whether there was substantial business recovery during his first term.

Referring to the "Buy American" campaign, Mr. Rukeyser said that there was a regrouping of public sentiment on the tariff issue, and indicated his belief that, with 12,000,000 unemployed in this country, there would be strong opposition from parts of the Democratic party, as well as from Republicans, to proposals for indiscriminate lowering of American tariff barriers. He pointed to the growing belief in this country that prosperity was to be found primarily through developing a self-contained nation.

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Kim's Mother Sides With Him When She Returns From Her Honeymoon

CHAPTER XLI.

But according to Kim's mother there was nothing right about the whole affair.

She returned from Florida two weeks after Mary Faith had gone back to work, and she came straight to Mrs. Puckett's, where Mary Faith was established with the baby.

It was late on Saturday afternoon and the old house was filled with the warm and comfortable odor of baked pork-and-beans that Mrs. Puckett always had for dinner on Saturday night.

There was a wood fire burning in the parlor and Mary Faith sat on the rug in front of it, showing little Kim a box of wooden animals, when the door bell rang.

She heard Mrs. Puckett go lumbering into the dark hall to answer it, and then the sound of her full round voice and another voice—Mother Farrell's. The two of them loud and high, each trying to drown out the other:

"—Came to see the dear baby——"

"Right in here in front of the fire——"

"—Just got back from Florida today! Couldn't stay long. Doctor's patients, you know. Won't let him have even a honeymoon in peace!——"

ORANGES FOR BABY

Kim's mother's voice had won the contest. Loud and high and strong it seemed to march ahead of her into the old parlor like a butler announcing a guest at a big party.

"Where's my baby? Where's Nana's baby?" She came swiftly and heavily into the room, dressed from head to foot in white as if she wanted to let people know that she had been in Florida—as Mrs. Puckett remarked later to Mary Faith. In one of her hands she carried a small basket of oranges which she gave to little Kim.

"Darling baby! Did he miss his Nana?" she wanted to know, holding his small wriggling body close to her own large one. There was a hint of tears in her eyes when she let him go and stood up. Mary Faith knew how easily she could shed them and how little they meant at any time.

"Poor little child!" she said brokenly to Mrs. Puckett who was moving slowly toward the doorway, evidently very reluctant to go. "It's always the child that suffers when a woman leaves her husband."

It was on the tip of Mary Faith's tongue to say that she had not left Kim but that he had left her, when Mrs. Puckett spoke up sharply.

"You ought to know Mrs. Farrell," she said with a quick up-and-down movement of her head. "You left your husband, too, didn't you?" and in spite of her size she fairly whisked through the ruby velvet curtains that hung in the doorway.

"I thought you'd have everything packed up ready for me to move, Mary Faith," Kim's mother said when she was gone. "I certainly was surprised when I unlocked the flat a few minutes ago and found that you'd just taken your belongings and walked out of it!" She set her lips.

"I left everything in pretty good order, I think," Mary Faith defended herself. "I didn't have any money to have your things packed up, Mother Farrell. Kim left me practically penniless—and he told me he wouldn't send me a cent until I filed suit to divorce him. I had to go to work just as soon as I'd moved down here and found a nurse for the baby."

"You're working?" Mrs. Farrell raised her eyebrows. "Where are you working, for pity's sake?"

"I went back to Nesbit's. Jean Bartlett—you remember Jean Bartlett?—well, she got married and that left my old job open. So I took it."

Mother Farrell's big pale mouth snapped open and she shook her head in a series of little jerks.

"I don't understand your doing that, Mary Faith—I can't imagine what Kimberley thinks of it. You know how jealous he has always been of your Mr. Nesbit. . . . I don't know quite what to think about you, myself. Going back there to work, as a married woman, with that man!—I always thought it was funny if Kimberley was jealous of him unless there was some reason for his being jealous."

BECOMES ANGRY

Mary Faith got to her feet, her blue eyes blazing suddenly like blue flame.

"Don't you dare say a thing like that to me." She spoke evenly and quietly as very quiet people often do when they are angry. "You know that Kim never had any reason to be jealous of Mark Nesbit or any other man that I knew. I wouldn't be working for Mark Nesbit now if Kim hadn't left me without a cent—I'd be here taking care of my baby all day, as I ought to be."

Kim's mother stood her ground. "You may have to work but you don't have to work for Nesbit," she said firmly. "And if that's what you insist on doing I don't blame Kimberley, for wanting a divorce."

It was useless to argue with her—to try to explain things to her. She was going to believe what she wanted to believe about Kim. She always had and she always would. Mary Faith knew that.

"All right, Mother Farrell, if that's what you want to think," she said. "But if either you or Kim can find a place where I can earn thirty-seven dollars a week from the start, I'll give up my place at Nesbit's. Heavens knows I'd be glad to. It's no joy to me to be there, with all my old friends pitying me, let me tell you."

Kim's mother had no answer to that. She said that it was time she was going. She had only dropped in for a minute to bring the baby his basket of oranges, and perhaps when she and doctor were settled in doctor's house Mary Faith would bring the baby to visit them.

Perhaps. Mary Faith was vague on that point. But she tried to be pleasant and smiling as she said good-bye to her mother-in-law and watched her climb slowly and heavily into Dr. Thatcher's automobile and drive away.

"She would pretend to think that I enjoy working at Nesbit's," she said half-aloud as she watched the car move down River street.

The days in the office seemed never-ending. There was not a second in the day when the thought of the baby was not at the back of her mind. She worried about him constantly as she worked in her own little room or sat taking dictation at the corner of Mark Nesbit's desk. . . . Suppose he got away from Elsie and walked in front of an automobile? Was he getting his nap on time? Had Agnes remembered to cook his spinach and give him his orange juice and milk at 10 o'clock?

In July he was taken sick and she stayed at home with him for three days. Home once more was the top-floor room at Mrs. Puckett's. Once more the bookshelves hung above Mary Faith's bed, and her pots of flowers bloomed in the windows. Once more the pink-sprigged teacups were set out on the table in the corner. And in another corner was the baby's little white iron bed.

He lay there for two days, burning with fever and sunk in a deep stupor. "Heat and an upset stomach," said Dr. Nevin, who lived just across the street and took care of most of the people in Mrs. Puckett's house. "He'll be all right in a day or two."

But Mary Faith was terrified and she telephoned Kim's office and asked for him. He was out of town on his vacation, the telephone girl at McIntrae's told her, and would not be back until the end of the month.

At the end of the second day the baby was better, and on the third afternoon Mary Faith took him downstairs to the dim coolness of the parlor. The top-floor room was always hot in the afternoon.

How One Woman Lost 47 Lbs of Fat

In 3 Months and Feels Years Younger

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds, was always bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

"Now I am glad to say I am a well woman, feel much stronger, years younger, and my weight is 170 pounds. I do not only feel better, but I look better, so all my friends say.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it. Mrs. S. A. Solomon, New Bern, N. C. P.S. You may think I am exaggerating by writing such a long letter, but truly I feel so indebted to you for putting out such wonderful salts that I cannot say enough."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but a few cents.

When reducing attention to diet will help—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat.

To take off fat harmlessly and safely, take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning—don't worry—it's the safe way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any druggist in the world and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why, money back.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

The best cough remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and saves two-thirds of the money a family usually spends on cough medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

By ANN HELFGOTT
Official Junior Reporter Enright Chapter

Hello Members!

Wasn't it good to be back at the Enright? I think so, too. I thought that Manager Frank Roberts would have a stiff arm after all the hand-shaking. He seemed to have a better time than the youngsters.

Which pet in the pet contest would you like to own? The French poodle owned by John Patterson, is the one I'd like. Incidentally boys and girls, this French poodle won one of the blue ribbons. John was very proud and happy.

Another who also won a blue ribbon was "Rex." You know Rex means King and Billy Price thinks his dog is king. "Rex" was that pretty brown airedale who did the fancy barking while on the stage.

Fred Hill's Belgium police dog won the other ribbon. The remarkable thing about Fred's dog, besides his shiny black coat and extraordinary intelligence, is that he sat beside Fred all during the picture and never barked once. Not even when the members set up a cheer at that thrilling part of the "Jungle Mystery."

Dimpled Doris Weaver had her Boston bull entered but he failed to place. However, Doris won first prize, a pair of tickets to the Enright, for having one of the oldest pieces of money in the "Old Coin" contest. It was dated 1834.

The oldest piece of money was a certificate for $45 dated 1779. This is owned by William Kennedy. Think of it, 154 years old.

Jean Moroney also received two tickets for having a piece of money dated 1834. Wonder how far this old money has traveled.

Ritza Zimmerman told me that she has a cat which she highly prizes, but that it is too old to show in any pet show. It's not only all black but it's 13 years old. How's that for a good luck charm?

Blanche Leas visualizes herself as a teacher. Her great desire is to go to France and then return to this country and teach French.

Louise Gerson's greatest ambition is to become a musical comedy dancer. She is one of the most faithful pupils of Dolly Fritz's dancing school. In a few years she hopes her father will let her go to New York and study.

Don't forget next week, we will again have Dolly Fritz to instruct us in dancing. Bill Powellson, Mr. Roberts' assistant, has several new games for the members, and in addition, the Irish School Master, and his pupils, will show us how the youngsters behave while attending school in Ireland. The end of the "Jungle Mystery" is near, right now it's in its most exciting part, so be at the Enright early so you won't miss any of the fun.

Two-Thirds Must Be Right

Looking backward, sideways and dead ahead we realize that each year is a small hunk in the eternal jig-saw puzzle.

Probably the most bewildering of all the scattered segments have been the last 12.

That was the prohibition tangle. In diagnosing it we still insist the reformers were sincere even though they were anemic.

They carried their ingrown sincerity to the fanatical vanishing point.

Even now, they refuse to concede a dot of defeat. Yet, all around us are the tough wets waving their kettles and picketing the breweries while the beer fiends are yelling, "Hold 'em, pail."

Both sides claim victory and both sides claim the right. As a disinterested spectator we withhold our judgment until we get our mitts on a keg of the real stuff.

Somebody must be wrong. And nobody has actually convinced the drys of malfeasance in transit. All that we have decided is that we will try it again by a two-thirds plurality.

How about the other one-third? The good people who insist that wine is a mocker and strong drink is a wowser?

Shall they be forced to bow the neck in sawdust? Are they outcasts from Acadia? When we sing the Stein Song shall they be permitted to tap time with their feet?

That is up to them. It is one of those parties without formal invitations. They can join us any old time at all.

We forbid them nothing they wish provided they can afford it. That's one jolly feature about a wet. He tries to reform nobody but himself.

The wets are also sincere in their own, rough manly way. They believe they have made the world a better place to suffer in.

They may be wrong. But they're sincere. Ain't we all? If not, where have you been all this time?

ART FOR ALL, ALL FOR ART.

Today we present the winning picture in our nation-wide contest for the best study in art photography made by an amateur. This little effort is appropriately called, "When You Know You're Not Forgotten by the One You Can't Forget," and depicts a peasant girl, at sunset, unwrapping a surprise gift. At this time we want to thank all those who acted as judges, all of whom were busy men who willingly gave of their time and interest to look over the pictures. There can't be much wrong with a country that is interested in art for all.

Growth of Aviation Offers Sound Basis For Business Revival

In 1928 there was celebrated throughout the world the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first sustained flights in a powered flying machine ever accomplished by man.

The event commemorated was the success of two flights in a heavier-than-air machine. One, a flight lasting 12 seconds and covering 120 feet, by Orville Wright, and the other, lasting 59 seconds and covering 852 feet, by his brother, Wilbur Wright.

Since that epochal day so prodigious has been the progress of aviation that the spanning of the oceans and the girdling of the earth in high-powered airplanes have become commonplace.

Flying speed of 200 miles and more per hour and nonstop flights extending thousands of miles have ceased to startle us.

Man's conquest of the air, while not complete, is nowhere doubted.

The rapidity with which it is being realized is the wonder of the age.

As was said not long ago by F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics:

"There is no doubt that we are standing on the threshold of the GREATEST TRANSPORTATION ERA in history.

"To attempt to prophesy what its ultimate attainment will be is quite impossible because the future of air travel is as broad as the expanse of the sky itself."

The same thought, the same vision of the unbounded possibilities of air travel are reflected in the words of Admiral Moffett, of the United States Navy, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics.

"The airplane and the airship," said he, "have become accepted modes of transportation. The field for EXPANSION is practically UNLIMITED, and the expansion will continue until AIR LINES of the future are as STANDARDIZED as RAILROAD LINES today."

We hear much talk that only the discovery of a NEW INDUSTRY will lift the world out of the depression; that some new and as yet undreamed of field for man's productive energies must be found if industry and commerce are to revive.

The discovery of steam, the invention of the spinning jenny, the power loom, the cotton gin, the electrical industry, the automobile are among the examples cited of the periodic energizing which in the past has saved industrial society from fatal relapse.

WELL! HERE IS A NEW INDUSTRY! AVIATION! GREAT ALREADY, but STILL IN ITS INFANCY!

The work of the pioneers has been done. Its foundations have been well and truly laid.

There is no element of speculation or uncertainty as to the reality or the permanence in the human plan—in the unwinding chain of man's unceasing progress.

"It's future is as unlimited as the field of scientific discovery," says Col. Lindbergh.

Transportation has always been the vital factor of growth in all countries, and while aviation does not yet rank with railroads and automobiles it is steadily "moving up." It is clearly destined to a growth and development to which no limit can be assigned.

Air fleets that will cover this broad country and connect it with other countries of North and South America should be encouraged and fostered.

HERE IS WORK FOR OUR UNEMPLOYED—work for scientist and artisan, for brain and muscle, for school and shop, for instructor and apprentice; for it must never be lost sight of that training of the most exacting type is essential to the growth of the new industry.

Aviation is a triumph of America's inventive genius. Why should it not prove, in the glorious future that lies before it, a further and continuing triumph of the American genius for DEVELOPMENT, for ORGANIZATION, for DEVISING and perfecting NEW APPLICATIONS and ADAPTATIONS and for advancing—STEADILY ADVANCING—a mastered principle into new fields of human service?

Enemies of the Schools

Their Meddling, Under the Pretext of Enforcing Economy, Presents a Threat to Education.

The enemies of the Pittsburgh public schools are of three kinds:

1—Gang politicians who desire to get control of the jobs and contracts that go with the school system.

2—Persons who do not believe that education is a proper function of the state and who say it is wrong to educate children, at least above the elementary grades, at public expense.

3—Business interests who, because of the business slump, demand that the school tax shall be cut, regardless of what the effect may be.

Taking advantage of the opportunity afforded by the taxpayers' demand for economy, the three groups are now simultaneously attacking the schools. Under the pretext of enforcing economy, they are promoting bills in the Legislature which present a serious threat to the educational system.

Pittsburgh's educational budget cannot be cut further without impairing the quality of the education.

There has already been lopped off $1,500,000, which normally would permit a two-mill reduction in the levy. The tax rate cannot be cut, notwithstanding the reduction in expenses, because, while in 1929 tax collections amounted to 92 per cent of the budget, last year they fell to 77 per cent and the best judgment is that they will fall to 75 per cent this year. If the tax rate should be reduced in conformity with the reduction in the budget, the Board of Public Education undoubtedly would close the fiscal year with a deficit.

Many of those who demand a further cut in school expenses fail to appreciate how the work of the schools has increased. In the last four years the enrollment in the seventh grade has increased 23.4 per cent; in the eighth grade, 33.4 per cent; in the ninth grade, 27.2 per cent; in the tenth grade, 43.2 per cent; in the eleventh grade, 63.8 per cent, and in the twelfth grade, 45.5 per cent.

If the number of pupils per teacher were the same now as it was in 1929, there would be 286 more teachers and 15 more on the supervisory staff than there are. Eight hundred thousand dollars has been saved by thus cutting down the teaching and supervisory force, but it has been saved at the expense of the pupils who are now in larger classes than heretofore and consequently cannot receive as much individual attention.

A further reduction in the number of teachers must be opposed, as certain to result in classes too large for good teaching.

Seventy-seven per cent of the school tax dollar goes into

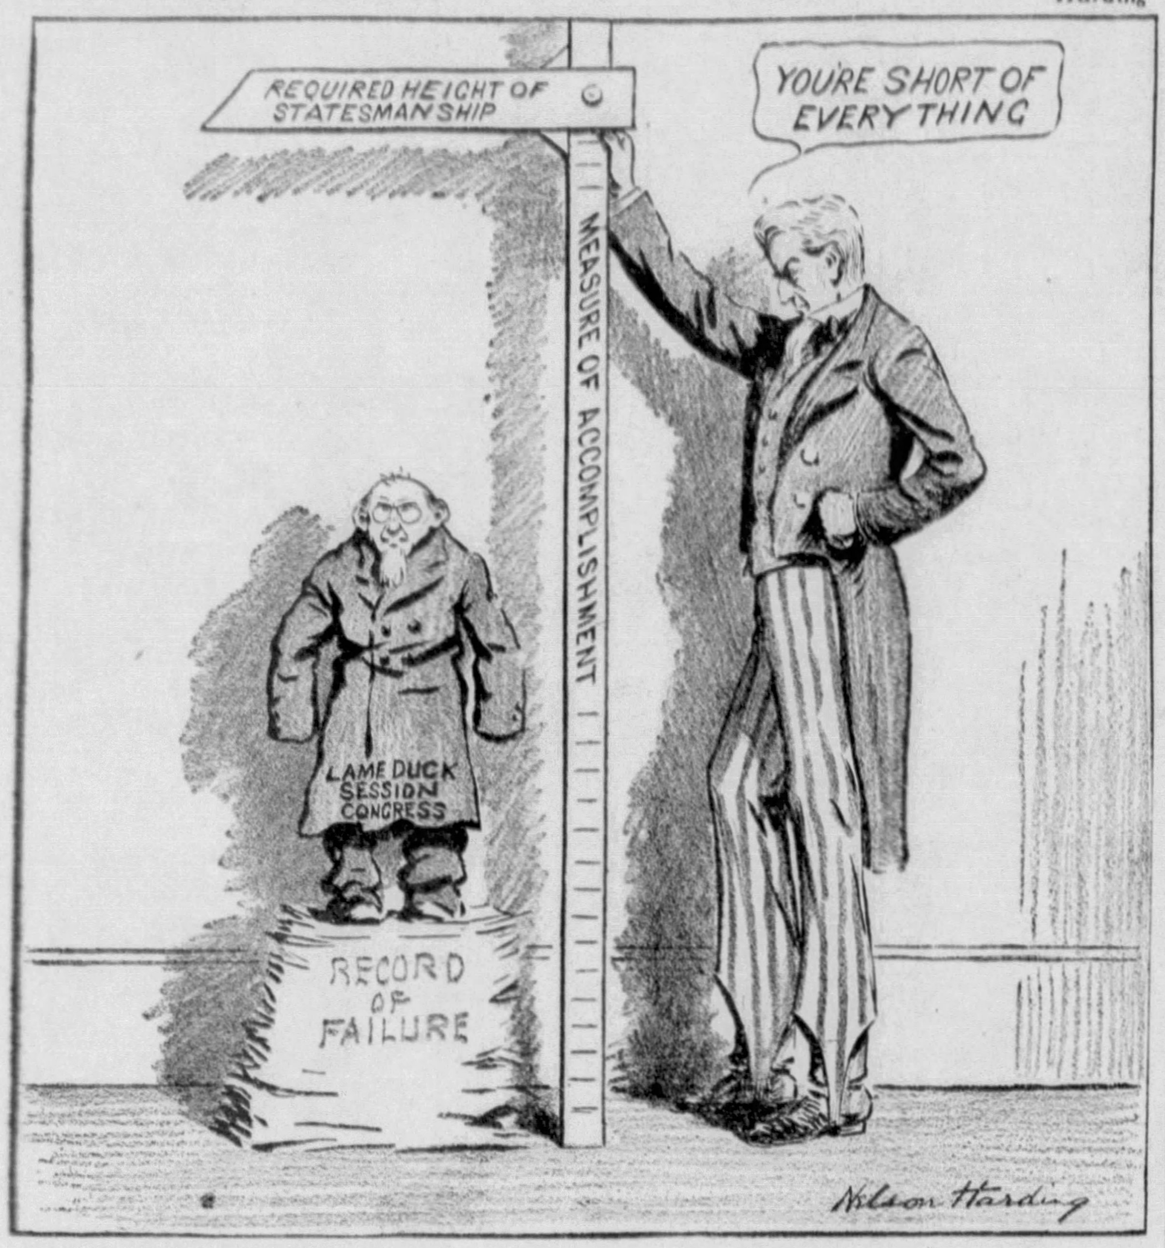
The 'Short' Session

By Nelson Harding



The session that is known as "short"
Has been correctly named,
In stature so diminutive
That it should be ashamed,

Far short of all requirements;
In size diminishing;
It lacks both height and breadth; in fact,
Is short of everything.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Self-Made Bachelors

Some men don't need a woman to spoil them. They can accomplish the feat all by themselves!

Beware of the man who makes a PET of himself. He is a self-made (or confirmed) bachelor. And no matter how many times he may go through the wedding ceremony, he will always be a bachelor—never a "husband!"

He is a bachelor because he doesn't need anybody to help him LOVE himself. The love that he wastes on himself is his one grande passion!

He doesn't even need a woman to help him coddle himself. Or to help him mother himself. He can "be a mother to himself," thank you, and he spends practically all his time in trying to find out what Baby Boy wants next.

You know the type. The kind who would let NO woman stand between him and an onion or a steak with mushrooms; who would not sacrifice an afternoon of golf or a good night's rest for the most thrilling romantic adventure.

His life is one long fight to defend his freedom and protect self-indulgences. He is a collection of habits entirely surrounded by cynicism and suspicion. He feels SO sorry for himself!

But when he thinks—just academically—of marriage, and considers that it might mean eating round steak instead of partridge, smoking ordinary cigars instead of the best, going home before midnight and spending his money for necessities instead of on his own sweet luxuries, he puts the idea from him with a shudder, exactly as he would shove aside a burnt chop.

Then he wonders why he isn't happy. For the world may be full of unhappy married men; but there is no such thing as a perfectly happy unmarried man, over 45. Placing all your affection on yourself is putting your love in the wrong bank, where it yields no interest. The only love that pays dividends, is the love you give away.

* * *

Some men are born bachelors, some achieve bachelorhood, and some have bachelorhood thrust upon them; by fate—or a doting mother.

* * *

The first are to be shunned; no marriage they might make would ever "take." The last are to be pitied. But the self-made bachelor is his own fault! He got that way by making a PET of himself!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—While the stage door Johnny is no more, the theater's front door is bulging with that increasingly greater enthusiasm—the autograph collector. Their number grows with every premiere. On a particularly auspicious first night, several policemen are required to keep them in line.

In reality, they form a distinct guild, attuned in a strange, jungle-like communication with the box office advance sale. They know who is to be in the opening-night audience, spotting them immediately as they step from autos. Frequently they beg signatures from the curb to the front door.

Movie stars are special magnets. A Constance Bennett or a Richard Dix signature is worth a dozen or so of the local lights. Nor do they seek signatures from millionaires, play-boys or others of the Broadway flow. They even remain aloof toward Daddy Browning and Peggy Joyce.

A pathetic earnestness afflicts them. On the fringe of gayety, they appear to have a far better time than those they solicit. I am told they care little for actual autographs. What thrills is the close contact. Sometimes a hand may even touch the great!

One of my favorite little squares—Gramercy—has attained its centenary. Its perpetuity is due to the foresight of the man who donated it to posterity—Sam Ruggles. In earlier days it was a raffish outland, known as "The Old Sam Ruggles Lot."

Gramercy is loveliest in the purplish lazuli so peculiar to dusk. The shouts of children in the fenced-in square have stilled, and about the fine old mansion is a snugness and content of bolted doors. Each basement dining room in the glow of open hearths becomes a sort of cenacle. One has a feeling, too, that somewhere about the room is a rare bottle of port.

* * *

No. 12 Gramercy, a few steps west from The Players, encompasses many sensational memories. The ground floor was the studio of Herb Roth and Ray Rohn where, as an eager-eyed gawk, I beheld a pulsing of the artistic life which I had read so much about. Berton Braley was there often, corrugating his brow over his earlier poems. Carolyn Wells often dropped in for tea. Also, Irvin Cobb, Frank De Sales Casey, Will Irwin, Kathleen and Charles G. Norris. And there was William, the bewildered caretaker, constantly sputtering: "Vot will the peoples have, should you please?"

Action relays an overheard in the subway crush: "Will you kindly get off my feet?" To which was a naive: "Is it much of a walk?"

For an hour now, a neighbor's little girl has been practicing, like a hen pecking corn, on the piano that blessed favorite for beginners—"Dorothy, Old English Dance." Its prim tempo somehow is attuned to typing, the only tune I ever heard that does not annoy me while working. There is another tune, however, that, no matter where I hear it, incites an uncontrollable urge to march about like a child with the first pop gun and soldier hat. I refer to "The Whistler and His Dog."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I've lived a lot;
Made a mess of most of it—
YET I'M PROUD!
Loved a lot;
Broken my heart because of it—
BUT I'M PROUD!

I've tried and failed
And been laughed at;
Fumbled and fibbed
And been shown up—
STILL I'M PROUD!
Earned money
And lost it;
Made a name
And muffed it;
Dreamed great visions;
Two-timed 'em all—
YET GONE ON BEING PROUD!

Why?
Listen!
Listen and learn from me;
For this goes for you
As well as for me.

Why'm I proud?
I'm proud because I have life;
Because, out of all the things
I might have been,
I was born a human
With the beautiful and terrible
Gift of a brain,
And the dangerous and divine
Gift of a soul.

I'M PROUD I HAVE LIFE—
AND PROUD BECAUSE I DARED
TO LIVE IT,
Even though I made a mess of it.
Proud because
Once in a million times
I've been brave,
Even though I'm a coward;
And once in a million times
I've been honest,
Even though I'm a liar;
And once in a million times
I've been wise and kind,
Even though I'm stupid and cruel.

I'm proud I could dream,
Even though I wallowed;
Proud I could pray,
Even while I blasphemed;
Proud that something in me
Was always taller,
Always finer,
Always whiter
Than my outward acts.

Most of all, I'm proud
Because I've loved;
Because I dared to demand love;
Dared to risk everything I had
In the service of love;
Dared to go on loving
Even when I failed at love—
DARED TO GO ON REJOICING
EVEN WHEN I LOST THE ONE
I LOVED!

For love is worth all it costs,
Anything it costs—
Tears, prayers, shame, suffering,
Loneliness, heartache—a grave.
Love is worth anything.
Life is worth anything.
I'm proud because I've learned it;
Proud because I've risked it—
And no matter what the learning cost
I hope there'll be more to buy, more to pay,
More living, more loving—
Forever, more!

And if there isn't any more?
If this is all there is?
Then still I'll be proud;
Still glad I'm born!
And if, in that last moment
Before the long darkness,
I shall see Death stand waiting,
God, give me the gumption
To thumb my five fingers
And whoop in his ear—

"'LO, DEATH, YOU OLE TWO-SPOT;
"YOU THINK YOU CAN SCARE ME?
"YOU'VE COME HERE TO TAKE ME?
"BOLONEY! STOP KIDDING!
"GET THIS:

"YOU'RE NUTS!
"YOU CAN'T HURT ME,
"OR ROB ME, OR BREAK ME.
"I'VE LICKED YOU, YOU FAKE
"I'VE LICKED YOU, YOU FAKER!
"I'VE LIVED!"

New Deal at Muscle Shoals; England's Debt

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Two events of the first magnitude—the determination of Mr. Roosevelt that Muscle Shoals, built by the American people, with the people's money at an enormous cost, shall be operated and not left unused because of the veto of the power trust, and the decision to hear England on her debts.

One thing now is certain—the long drawn fight of Senator Norris for the operation of Muscle Shoals by the government and the sale of power to municipalities, states and farm organizations at rates fixed by the Federal Power Commission, if a satisfactory contract cannot be made with private companies, is won.

Twice the Norris bill has passed the Congress, only to be defeated by the veto of the President. Certain private interests were determined that, unless they should be the beneficiaries on their own terms, the enormously valuable plant owned by the American people should not be used for the benefit of the people, whose money made it.

That made one of the issues of the campaign; for Mr. Roosevelt made his position quite clear upon it; and because of the position he courageously assumed, he encountered the hostility of powerful interests.

The decision announced by him the other day, standing by the great development that has been going to waste, marks the beginning of the new deal.

Norris Deserves Place in History

It was a graceful and a proper act of Mr. Roosevelt in summoning Norris to his side for the photographers, for no one man is more responsible for the triumph of the public here than the venerable statesman from Nebraska. His life has been one long battle for public rights. His motive has been public service, and whenever necessary for the service of his principles to leave his party and battle on the other side, he has not hesitated. His career is unique in American politics. It is worth noting that he won the rules fight in the House in the days of Cannon battling with the Democrats, and he is winning the Muscle Shoals fight battling with them again.

But he is already a part of history. On the day he heard from the lips of the coming President the announcement of his victory on Muscle Shoals, another state voted to ratify his constitutional amendment to put an end to lame duck congresses and to make the people's will more speedily operative. A man responsible for these two things enters into history.

Private Interests Must Yield Now

The Muscle Shoals policy announced by Mr. Roosevelt is in accord with the sentiment of the country. The Congress passed the bill twice in reflecting the thoroughly established wishes of the nation. The vetoes which killed the bill both times were in disregard of the purposes of the people, whose money had been spent in the development.

The battle has been between public interest and private greed.

It is now up to the private interests to determine whether the plant shall be operated by the government. For it is going to be operated; and operated at rates satisfactory to the people; and if satisfactory contracts cannot be made with private companies, the Government will see to it that the people, whose money is in the development, shall not be penalized and punished on the demand of selfish private interests.

Europe Must Make Concessions

The conference between the incoming and the outgoing Presidents regarding the British debts has resulted in an agreement, because the outgoing President has abandoned his demand for the creation of a new Debt Commission and acceded to the demand of Mr. Roosevelt that the negotiations shall be conducted through the usual diplomatic channels.

During the course of the campaign Mr. Roosevelt took the position that a debtor always has the right, the moral right, to ask the creditor for a reconsideration, or readjustment, of his debt.

He also made it plain that such reconsiderations must be with each debtor separately and that we will not sit down in a common conference with all the debtor nations arrayed against us.

He likewise indicated that when we concede upon the debts there must be a concession along some other line from the beneficiary of our concession—to the end that the concession made by us shall not be a mere sacrifice of our own people.

So far as we know, Mr. Roosevelt's position has not altered. There is certainly nothing in the agreement made which indicates it.

World Economic Problems Open

For negotiations are not to begin until after Mr. Roosevelt's induction into power. That is clearly set forth in the statement given out by the White House. The only agreement made is that the new administration will discuss her debt with England, and during the campaign Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he would do so on the request of that country. The present regime is to arrange the preliminaries for the meeting. It will not in any possible way commit the incoming administration. And there is a paragraph in the statement from the White House which is important:

"It is, of course, necessary to discuss at the same time the world economic problems in which the United States and Great Britain are mutually interested."

This leaves the door open for other understandings through which mutual concessions may be made.

Britain Comes With Clean Hands

None of the debtor nations has so strong a case for a plea of concession as Great Britain. First, she carries a greater financial burden as a result of the war than any of the others. Second, she got a bad bargain in the last settlement, compared with the other debtor nations. Third, despite the difficulty, she snapped her jaws and went through with the meeting of her payment on December 15. It was the spirit with which she met that obligation that made her a host of friends in this country among those who still believe that a debt is a debt and should be paid if it can be.

She asks for a reconsideration and comes with clean hands.

Offer No Premium To Defaulters

There is some interesting—to some of us it seems amusing—speculation as to whether this agreement means that we are sending engraved invitations couched in obsequious language to the nations that defaulted to come in and get theirs.

France could have paid and would not. She used the money she owed on her payment to make a loan to another country. She assumed a position that was not only untenable, but indefensible. And while Herriot made a splendid fight for the discharge of a national obligation, there was a general disposition in France to jeer us here. That made no good impression.

If, in the matter of reconsiderations of the previous terms of settlement, there is to be no discrimination between the nations that met their obligations and those that defaulted, we put a premium on default. We make it pay.

We prefer to believe that there will be no "invitations" to defaulting nations until they have cleansed themselves of the default.

And it is to be assumed that in any new settlements made, there will be concessions relating to trade, etc., made to us that will compensate us completely for the debts of other nations that are transferred to the taxpayers of this country.

It is also to be hoped that England's initial proposition will not be the transfer of all the British debt to us. It is explained that this proposition may be made with no thought of its acceptance—made as a horse-trading piece of business. But the masses of the people here do not understand these fine points in international bartering, and the phychological effect will be to create a prejudice and resentment not easy to overcome.

salaries. The teachers have voluntarily taken a 10 per cent cut. This has put salaries back to the level that obtained in 1922, just before the Edmonds Act prescribing minimum salaries for public school teachers, went into effect. Indeed, in the case of the elementary school teachers, their salaries are now on a level 2 per cent under the 1922 figure.

The Edmonds Act was passed because teachers' salaries were so low that they were failing to attract the best teachers to the public schools, and education was suffering in consequence. Now we have returned to the low level that resulted in the popular demand for better pay for teachers.

Since the passage of the Edmonds Act the number of college graduates among Pittsburgh's public school teachers has shown a marked increase. The ratio of college graduates in the school years 1926-27 was 28.8 per cent. Last year it was 39.2 per cent. But college graduates will not be attracted in such numbers to the teaching profession if the pay is cut further.

School expenses in Pittsburgh have been reduced to the danger point. Further attacks on the schools must be vigorously repelled if the standards of education are to be preserved.
